"BUN" TYPEWRITER.

"I used to be a poet," said Mr. Arskle, "I still carry my working card in my pocket. Get out of your chair, I'll dash off something for you."

He excused himself and went out to land upon our return we discovered

WHEN a fellow's down and OUTS 'T IS NO use as I can see 'em listen to his tale of woe then only give him sympathy (I a nice) of course, for him to know that his troubles Understand it sympathize not in it, with a Dollar Bill stuck in his hand?

So well enough to tell a GUY How really grieved for him you feel, it's a whole lot better than TO stake him to a decent meal; ice words won't buy a loaf of bread or help to pay the doctor's bill, if sympathy went buy him coal, that five-spot you are clutching will.

Little loose change? does more good than the hot air you can spout? dictionary full of words won't feed a fellow down and out, a way to show your sympathy.

When someone by hard luck is hit 'T is just to take your bankroll out And slip a casenote in his mitt!

We reproduce this poem just as Mr. Arskle wrote it. There is no doubt that it is a fine actor and some poet, but, get his, he's a rotten type-writer!—Detroit Free Press.

AMUSEMENTS FOR OURSELVES AND OTHERS

CHICAGO STOCK COMPANY.

With its many quaint old types, its lonely atmosphere and true to life situations and incidents, "Our New Minister," which served for years as a starting vehicle for Joseph Conyers, will be produced by the Chicago Stock Company at the Opera House Wednesday afternoon and evening. The play is from the pen of Denham Thompson the author of "The Old Homestead," and has the reputation of being one of the most successful rural plays from a financial standpoint ever given.

Scene in Our New Minister, Opera House, Wednesday Matinee and Night

In securing material to write his play, Mr. Thompson selected his old home town, Hardacre, a small village in New Hampshire, as the scene of the action, and many of the quaint old characters whom he had known personally as the characters in the play, in fact it is often said that every character in the play was drawn from life.

The three acts are filled with funny situations and bright sparkling lines with enough of the serious vein to make the play interesting. The principal characters in the play, Thaddeus Strong, who has come to take up his duties as the new minister in Hardacre, the country folk have been used to hearing "live and let live" preached as their only religion, but Thaddeus Strong tells the deacons he is going to preach a new religion and defeat their antiquated ideas. The story of the play is as sweetly natural as the breath of the fields, the good folk who moved in its scenes are real and their honest humor and every day views of life are cheerful, while throughout the clever chain of events runs the golden thread of a unique love story.

Thursday and Friday evening the company will offer Amelia Bingham's former starring vehicle, "The Climbers," a love satire on society, a play that had a run of 300 nights in New York.

NICKEL.

The Nickel broke all its Easter Monday records yesterday with a crowd both at afternoon and evening that filled the house over and over again. Despite the great number of patrons the crash of the former times was entirely absent because of the new exit arrangements, which the management had installed during the latter part of last week. By this new plan downstairs patrons are allowed to leave the building by special side doorways under cover until the Carleton street sidewalk is reached. The main doorway is not used in emptying the house. The programme of yesterday was a very pleasant ing one. Holmes & Buchanan sang a dainty Easter surprise in a pantomime sketch with sketch continued, entitled in All My Dreams, I Dream of You, and Miss Holmes, in exquisite gowns, rendered Kiss Me Honey Day, a stirring number. Jack Morrissey sang a con melody, Sugar Moon, and the orchestra played most acceptably. The special picture feature was the Lenin success, "The Actress and the Singer," with Florence Lawrence and Arthur Johnston, the chief roles for the first time together since their old Biograph experiences two years ago. This was an immense hit. The other numbers were The Changeling, a pretty child story, and Taming the Tyrant, a household comedy of the most uproarious type. Same good bill for today, with election photographs and election returns at the evening shows.

THE UNIQUE.

The Unique caught the crowds again yesterday with its new pictures and songs. A large number were unable to gain admittance, so great was the rush. The same show will be repeated today. Considerable interest attached to the big western picture, "Dick Farrel's Prize," a story of life on the prairie. "Aunt Hattie's Substitute," a comedy subject, kept the audience in tears of laughter. The Gaumont picture which was an odd picture, was very worth seeing. "The Rugby Match," presenting the flags of the Milan Carnival, together with several other late happenings are also on this reel. H. Newcombe's offering "In the Heart of the Mighty Deep," a case solo was well received.

THE LYRIC.

The big little attraction, "The Doctor," in his dancing, singing and talking act, proved fully equal to advanced programs, and demonstrated by the large patronage afternoon and evening, the peculiar traveling capacity of the Lyrician variety of the male species, similar to the famous General Tom Thumb. The songs and dancing proved to be funny and exceedingly clever. The picture programme feature is a famous society drama, "The Doctor," repeated by request. The other subjects are, "Her Words Came True," comedy; "One Hundred Years After," a story of elven times; and "The Aching Void," a Vitaphone picture play.

To take out dye stains from the hands, use corn meal, pumice stone, or fine sand, or a little chloride of lime in water. Many cases can be removed with vinegar or lemon juice.

CROWDED HOUSES GREET COMPANY IN OPERA HOUSE

Chicago Stock Please in Excellent Production of Strongheart at Two Performances

The Chicago Stock Company may well be pleased with the welcome given them in St. John for the two performance yesterday in the Opera House on their opening day were to audiences that filled the theatre and there was nothing lacking in enthusiasm on the part of all present.

Strongheart was played at matinee and evening performance and afforded a treat with its college life appeal, its big football scene, its pretty love story and, dominating all, the noble character of the civilized Indian who is the outstanding figure of the play.

Norbert E. Dorente gave a thoroughly good interpretation of the part of Strongheart and played with dignity, effectiveness and finish. It was strong, consistent, good work in his every scene and he won everyone's commendation for the actor and interest and admiration for the one he represented.

Richard Cartwright as Frank Nelson and Frank Townsend as Dick Livingston were natural colleagues and in the heavier passages of the drama were not wanting. As Billy Saunders, George Glover was a general favorite, off stage and on the part is a capital one and it was played delightfully. Mr. Rosskam's charge to the football team of which he was coach made a hit.

Mrs. Clara Belle Price, the leading lady, gave a very pleasing performance, as Dorothy Nelson and Miss Junia N. Mack was winning in the lighter role of Molly Livingston. Miss Myers, Miss Davis, Miss Lee, Messrs. Wiber, Ives, Davis, Duffield, Canton, Myers and Sherrer, in minor parts made up a strong, well selected company which gives promise of a very pleasing engagement.

"Central" Speaks

(From the Somerville Journal.)

Call me not with scornful numbers, Like "nosers" bring three! I am not out in disdainful accents—Pray be courteous to me! Would you like to sit here with a Telephone strapped on your head, All day long to answer summons? Wouldn't you wish that you were dead?

When I say the line is busy, Honestly, sometimes it is. Why do you get so indignant When you hear the buzzer's whirr? And wrong numbers—naturally—Sometimes I am at a loss; But, in fact, I give them mostly To suit those who are cross.

Be polite, It would not hurt you, Even though I'm in a box. I am human—although hidden—And am sensitive to knocks. Be polite. Do unto others As you'd have them do to you, It's a good rule to observe, And You'll get better service, too.

The Transgressor' Story With a Moral

NAGGING IS FATAL

That is the conclusion reached by a physical trainer after years spent in trying to restore abnormal bodies to normal condition. A child that is nagged at never holds itself well, he declares. Its deportment betrays its mental attitude and to the trained eye of the physical training instructor the round shoulders and apologetic air tell their own story in the case of a child whose physique otherwise reveals no sign of constitutional weakness. The attitude of the body discloses in a marvelous way that of the mind, and many parents would be astonished to learn that the bearing of their children reflects their home influences in a very unflattering light.

While lunching with a lady the other day, I listened to a tale of distress about her little boy's flat chest. Presently the child came in from school, running excitedly to show his new "jogrophy" book, with colored pictures. "O, yes, dear, but don't start with it now; go and wash your hands and get tidy." The little chest seemed flatter still, and he resignedly put away his book and left the room.

There will be little chance for that child's chest until the mother learns to express her affection more positively in the form of active and ready sympathy, not merely negatively in the form of anxiety. The glow of enthusiasm which was the child's heart literally as well as metaphorically was quenched by the chilly reception. The expanded chest
