Frederick Mall—Manager McCaffrey of the Fredericton Baseball Club said this morning that the management was trying to arrange with the St. John Marathons to have one of their postponed games played off on Monday next. The Marathons will play here on Monday afternoon, and if arrangements are completed in time, a second game will be played in the evening, starting at 6.30.

MANY VISITORS.
The extent of the crowd of visitors and former residents who will be in the city next week is indicated by the large numbers who have arrived already, although it is still three days in advance of the opening of the Back to New Brunswick Week. Each train and steamer is bringing big crowds, and the city is beginning to fill up. The hotels and boarding houses are beginning to feel the pressure, and next week the city will hold as many visitors as there is accommodation for.

THE DAMAGED FOUNTAIN.
The destruction of the Haymarket Square drinking fountain in the runaway accident last Saturday will make imperative the reconstruction of the fountain, which was already needed. The monument was originally a very handsome one, but through neglect had lost some of its beauty. Negotiations are now in progress between the city and Norton Griffiths & Co. in an effort to arrange a basis by which the expense of restoration of the fountain can be cared for and have it restored to its original appearance.

MAN OVERBOARD

Sailor Rescued From Death And Fined For Drunkenness

To have been rescued from the waters of the harbor, half drowned and then to be arrested and fined for drunkenness, was the record of Benjamin Smith, a sailor off the S. S. Oromo which arrived here yesterday. The steamer arrived from Halifax on her way to the south and docked at the Pettigall wharf. Smith came ashore last night. At an early hour this morning Policeman Alexander heard cries for help coming from Moran's slip. He rushed to the cap of the wharf and saw a man struggling in the water. Robert Wood, a watchman in Haley Bros. factory also heard the cries and ran to the assistance of the policeman. The two men rescued the sailor, who was exhausted. They brought him to the top of the wharf with the assistance of a rope. Smith was arraigned in the police court this morning and was fined $5 or thirty days in jail for drunkenness. His clothes were soaking wet and he presented a sorrowful spectacle. His Honor told him that if he could make arrangements to get on board the ship, which sails this afternoon, he would let him go.

NIECE OF MAJOR ASHBURNHAM OF FREDERICTON BECOMES NUN

The New York Herald of Wednesday had the following cable:

"The Earl of Ashburnham announced tonight that his only child, Lady Katherine, who was presented at court two years ago and is one of the finest horsewomen in England, has entered the Sacred Heart Convent at Reichenheim to become a nun. She is heiress to great estates in Northampton, Sussex and Wales."

The Earl of Ashburnham is a brother of Major the Hon. Thomas Ashburnham, of Fredericton, who is well known in military circles throughout the province. He is now in Sussex with the 26th N. B. Dragoons.

Mother to artist—"I will like to have a portrait of our wee Sandy, sir, I was at the photographer, but his charge is far too high."

CAMP SUSSEX NOW DESERTED

Stillness Reigns Where All Was Activity—Commandant Well Pleased With Men—Some Observations

(Special to Times)

Sussex, July 6.—A deserted appearance is presented today by the big military training grounds which, during the last fortnight, have sheltered the citizen soldiers of New Brunswick. There are only about 200 men on the grounds, and many of these will have left by nightfall. Each train east and west since yesterday afternoon has borne its quota of redcoats returning to their homes, happy in the thought that they have participated in making the camp of 1912 one of the most gratifying successes of two years, and pleased in the knowledge that their two weeks' training have been most profitable and interesting.

It was the largest camp in many years. The big grounds were constantly alive with boisterous animation, and the quiet of today is in marked contrast to the activity and briskness which prevailed since the opening of the camp two weeks ago. No more are seen, the hundreds of uniformed men marching, wheeling, and drilling about the lower field, trotting, marching, and faithfully following the guidance of their riders. The villa of tents has once more passed from view. The long straight tented streets of the three thousand and more soldiers are known only by the narrow faded spot in the grassward on which, during the last fortnight, have stood the canvas dwelling of several thousand men, and this is practically all that is left to remind one that these big grounds have been the home of such a vast host engaged in the annual drill.

Well Pleased

That Colonel W. H. Humphrey, camp commandant, was well pleased with the camp of 1912, is quite apparent from the following valetictory issued in yesterday's general orders:

"The camp commandant desires to express his appreciation of the manner in which all duties have been performed during the annual training this year, the excellent spirit which has prevailed, and the exemplary behavior of the troops, both in and out of camp."

"This reflects credit on all concerned, and he begs to convey to the officers of the camp his best wishes for the officers commanding all units, his hearty thanks for the zeal which has been displayed in carrying out the orders and instructions which have been promulgated in connection with the same."

The announcement of the camp opening is awaited with interest by the townspeople of Sussex. It is an important event in their lives, and the streets with the noise of wagons to and from the camp grounds; uniformed men free from the restrictions of the progress of the camp are decidedly attractive and worth while scenes.

Some of the more enterprising of the townspeople plan to make an honest dollar through the camp, and succeed for the most part. Their purpose is evidenced in the construction of temporary shops, or canteens near the entrance to the camp, in addition to the others which are conducted under special privilege in the confines. Knowing the weakness of the soldier boys for ice cream, fruit, candies, cakes, etc., and other delicacies which are not on the menu at the mess tables, the owners of these stands stock heavily in these lines and there is a constant crowd about them making purchases.

Two of the men in camp, both from St. John, Troopers Fred. Rodgers and Winn O'Brien, of 26th N. B. Dragoons, will not come home with the rest of the boys. They were taken to the militia hospital at Halifax for being kicked in the face by a horse and came nearly losing an eye, while O'Brien has blood poisoning in his hand.

With the exception of a rear party from the Service Corps, the rest of the St. John boys have returned to their homes. Many of the service men, estrained last evening, and others this morning, while the same was true of the 26th Dragoons and the Signaling Corps. The Ordnance Corps have several weeks' work ahead of them before they can return to the city.
