LADIES' EMPIRE JACKET OR COAT, WITH FITTED BACK.
(TO BE MADE WITH A FLARING PLAIN OR GORED COLLAR)

No. 8931. This stylish Empire jacket is pictured made of lar, which is composed of four sections, fits closely like a stand ing collar and then springs out in deep, soft flutes, and stand ing plaited ruffle rises well above the collar and gives the desired fluffy effect. The plain collar rolls and flares in Medici style. All the edges of the jacket are ornamented with jet bands.

Velvet in black or colors will be chosen for dressy jackets, and jet and plaitings of silk will give an elaborate finish. Chats in light shades and of fine quality will be selected for less elegant jackets, with embroidered or jetted bands for decoration.

We have pattern No. 8931 in eight sizes for ladies from thirty to forty-four inches, bust measure. For a lady of medium size, the jacket requires six yards and five-eighths of goods twenty-two inches wide, or five yards and a fourth thirty inches wide, or four yards and a fourth thirty-six

LADIES' BOLERO JACKET. (TO BE MADE WITH OR WITHOUT SLEEVES)

No. 8947.—At figure No. 142 W in this number of THE DELINEATOR another view of this jacket is given.

The jacket, which is here pictured made of green cloth, is a jaunty little affair that may supplement very dressy toilettes. The back is shaped by a center seam and may be plain or fancy at the lower edge, and the fronts may be in plain Greek curves below hatched-shaped revers that extend out on the two-seam sleeves. The sleeves are gathered green velvet and decorated with jet bands and silk plaitings. The fronts fall out from the figure at the center and are each in three sections, the middle section forming a box-plait that conceals the seams. The plaits widen gradually toward the lower edge and the closing is made invisibly at the center. Underarm and side-back gores and a curving center seam fit the jacket closely at the back and sides and a box-plait in Watteau style covers the center seam, which ends at the waist, the side edges of the plait being joined separately to the backs below to give width in the skirt. At each side of the plaits the skirt ripples slightly. The two-seam sleeves fit the forearm closely and shape two points over the hand; they are gathered and stand out in short puffs at the top and a plaited frill of silk headed by a band of jet decorates the lower edge. The neck may be completed with a flaring plain or gored collar. The gored col-
