Letters to the News Record

Editor Record: Allow me space in your columns to make a request of the churches, viz not to ring their church bells quite so long at funerals. I know of several persons who are confined to their homes at present by nervous affections, to whom the lengthy ringing is a very trying, if not detrimental.

While writing, let me ask whether in winter funeral services should not be shortened for the sake of those who attend them and are compelled to remain in the cold air going and coming and at the cemetery?

Perhaps it would be better too, were the remains not taken into the churches at all, as a precaution against contagion.

Yours respectfully,
 Humanity.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL.

Dear Sir: The question of sewage disposal is one that has heretofore taxed the ability of men both practical and scientific for economical solution. Drainage, filtering beds appear to be the only process introduced up to the present time that answers the purpose at all satisfactory in a general way.

The principle upon which a filtering bed works is that the surface bed of porous earth composed mostly of sand or gravel either combined or separate as the case may be, so that fluids may pass readily between the interstices leaving any solids which they may contain while passing through the soil and thus become purified.

We are told by experts that four feet deep if proper soil through which effluents may pass is sufficient to guarantee the reasonable purity of the liquid which may flow out through tiles properly placed at the bottom of the filtering bed.

The difficulty with the old Berlin sewer farm was that the surface of the beds was composed of a kind of earth which when used as a filtering bed was not sufficiently porous and in a short time became matted and instead of filtering as was intended, held the sewage like a bowl, thus preventing it from gaining access to the tiles beneath.

The present sewer farm, however, does not lack porosity, but has an almost unlimited supply of this quantity, being a sand bank approximately a hundred feet deep.

It was originally intended that tiles placed a few feet from the surface of the beds would catch the filtered liquid as it passed down. This idea, however, proved fallacious, for instead of the purified liquid running out through the sand until it reached hard pan and then by pumping in the neighborhood of a million gallons a day on the beds the receptacle filled up and began to burst out on adjoining land. The lands thus damaged have mostly been purchased by the town forming a second series of drainage ditches. The ratepayers have had to settle for with meagre results for the investment.

The pumping of the large amount of sewage contracted throughout the town daily from the septic tanks to the present filtering beds which are only a few feet higher than the tanks has become an expensive operation, costing about 30000 a year. The new sewer system that is proposed for the north ward requires that a pumping plant be established at that point, in order to elevate the sewage so that it may be forced by gravitation into the present system. According to the present calculation this sewage will incur the expense of pumping twice, first into the present system and secondly from the septic tanks to the filtering beds. The old sewer farm lies comparatively idle at present producing little or no revenue, the hard pan bottom is ideal for the tiling of a filtering bed on scientific principles, and all that is required is a few feet of sand on the surface when the perfect filtering of sewage may be accomplished, and the sewage distributed by gravitation, costing about $4000, a year pumping. An amount less than that required for pumping alone for one year would cover an acre of filtering bed with sand from the present farm sufficient to merit the approval of any scientific expert on sewage disposal.

I need not call your attention to the advantages to be derived financially and otherwise by establishing a number of beds that can be operated by gravitation. In case of a flood as mentioned in your issue of Saturday last, how valuable a bed of this kind would be beside saving the cost of pumping.

In closing I may be permitted to notice that the same lies high as compared with the old sewer farm and could be transported by gravitation at very small cost.

I am sure that the Town Council as well as the sewer commission will excuse me for calling their attention to a proposition which may be worthy of some thought and possibly open a field for useful development.

Laura Foulee, of New York are in town for the Richardson-Boulee, wedding.

A very successful birthday party was given at the home of Mrs. Lewis Hahn, on Thursday afternoon, last, under the auspices of the sisterhood of St. Peter's Lutheran Church. The house was very beautifully decorated with carnations and American beauty roses. The guests were greeted at the entrance to the drawing room by Mrs. Hahn who was very ably assisted by several of the other ladies. Miss Pauline Koerber supplying the music throughout the afternoon, after which the guests were ushered into the library, where a bevy of young ladies, served a very sumptuous lunch.

Rev. Mr. Bridgeman, of Hesperia conducted the services in the Baptist Church here on Sunday.

Mrs. Dillman Geiger, met with an unfortunate accident at the rink here last Thursday afternoon while skating she fell and sustained a fracture of the right leg above the ankle. The injured member has been set and she is doing as well as can be expected.

Visitors are amazed and bewildered at the wonderful display of street lights in New Hamburg. It is acknowledged that we have the most up-to-date street lighting and Niagara power plant of any town in Ontario. While we have accomplished wonders for a small town in street and domestic lighting and power service we are anxiously awaiting for an improved railway and express service.

A very sudden and unexpected death occurred here on Friday evening in the person of Mrs. E. R. Beger at the age of 51 years. Mrs. Beger was taken ill a week ago, with a very slight paralytic stroke, but was recovering rapidly, until Friday, when she suffered a severe relapse and died a few hours later.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, from her late residence, to the Riverdale Cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. New Hamburg, 5 shots up.

The appearance of the great Mystic Company, composed of Mystic, who appeared before the foot-lights to demonstrate the feats of wizardry, which have delighted, astonished and mystified two hemispheres, Madame Thurston the great mind reader, Mr. Fairbanks and Mr. Long the comedians and Baby Long the pretty little actress, called out large crowds this week in spite of the inclement weather.
