From Printer's Ink: You can advertise canned to-matoes at a shilling a can and sell them while your price-omit-ting competitor keeps them on his shelves at ten cents.

No successful adwriter makes up his copy without a thought of the possible women readers of it. The woman is the spender of the family, but she is the saver, too.

The best advertisement is not the one that attracts the most attention, but the one that sells the most goods.

THE RESULTS FROM GOOD

ADVERTISING KEEP AC-CUMULATING LIKE THE SNOW ON THE BALL THE BOY ROLLS. THE RE-TURNS FROM A GOOD AD. ARE NEVER ALL IN.

A man once said: "It pays to advertise most/ businesses, but mine is different." The sheriff sold him out, and now he works for his successor who does ad-vartise.

Making people want the goods is after all about as near the secret to it as there comes to being any secret. Make the public want what you have to sell and the sale is half made.

To make sure that your dead stock will not sell, put it out of sight. If you are really anxious to get rid of it, display it prominently and put a price on it that will make it go.

A customer is a prospective purchaser as long as he remains in the store. The mere fact that he has bought and paid for something does not argue that his money is all spent or his needs all filled.

Advertising makes customers; modern store methods hold them. These two are the mer-chant's two hands.
