CHAIRMAN CARVELL

In Defending Himself Condemned the Viper Press of This Province for Cowardice and Dishonesty.

Mr. Carvell, in his speech before the yer, and yet he had placed himself in that House on the bridge charges, said as chair- position, and the committee had sustain- non- he felt it incumbent upon him to ed him in that course in order to give make a few remarks. He felt greatly investigate his charges and put in every-pleased that the bridge matter had been thing possible so that he could not go bleased that the bridge matter had been investigated as fully and completely as it had been. These bridge charges had played an important part in the history of New Brunswick for the last year and a half and he thought it necessary that in the interests of the public of this province that they should be investigated to the fullest capacity and he was satisfied while they have had been very expensive and cost the province many thousands of dollars he felt the people would feel it was money well expended because he was satisfied when the sober sense of the people would come to the conclusion that we had had an immense amount of wind and very little substance, so far as this the charges were concerned. (Hear, hear.) They (the charges) had been dying a very the province many thousands of the province many thousands of the people was asked to consider upon it they would come to the conclusion that we had been every expensive attached and not been given a fair chance to investigate to a statement in the Daily Sun concerning the refusal to allow Professor Swamin They (the charges) had been dying a very the placed at the disposal of the honorable to the creaming the refusal to allow Professor Swamin They (the charges) had been dying a very the placed at the disposal of the honorable to the province had been put in his way to prevent him giving gividence on those charges. He next refusal to a the further than the regular way the provision of the trush of hundreds of statements, appearing in the retrust of the hadt stated that transact the trush of hundreds of statements, appearing in the retrust of the head that the attentions. The truth of hundreds of statements appearing in the retrust of the head that the treasury of the province had been provented that the deen put in his way to prevent him giving gividence on those charges. He held that the treasury of the province had been put in his way to prevent him giving gividence on these that the statement, he said that transact the threat that the truth of hundreds of stat charges were concerned. (Hear, hear.) They (the charges) had been dying a very slow death the last few weeks and he trusted that before the sun arose the next morning they would be buried forever out had been made by the honorable gentleman just preceding and by the honorable leader of the opposition, and while not interesting to the House, perhaps, or to the country, in justice to himself he felt compelled to refer to some remarks and statements made concerning his ruling out of evidence and the so-called unfair position assumed towards the opposition. He professed to know a little something of law and had an idea that the same rules regarding the admission of evidence would prevail in this committee as in a court of law. He felt it was not reasonable that give evidence which was the merest hearsay, contrary to every rule in a court of law? Where would we be if every person could go in with evidence of contracts without a note to produce? He thought the fact he had compelled them to produce these documents was a reason for production of those documents had proved the very things they wanted to keep in

From the very day when this investi-gation started the opposition press from the Bay of Chalcur to the Bay of Fundy and from the East to the International line had claimed that the evidence had not been treated fairly by him and tha the honorable gentleman from Kings had been compelling him to shut out every particle of evidence that would have inby the honorable member from the country of Sunbury. He felt he would be just. fied in referring to items contained in various issues of the Daily Sun, the leading opposition paper in the province, con cerning the evidence which had been given On March 19th the Sun contained the fo lowing: "Dr. Pugsley, acting on behalf o prevent as far as possible inquiry into the material facts." That had reference to the fact that he had refused to issu a subpoena duces tecum to Mr. Donald of Moncton, to come and show wha of Halifax, and draw from that the price of Halifax, and draw from that the prices which they should pay for bridges in the province of New Brunswick. He felt when that proposition was made it was absurd, that he would be doing himself injustice as a lawyer if he should issue such a subpoena and he felt satisfied with the course he had taken and was willing t allow it to go before the bar of this province and abide by their decision. He had not found any of the legal profession go to him grumbling about the course taken norable friend had stated the pre vious day that lawvers all over the 1 ro part of a lawyer of any standing in taking the course he had followed. He was pre pared to justify what he had done and placed side by side with the honorable poena for Mr. Donald; he had expressly stated to the committee that he would subpoena for any man; he admitted h he had made out a subpoena and offere it to Dr. Stockton and was told that a he would not give a subporna duces tecun for papers regarding the roof of a build ing in Halifax that they did not that wif ness at all. If they had wanted Mr Donald why had they not brought him He had offered a subpoena, and the could not grumble that they had been re fused a dollar of expense to bring any wi gested in that way that had not be ashamed to do as a lawyer and sent su He had demurred when the matter cam up the first day because he felt he wa fore the bar of the province, where h he had no control whatever, but rath that he was unfair and was not allowing and issued a subpoena for men all ov whole country, and what thanks had he received for it? The honorable gentle-Phelos Johnson, produced in evidence by dence in an inquiry concerning certain charges made by yourself against the Hon. Brunswick, I believed the summons to have no legal force outside the province of New Brunswick, and that there was no obligation on my part to attend before your committeee." There was the position in which he had been placed before the bar in his country, and placed in that provided here the public accounts committee has bar in his country, and placed in that the auditor general has no authority over his (Emmerson's) expenditures upon that account any further than to see that he does not exceed the grant made by the legislature. Neither the auditor general nor the public accounts committee has ever been permitted by Mr. Emmerson to see the accounts which he (Stockton) row in which he had been placed before the bar in his country, and placed in that position by even a layman; it did not see the accounts which he (Stockton) now have to come from the mouth of a law-wanted produced, and Dr. Pugsley was ince with being a tool of the honorable gentleman from Kings county, and the honorable gentleman with being a tool of the government, and with preventing them giving the evidence, the proper evidence and the only evidence they wanted, and yet what was done? He had stated he would not allow the evidence of these documents without producing them, but they did not bind him down to that. They said let Prof. Swain po home and get copies of the documents and they would take their word and not ask him to swear to them. Prof. Swain had sent those documents and they were enly copies of the right of the things of the end to the electron was forced to admit before the committee. (Hear, hear). Was that excluding testimony? He did not get any prediction paper that Mr. Carvell put those documents in evidence, while they were only copies of the original and not swern to; you can look through the files of this paper down to the present and there will not be found a solitary instance where the chairman ruled against Dr. Pugsley, and yet you would find from the large the result of the honorable gentleman with being a tool of the government, and they were long to the accounts of money which is the recipits for the payment of money which should be placed on the tomb should read: "General Bell has issued a proclamation the killed Imperial federation at the ancient capital. We had been practically told here this young that Mr. Haines took this money and madid not know where it went and

and we did not know where it went, and he would repeat the same challenge regardng Mr. Haines as regarding Mr. Winslow's evidence, that this country has never lost one dollar by reason of the transactions of Mr. Haines or Mr. Winslow, and they had unfairly cast an imputation upon these gentlemen in order to get a rap at the premier of the province. (Hear, hear).

He referred to a statement which appeared in the Daily Sun, reading as follows: "Dr. Stockton said that statement (referring to a statement made by Mr. Pugsley) has been made now two or three times, it was not a true statement. Dr. Pugsley had probably made it in ignorance of the facts, and he (Stockton) thought that it was time that (Stockton) thought that it was time that the statement was challenged and corrected. He would state for the information of the public that the bills and vouchers of the payments on permanent bridges account had never been before the public account committee, nor does the chief commissioner allow the public account committee work the available ground to see committee nor the auditor general to see these bills. All that the auditor general sees is a voucher that certain sums of money have been paid on permanent bridge account. The auditor general does B. That was the evidence given in the Daily Sun and which he believed he was to a statement in the Daily Sun concerning the refusal to allow Professor Swain to give evidence of a written contract without producing contracts. As usual the very next day the Daily Sun came out with its version and is only a sample of all the rest of the opposition papers. (Laughter).

They had charged him all over the province with being a tool of the honorable gentleman from Kings county, and the honorable gentleman with being a tool of the opposition as to the manner in which the payment of a certain amount of money with two murders. The charge was serious and hat those accounts were kept by him in the department of public works for his own protection. Therefore the mere recipit for the payment of a certain amount of money was serious and the count of public works for his own protection. Therefore the mere recipit for the payment of a certain amount of money with two murders. The charge was serious and the regretted that Sir Charles was not present. It is true that if the provent the opposition platform.

I almost said the province had begin to the opposition platform.

I almost said the province had begi discussing it. But the people of this country would not be deceived by talk of that Lind.

The third plank of the Conservative party was that they must have their pound of flesh from Great Britain. They refused to give one single dime to England unless they got another dime in return. In the past the Conservatives wanted to fight for Britain by day and to lie down at night without food and ready to fight next morning for the old flag; but now they would give no preference without a quid pro quo. By the preference which Canada gave to England, Canada was helping itself. The government, said was helping itself. The government, said Mr. Fraser, gave decreased taxation, solvent revenue, honest expenditure, and a clean administration. He pointed out that under each of these four heads the record of the government could not fairly be attacked. He concluded with an eloquent peroration, showing that while he would not boast, still the conduct of the government was such that it could safely leave ment was such that it could safely leave its case in the hands of the electors.

Mr. Bennett (Simcoe) followed. Mr. Ratz followed, and Mr. Craig moved the adjournment of the debate, after which the house adjourned.
