

EUROPE NEEDS U. S. AID IN EXCHANGE, BANKER FINDS

Festus J. Wade, After Tour of Continent, Says There Must be Quick Action or American Industries Will Suffer Severely.

Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Co., London, July 26.—Peace and order in Europe today, if not in America, too, depend upon the maintenance of good relations between England and the United States and upon the readjustment of world finance, Festus J. Wade, St. Louis banker and chairman of the American Bankers Association, said before sailing for Europe.

Speaking of the necessity of stabilizing exchange, Mr. Wade declared that "unless manufacturing and commercial establishments as well as financial institutions aided by the government, will take rapid steps to bring about an equilibrium of foreign exchange between the United States and Europe, American industries will suffer severely."

Mr. Wade, impressed by all American conditions, today declared that "no one who loves civilization and its continued advancement, it is more than evident that friendly cooperation is necessary between Britain and the United States. It would take years to restore the damage done by a war, and any man, regardless of his position in life, who makes any money, has a responsibility to bring about a readjustment, is doing an irreparable injury to all nations. I notice that we have some foreign travelers in the United States who advise our people that Great Britain is not friendly to the United States. Such gentlemen should be run out of our country, because by the damage they do they might be called gentlemen Bolshevists."

His View on Debt Cancellation.

When your correspondent put the question as to whether the United States ought to cancel European debts, he answered:

"We ought not to cancel any part of our debt unless European countries exchange back near normal level." He added that our people were "living in a bird's paradise" by thinking that because the exchange rate is at a premium, everything is all right. "There is no way Great Britain and America could help Europe as much as by restoring the value of exchange," he said. "England and the United States began six months ago to debate and contract the tremendous expansion created by the war but the widest circulation of the United States to the expansion of the world's debts could reach $300,000,000,000. While it is commendable on the part of England and the United States to endeavor to do their part, it is equally important that the United States should do its part. It is a heavy burden for the weaker nations to carry."

Supply and Demand.

"You will be told by political economists that credit must be regulated by supply and demand, and that the value of exchange depends upon this law. That is true in all ordinary times and under ordinary conditions. But in the United States we have the supply and demand of the world's currency. If through our action we depreciate the value of European currency, we correspondingly increase the value of the dollar and thus force other nations to buy elsewhere than in the United States. The answer to economists who tell you that the law of supply and demand must regulate the value of credit and that it cannot be done in any other way, is the fact that during the way the governments of England, France and the United States did regulate the selling price of foreign exchange, keeping the pound at 4.60 and 4.75.

"If this could be done during that critical period, it ought now to be continued in modified form from three to five years, to aid the weaker countries of Europe and strengthen the financial situation in our country. The receipts that to do this it would cost $100,000,000 and more per annum, but if the selling price of sterling francs had not been controlled when we were the only creditor nation during the war, it would have cost Europe many hundred million dollars. And if by doing this, we can save $100,000,000 in trade and also aid the weaker nations of Europe through such effort, the cost would be nil.

"Where else could Great Britain and America get the expense of holding exchange at a fair equilibrium? "Let the United States, during the next five years, draw the cost of the interest to be paid on our loan to Allied countries. For instance, the United States now has approximately $500,000,000 a year in interest from Allied war loans. Suppose we use $100,000,000 or $150,000,000 of that to help ourselves as well as those people, we would be more than compensated by the increase in our foreign trade."

France Lacks Raw Materials.

Commenting upon his investigation of conditions in France and Belgium, Mr. Wade declared that "Belgium is 82 per cent normal, and France has recovered astonishingly well, all things considered, but is still weak through lack of coal and raw materials. In agricultural districts the peasants are working constantly from dawn to dark, but in the large cities laborers are not yet awakened to the necessity of doing their part, although I am told that conditions are now better than they were six months ago."

Asked whether he shared in the opinion here that France was seeking the occupation of the Ruhr valley, he replied: "I don't believe France is endeavoring to expand in the Ruhr. Still France has a crying, urgent need for coal. France is at a standstill because Germany keeps promising, but does not keep her promises. If France can get coal her industries will start and thereby greatly lessen the present tension."

"When the coal difficulty is adjusted reparations must follow, and it is now generally understood that the amount of $5,000,000,000 has been settled upon, more than 50 per cent of it to go to France. In my judgment it will come near to paying for all the damage done to France, in the way

Suffered A Painful Accident

Leo Durick, Assistant Chemist With the Canadian Drug Co., Fell on the Stairs Last Evening and Fractured His Knee-Cap.

Leo Durick suffered a painful accident last evening when he fell and fractured his knee cap. Mr. Durick is assistant chemist with the Canadian Drug Company and was working some what later than the other employees. As he was coming down the stairs to the ground floor, at a little after six, he slipped and fell, there was no one else in the shop at the time, and he fell on his knee. He was taken to the hospital and called for help. The ambulance and Dr. Stephenson responded as quickly as possible and after consulting first aid conveyed the patient to the infirmary for further treatment.

TOBACCO HABIT DANGEROUS

says Doctor Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins hospital. Thousands of men suffering from fatal diseases would be in perfect health today were it not for the deadly drug nicotine. Stop the habit now before it is too late. It is a simple process to rid yourself of the tobacco habit in any form. Just go to any up-to-date drug store and get some Nicotol tablets, take them as directed and let the pernicious habit quickly vanish. Druggists refund the money if they fail. Be sure to read large and interesting announcement by Doctor Connor, soon to appear in this paper. It tells of the danger of nicotine poisoning and how to avoid it. In the meantime try Nicotol tablets; you will be surprised at the result.

COMMITTEE OF G. T. R. SHAREHOLDERS FORMED

London, July 25.—(C. A. P.)—An informal committee of the large shareholders of the Grand Trunk Railway has been formed especially to safeguard the interests of the four per cent debenture holders. The Times remarks that no indication is yet forthcoming regarding the payment of interest, and it is believed that the Canadian Government will accept it fully and confidently. The committee is still in the preliminary stages, but the stockholders are a little restive. The Times states.

MEETING TODAY.

The common council will meet in regular session this afternoon in City Hall. Another session of importance is the continuance of the investigation regarding the housing problem when the remarks of Councillor Campbell will be further gone into.

UNPLEASANTNESS AT FIRE CHIEFS MTG.

Which Opened at Toronto Yesterday, re Chaplain.

PRES. REFUSED TO ACT

Because His Catholic Nomininee Was Suspended by Ven. Archdeacon Cody.

(Continued from Page 1) greatest Orange demonstration in the city's history had just been held, there is an intense feeling. Chief Kenyon stated that he declined to enter into further discussion by letter on the matter. "I left my home city with an open mind on it," he said, "and hoping that the matter of the selection of a clergyman would be quiet and amicably arranged," he was greatly surprised, he added, when he arrived in Toronto to find that the matter had been given to the press "in a garbled and inaccurate manner," and a public issue had been made of it before his arrival. In justification of his position, Chief Kenyon said: "There was nothing left for me to do but stand by the invitation I had issued. When I found myself unsupported by the executive of the association I tendered my resignation and quietly withdrew."

Further Chief Kenyon said: "Realizing that I was in a foreign land and must be fair and courteous to everyone, I aimed to avoid, as far as possible any further discussion on this matter because at the bottom of the whole thing is a clear indication that it is not a question between officers and members of the International association of fire engineers—it is not a religious question, but solely and absolutely an Irish question. The feeling in Toronto at the present time, on account of the unfortunate disturbances in Ireland, I am told is very tense. That side is certainly borne out by extracts from a letter of Chief Russell. I am an American citizen, and while I sympathize with Ireland in her struggle for a better form of government I have no desire while a British subject to inject that question into the affairs of the association."

Chief Kenyon's statement to the convention this afternoon was in the form of an explanation of the matter in dispute between him and the Toronto fire chief. He expressed regret that the trouble had arisen, but declared that he was an American citizen and had rights that no man could trample on. Referring to a possibility of his re-election as president of the association, which had been mooted, Chief Kenyon said: "I may lose the presidency but there is one thing I shall never lose and that is my honor as a man. This declaration was greeted with a burst of cheers. After the convention had voted to accept the resignation of President

TRUE NOBILITY OF VIENNA SUPPLANTED

Culture of Ancient City Has Given Nation of Gentility—Thieving Has light Practice.

(Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Company.) Vienna, July 25.—"Nothing but the fine palaces are left," an Englishwoman remarked to her companion while your correspondent was riding on a tram through the "Währingstrasse," the main thoroughfare of the Ninth district of Vienna. "And I wonder what the students will come from to fill those huge buildings," she continued, looking at the Chemische Institute and the Anatomische Institute of the University of Vienna. "You must not forget, however, the wide street for two miles, that these palaces were intended for the 60,000,000 inhabitants of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy and not for the dwarfed state of German Austria. Now the Serbs, the Slovaks and the Poles will have their own universities, and these magnificent buildings will be left to decay. Still there would be no occasion for it if all the former citizens of the old monarchy would arrive at an understanding; then the University of Vienna might prosper just as well as before."

Your correspondent had not long to wait till the conversation took the turn expected. "Have you seen the beautiful 'Loden' (a kind of tweed, shown at 'Sternstrasse' department store)? I should like a costume of that. The price seems quite moderate considering," remarked the younger lady. My principal concern is whether we shall have a joint for Christmas," replied the other, and your correspondent wondered why these two Englishwomen chose to stay in Austria. Evidently they did not belong to the ever-increasing set of "Valuta-Madchen," well-bred girls of smart appearance who are eagerly sought after by the professors (scholarship holders) and their families. For a reason they display great anxiety to be seen in restaurants and places of public resort in the company of ladies of seemingly good breeding and good looks.

Nobility Displaced by "Sharks."

There are a large number of strikingly handsome girls to be seen in the streets and cafes of Vienna, girls of faultless behavior and immaculate dress. They supply the demand of these professors by acting as their companions for a pecuniary consideration. The rates are fixed in accordance with the personal charms of the ladies. For instance, if one consents to be seen in the company of a student in a box at a theatre, the fee may amount to 600 kronen. Should she, in addition, be required to attend dinners at some restaurant her fee would probably be doubled. The outstanding feature about these lady companions is that a good many of them belong to the former nobility and the most pitifully reduced middle classes, whose means of livelihood have been swept away by the war.

The new rich are thus undermining Vienna's world-famous culture. Not only can they be seen in motorcars, looking awfully and applying the manners of gentility, but they also invade the most select resorts of the aristocracy like the Hotel Sacher and "Griehorster Kaffeehaus" such as the Grand Hotel, the Imperial Hotel and the Bristol, where formerly only those of the bluest blood were to be met with, have now become the resort of the "schicklers" (the former days, if you wanted to attend a performance at one of the court theatres, you simply applied at the book office. Now the booking office only supplies tickets for the "schicklers" better-class tickets securing admission to the boxes, the stalls, etc., cannot be obtained. By some mysterious agency they get exclusively into the houses of those who had been displaced by the war. Now professors have been opened up by parasites who live by securing batches of tickets and charging tenfold the price to those

Are You Sinking Into the Rut of Ill-Health Because Your Blood Is Starving for Iron?

Physician Explains Why Modern Methods of Living Sap the Iron from the Blood and Why So Many Men and Women Are Benefited By the Strength-Giving, Up-Building Effect of Organic Iron Like NUXATED IRON

Many a man or woman is wearily trudging along the road of life, steadily becoming more weakened and run-down simply because their blood is getting thin, pale and watery—starving for a want of strengthening iron. At any moment they run the risk of sinking into the Rut of Ill-Health, and by not building up their physical condition in time they often sentence themselves to a lifetime of misery and regrets.

"Without iron there can be no strong, sturdy men or healthy, beautiful women," says Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author, in commenting upon how the strain of modern methods of living sap the iron from the blood and break down the health and strength.

"Seldom do you find a weakling in a place of real power. The man who reaches the top in business are those who do not neglect their physical or mental development. The women who come to the front in commercial and social life, and the ones who are most successful in the home are those who realize the value of health.

"You can look around and see any number of such people and you can tell that every one of them is possessed of rich, red blood—the kind with plenty of iron in it to build strength and energy. Yet, there are thousands of people who are weak, nervous and run-down for the lack of iron and do not know what to take in cases of this kind. I always prescribe organic iron like Nuxated Iron for I find that by enriching the blood cells, it helps strengthen the nerves, rebuild the weakened tissues and give renewed energy to the whole body. Through my own tests of Nuxated Iron I am convinced it is one of the best strength and blood builders any physician can prescribe."

Among other physicians to comment on the need of rich, red blood to increase the power and endurance of weakened, run-down men and women, is Dr. James Francis Sullivan, former physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), N. Y., and the Westchester County Hospital, who says: "There is little doubt in my opinion, that many men and women would be stronger, more energetic and vigorous in body and mind, and therefore more successful in life, if they would only enrich their blood with organic iron and thus fortify and invigorate their whole system."

"There can be no success or happiness without the rich, red blood full of iron—that always goes with health. Wherever you go you can find three times per day after meals for two weeks. Test your strength again and see how much you have gained."

over with Life and Energy. In my opinion, the best way to build up strength and endurance is to take organic iron—Nuxated Iron. I have prescribed it with remarkable results and in many instances it has increased the strength and endurance in two to three weeks. I cannot recommend too highly for men or women who are weak, nervous and run-down. If you are not strong or well you can't afford to neglect your health. See how long you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products like the salts, which do not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Each tablet of genuine Nuxated Iron is stamped, and the words Nuxated Iron are stamped into each bottle, so that the public may not be led into accepting inferior substitutes. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in tablet form only by all druggists.

A DANGER SIGNAL—TENDER AND BLEEDING GUMS

Healthy teeth cannot live in diseased tissue. Gums tainted with Pyorrhea are constantly diseased. Not only the teeth are affected, but Pyorrhea germs seep a to the body, lower its vitality and cause many ills.

Pyorrhea begins with tender and bleeding gums. Then the gums recede, the teeth decay, loosen and fall out, or must be extracted to rid the system of the poisonous germs that breed in pockets about them.

Look out for five people over forty have this disease. But you need not have it. Visit your dentist often for teeth and gum inspection. And keep Pyorrhea away by using Vorhan's For The Gums.

Vorhan's For The Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress—if used in time and used consistently. Vorhan's keeps the gums hard and healthy, the teeth white and clean. If you have tender or bleeding gums, start using it today. If your dentist has already set in, use Vorhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.
