The loss, which is estimated at $600, covered by insurance, was largely water damage.

SUPPORT COLLEGES, THE PLEA.

A strong plea for the support of the theological and educational colleges and institutions of the Methodist Church in Canada, was made by Professor C. G. Delano, Ph. D., of Queen's University, at the morning service in the Methodist street Methodist church yesterday. In the evening Dr. Delano spoke in the Forest Methodist church, and the pastor of that church, the Rev. H. B. Clarke, conducted the services in the Methodist street church. The text of his sermon was "Truth." The pastor of the Emmanuel street church, the Rev. H. H. Thomas, is attending a conference in Toronto.

Simonds Street Lad Killed By Fall.

Six Year Old Henry Neves Fell from Team Saturday and Death Results.

Henry Neves, the seven year old son of John Neves, 22 1/2 Simonds street, was killed at about 2:30 Saturday afternoon at the foot of Simonds street, as the result of a fall from a loaded wood cart on which he and his brother, Tommy, aged ten, were driving. As far as can be learned, the men were bound to the horses. The result of the fall proved fatal. The older boy, driving to the herd pens, the younger boy got off his feet, staggered about and fell, and slipped. Dr. Fulton attended him and declared that the ambulance was summoned and that the boy be conveyed to the hospital, but the lad died before being admitted.

Young Neves, who was a bright little fellow, and a favorite in the neighborhood, and as St. Peter's school, which he attended, is now closed by his father and mother, weeping and wailing.

He was greatly accustomed to inquire what he had.

St. George's Society At Mission Church

Anniversary Sermon Was Preached by Rev. J. V. Young to Large Congregation Last Evening.

The anniversary church service of St. George's Society was held last evening at the Mission church and was well attended by members of the Society and their friends. It was a special Easter service and "Postal Hymnus" was sung. The members of the Society marched from the Sunday school room into the church and they were followed by the Choir, led by the "Organist" and "Crown bearer," singing the hymn "St. George for England" and followed by Rev. J. V. Young, priest in charge, wearing a white cope. The prayers and lessons were read by Percy Logan, lay reader. The sermon was preached by Fr. Young, chaplain of the Seminary.

Before beginning his address Fr. Young welcomed the Society to the church, on behalf of himself and the congregation. He reminded them that it was just 22 years since they had worshipped as an organization with the Mission church, at which time Rev. Fr. Davenport was their chaplain.

He considered it a high honor to have the privilege of addressing such an audience.

He based his remarks on the words of St. John: "Witness of men." "There ever was" he said, "a witness for Jesus Christ among men; it was St. George" and they were doing honor to one of the greatest Saints who had ever lived. He was known when ever the British flag floated and anniversary services were held in his honor wherever Englishmen forgathered.

St. George was a real person and not a myth as some would try to make out. He was a real soldier of Jesus Christ and one of the great number of Christian martyrs who had paid their faith with their lives, laying down his life on Good Friday, 303 A.D. England had carried the banner of St. George to every corner of the globe, carrying the principles which had made the banner stand the local Society, which was organized 181 years ago, had not been lacking in this respect.

One of the aims of the order was to foster the spirit of patriotism and loyalty and the history of the local organization showed clearly that it was given a prominent place. We were proud of the fact that there were Englishmen and sons of Englishmen and what Englishmen had done for the world. The great characteristic of the English race was love of country and in that word love he included all that it stood for, chief among which was sacrifice. The late war had made the world realize that never before the world had given so much for so little. The service of the men of all nations to our country was paid by all of English blood and he commended the local society for the magnanimous way it had met the testing at that time. He reminded them however that there was need yet for all the loyalty and love of country they possessed. England was sick and suffering from the war and her sons had returned to form a sturdy phalanx with greater zeal than ever to foster the spirit of loyalty and patriotism.

The second aim of the society was to aid the poor and needy countrymen of St. George. Here again the local society had done noble work, the full extent of which was not known by the public at large.

It was not right to honor a Saint without trying to imitate him. St. George had honored for the best good of the country and for Christ and true followers of his must do the same.

He had stood for faithfulness to the church and for God and for Christ and true followers of his must do the same.

He had had high ideals and tried to live up to those ideals. He was up to every member of a St. George's Society to make him in this respect not only a master and leader in that regard as well. St. George had slain the dragon. Today the members of the Society which bore his name had to fight the modern dragon of lust, immorality, greed and graft and others of like ilk.

In closing he urged the members of the society to live up to their ideals, devoting on the victories which they had achieved through their sacrifice. He said that it depended on the living, whether or not those men who died in vain, and died the contemptible death of the traitor, were rewarded and deserved to be honored in that regard as well. St. George had slain the dragon. Today the members of the Society which bore his name had to fight the modern dragon of lust, immorality, greed and graft and others of like ilk.

In closing he urged the members of the society to live up to their ideals, devoting on the victories which they had achieved through their sacrifice. He made touching reference to those who made the supreme sacrifice, dwelling on the victories which they had achieved through their sacrifice. He said that it depended on the living, whether or not those men who died in vain, and died the contemptible death of the traitor, were rewarded and deserved to be honored in that regard as well. St. George had slain the dragon. Today the members of the Society which bore his name had to fight the modern dragon of lust, immorality, greed and graft and others of like ilk.

During the rest of service, selections were rendered by the band, and a solo quartette, composed of Robert Campbell, T. C. Constance, B. A. Ties and George H. Noble, rendered "Cross the Bay," the choir sang a hymn which was composed by Mr. Constance, and Captain Ferguson, Major Scobell was also an honored guest, and there were several others, as each member had the privilege of attending with a guest.

Following the annual banquet, a smoker was held at the armories, and was attended by some forty of the old and new members of the church.

The service, which is to be held on April 27, at 10 a.m., will be conducted by Rev. J. V. Young, pastor of the church.
