Baseball Diamond Spangles. Headed by John Evers, of Troy, N. Y., members of the Chicago National League baseball team gathered in Chicago on Friday preparatory to their training trip tonight. Others who arrived during the day were recruits Ward P. Miller and H. C. Chapman and pitcher Cole. Cole came from his home, at Bay-City, Mich., and Miller from Dixon. The Davenport Three Eye League club announces the purchase of Joe Wilson, first baseman from the St. Louis Americans. "A Rescuing Role." Philadelphia, March 3-Andrew Atkinson, one of the most widely known boxing fans in the city, dropped dead at the Broadway Athletic Club while the opening bout was in progress. Death, according to Doctor O'Connor, was due to a hemorrhage. During the bout he was chatting and laughing. Suddenly he grasped his throat and fell backward, dead. He was the official time-keeper at the American A. C. and often held the watch at other clubs. He was a great admirer of "Jack" O'Brien and a close friend of all connected with the fighting game. He leaves his wife and several children. McFarland and Burns. Packer McFarland and Kid Burns have been matched to meet in Kenosha, Wis., on March 15. Palmer in Poor Shape. New York, March 3-Albert Palmer, according to the statement of his physicians, will not be able to enter the ring again until some time in April. The big fellow has just escaped pneumonia and is in poor physical condition. A match with Tony Ross has been called off with the understanding that it will be re-arranged as soon as Palmer is well. Meanwhile Frank Moran, the Pittsburg heavyweight, who has a popular decision over Palmer, is ready to make another match. Palmer says he will take him on in the spring to prove that Moran's victory a year ago cannot be repeated. Moran so far has been unable to make matches with Carl Morris, Jim Stewart or Tom Kennedy, but he may find a worthy opponent in Joe Jeannette. Coffee Beats Benedict. "Jimmy" Coffey, a Dublin white hope, knocked out "Al" Benedict, of Hoboken on Friday night in New York in the eighth round. The man from the Emerald Isle had things all his own way from the start, and it was what the Colles call a "poltogue" to the neck that sent Benedict to dreamland. Coffey's right was his heavy artillery, and in the first round he dropped his opponent for a count of eight. In the third Benedict graded the canvas twice, and he was lucky to last as long as he did. In the eighth a series of rights to the head had him wabbling, before he got it in the neck for the quietus. Chicago Mayor's Position. Mayor Carter H. Harrison, of Chicago, has authorized a statement that he is in favor of the resumption of boxing in Chicago if it can be accomplished in such a way that the public will be safe-guarded from "fake fights" and other exploitation by unscrupulous promoters. The mayor said he considered boxing a clean, manly sport, and that tendency of present day promoters to fool the public has attached a certain odium to the pastime which really should be attracted to the masses. "My attitude toward backers of 'fake fights' and questionable wrestling matches is well known," said the mayor. "I will not change that attitude, but if the genuine sportsman in Illinois agreed in having a honest boxing bill passed by the legislature I will play no objection in the way. "Further than that I may as well admit that personally I should take a keen pleasure in witnessing good boxing bouts here at home. One of the most delightful recollections I have of my student days at New Haven is the memory of the college wrestling matches used to watch in the Yale gymnasium."

THE EDUCATION OF "LITTLE MOTHERS" (Woman's Journal) The value of the work that sensible and experienced women could and would do in school management if given sufficient authority, has been exemplified from time to time by the innovations made by Mrs. Ella Flagg Young since she became superintendent of the Chicago public schools. "Little mothers' classes" is a new departure soon to be taken up by this woman, whose eyes can see the needs of her day and of the younger generation. In fifty-six schools these classes are to be established and girls are to be instructed in the care of babies and young children and in the maintenance of sanitary and hygienic conditions for them. No man superintendent ever would have thought of introducing this subject in the public schools. The most zealous masculine advocates of domestic science as a part of the education of girls always think of cooking and sewing, particularly cooking. To his mind a knowledge of the proper care of offspring is instinctive with women, as with hens. But Mrs. Young knows better. She knows that intelligent mothering is not instinctive, and that no part of a girl's education is worse neglected in school or outside. She knows also that in the tenements the "little mothers" are a factor to be reckoned with. The "little mothers" take care of the brood, while the mother who brought it into existence goes out and works to get food for it. The mortality of the babies and the manner and the morals of the little children depend in a large degree upon the intelligence and conscience of the "little mothers." Hence she need, literally the crying need, that they should receive training suited to their responsibilities. All spontaneously they look to the hollow of their little hands, as it were, the welfare of two generations—the present and the prospective.

The Girl Who is Sympathetic. "Happily, most of us know her. Assuredly all of us love her—the girl who always understands us, who is always sympathetic. There are those who have curiously mistaken ideas of sympathy, regarding it as just the mere duty of condescendingly with those in distress. Not so the sympathetic girl; if she weeps with those who weep, she is just as ready to rejoice with those who rejoice. She "gets on" with the most difficult of temperaments simply because the greatest sympathy which she has prevailing characteristic teaches her how to tactfully handle them. Sympathy with her means help. She is giving all the time, trusts her. Every one relies on her. Well for the sympathetic girl if she has strength to support many burdens—for truly will they be lovingly laid on her shoulders!" FRINGED RIBBONS. Fringed ribbons are being used extensively on gowns, wraps, blouses and hats. One of the most attractive ribbons is of wide satin with a thick fringe about one half inch wide, which is stitched on to each edge of the ribbon. The ribbon looks as if it were frayed, giving a very pretty effect, says Today's Magazine. Often a colored ribbon will have a white fringe with a thread of the ribbon color at intervals of one-half inch. Whole bodies are made of these ribbons, and are veiled with a chiffon overblouse or with a chiffon or net fichu.
