The practice of wearing veils over the yes is said to be very injurious to the ght especially of those who desire to the pretty faces beneath.

A beautiful young lady who had allowed the tendrils of her heart to twine fondly around a strapping conductor on a horse car, had her affectionate nature crushed by the discovery that he was taking fare from her, and dead heading another girl who lived on the same street. She did not eat plekles and pine away, but wrote him an affecting epistle, which read: "You want to nok down enuff stamps to get me a paisler shawl and a dolly vardin before Sunday, or i will put an awning over that girl's eye the nex time i meet her in society. You heer me?"

Some Boston genius thinks Lake Erie will

Some Boston genius thinks Lake Erie will dry up eventually. He says its shores are constantly washing down into the lake, thus reducing its depth, and if this process continues, the time must come when the upper part of the lake, which is scarcely navigable now in rough weather, will cease to be navigable except through a very narrow channel, when even the middle and lower portions will cease to be covered with white sails, and become a vast marsh where the wild alder and swamp whortleberry will grow.

Horace Greeley says to this class of persons It is strange how closely the men read the rs. We never say anything that any-don't like but we soon hear of it, and body don't like but we soon hear of it, and everybody tells us about it. If, however, once in a while we happen to say a good thing, we never hear of that—nobody seems to notice it. We may pay some man a hundred compliments and give him a dozen puffs, and he takes it as a tribute to his greatness and never thinks of it—never thinks it does him any good. But if we happen to say anything this man don't like, or something that he imagines is a reflection on his character, see how quickly he flares up and gets excited about it. All our evils are duly charged to us, but we never, apparently, get any credit for what good we do."
