

PUT MEDICATED WINES UNDER BAN

Nine Well Known Brands Designated by License Commissioners

Toronto, Nov. 5.—As a result of the returns made by the analysts for the Ontario License Commissioners nine brands of medicated wines have been added to the list of liquors which may not be sold by druggists except on a doctor's prescription, and then only in quantities not exceeding six ounces at each dispensing. All license inspectors have been instructed to notify druggists that the sale of these wines as at present manufactured, except in exchange for a doctor's prescription, will be regarded as a contravention of the Ontario Temperance Act. The brands designated in the order of the commissioners are: Wilson's Invalid Port wine, Dr. Emerson's Invalid Port wine, Dr. Peavoy's Port Wine, Monks' Port wine, Paritan Port wine, Dr. Kilbourn's Invalid Port wine, Dr. Coventry's Invalid Port wine, St. Francis' Invalid Port wine, and Vin St. Michael. Other brands are also being analyzed and in cases where the alcoholic content is high in proportion to the medicinal value the brands will be added to the prohibited list.

"SONS OF VETS."

Youthful Corps Organized by A. & N. Vets. on Saturday

On Saturday afternoon the Army and Navy Veterans organized its new branch of work "The Sons of Veterans." There was a large attendance of boys between the ages of eight and fifteen years, and after their names were enrolled, they were turned over to Sgt. Major Shuter of the Royal Military College, who gave the boys their first drill. The boys took to the work readily and with all the enthusiasm characteristic of youth, and showed a readiness to absorb instruction and respond to commands that would have been creditable to old soldiers.

Every boy joining gave the name and number of his father and the unit in which he had served or was serving. Some expressed a desire to belong to the naval branch others to the army. The uniform of the naval branch will be the white and blue of the Royal Navy, and that of the military will be gray kilts and Glengarry caps. The boys will get into uniform at once and will be used to form part of a bigger reception at the railroad stations when returned soldiers arrive in the city. The boys will be drilled in the Assembly Hall of the Army and Navy Veterans every Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. A bugle band will be organized in connection with the Sons of Veterans and a local Bugle-Major has tendered his services.

CAPT. PAPINEAU KILLED IN ACTION

Montreal, Nov. 5.—Private advice from England announced the death in action of Captain Talbot Papineau, M.C., of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. He was killed in the attack on Passchendaele. Captain Papineau was a grandson of Louis Joseph Papineau, who took a leading part in the rebellion in Quebec in 1837. He was a Rhodes scholar.

WORK TO BE SUSPENDED

The work on the G.T.R. bridge at Campbellford has been suspended for this year but will be resumed in the spring if the labor conditions are no worse than they have been during the past summer. About forty men were the most the company could muster, and consequently the progress has not reached the first expectations. The G.T.R. will push the work in the spring and will endeavor, as far as possible, to open the canal to traffic.

YOUNG BOY WAS DROWNED

Five-Year-Old Son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Young was the Victim

Francis Young, the little five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Young of Young's Point, was drowned at the Point on Saturday evening at 6.15.

The little lad had been playing on Mr. Pat Young's verandah, which is above the locks, at six o'clock. About twenty minutes later the family called him to tea, and on receiving no answer, a search party was formed and set out to look for the child.

Mr. Pat and Mr. Fred Young noticed something floating in the water above the locks, which is very deep at that point, and found it to be the little body of the child.

It is supposed that the boy in the semi-darkness, wandered into the water and died of the shock, as a sweater which his father had wrapped about him during the afternoon kept him floating.

THE HIGH COST OF TAKING LIFE

Percentage of Cripples or Permanent Discharges Smallest in History

London, Nov. 7.—"The cost of taking life is greater in this war than in any other war. It takes somewhere between three and four tons of projectiles and explosives to kill a single individual," Dr. Woods Hutchinson, fellow of the American Academy of Medicine, made this statement in the first of his three Chadwick lectures at the Royal Society of Medicine yesterday.

"There is every reason to believe," he said, "that the total death rate per annum in this war doesn't exceed five per cent. of the total number of individuals engaged. Of the allied soldiers whose wounds are six hours, ninety per cent. recover. Of those who reach a field hospital, ninety-five per cent. recover, and of those who arrive at base hospitals, the recoveries are ninety-eight per cent."

"The percentage of cripples or permanent discharges is the smallest known in history. There are fewer amputations proportionately than ever known before. The wounds of war have been made less deadly than we ever could have imagined possible."

HOW THE BILL WAS SIGNED

Historic Event Took Place in City of Toronto

Scarcely more than a stone's throw from where Governor Simcoe had his seat of government a hundred and twenty-five years ago, his Excellency the Duke of Devonshire appended his signature to the Military Service Act, making conscription law in Canada.

The primeval character of the country has changed since Simcoe presided over the destinies of the pioneers who were laboriously hewing out a new empire from the woods of Upper Canada. The change is typified in the replacing of the ambling wooden walls of Castle Frank by the massive stone, red-tiled, gubernatorial palace of today.

The signature written by the Governor-General was the signing of the covenant that the Canada of today will leave no stone unturned to protect the heritage bequeathed by those old pioneers, and to preserve the ideals common to the greater British Empire.

The ceremony took place in the blue parlor on the first floor, part of the suite occupied by his Excellency. During his absence at the Exhibition a special messenger from Government House, Ottawa, had arrived.

The Duke returned shortly before 6 o'clock, and the large blue envelope which the messenger had brought from Ottawa was placed in the hands of his secretary, Colonel Henderson. The secretary broke the heavy seals which closed the envelope and glanced through the contents. He immediately took the Act with the two other Acts which were ready for signature to the Governor-General.

The Duke of Devonshire received the document in the blue room. The heavy piled rug silenced the steps of the secretary as he entered and crossed to the old-fashioned slender-legged writing table, placed where the soft glow of electric light from the frosted inverted bowl upon full upon it. The Governor-General took the papers and looked carefully through the engrossed pages.

The little clock on the ivory mantelpiece opposite ticked quietly. There was no sound but the crackle of the paper as his Excellency turned the pages to note that each was initialed by the clerks of the House and of the Senate to indicate that they had received the requisite number of readings. Satisfied that the Act was correct, he took an ordinary pen from the table and added his name, thus making the Act law, and all its clauses, with the exception of the calling out of the different classes immediately became operative. The reading and signing occupied from twelve to fifteen minutes.

It is understood that the pen with which the Act was signed has been presented by his Excellency to the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir John Henderson.

It is appropriate that the Act should have received the Governor-General's assent in such a conscription stronghold as Toronto. That this should have been so was apparently altogether unpremeditated. It is understood that it was originally thought that it would suffice if the bill were signed by Mr. Justice Duff as administrator. But after the bill had been so signed there was some question as to the validity of the step and to make assurance doubly sure it was determined to secure the signature of the Duke himself to another copy.

WOULD SUICIDE RATHER THAN GO TO WAR

Cobourg Sentinel-Star—On Monday a 23-year-old resident of Lindsay presented a passport to the immigration officer at Cobourg asking permission to cross to Rochester on the ferry. The passport was filled in but lacked the proper stamp of the immigration officer at Lindsay. His medical examination certificate, also the required permission of the O. C. of this military district to visit United States was lacking. Without these necessary documents the young man was informed he could not leave Canada. At first he stoutly denied wishing to evade the Military Service Act, but on being informed his N. O. passport would not be returned to him, but sent to Ottawa for investigation, he vehemently declared he would commit suicide rather than go to war. When he was politely informed the harbour, with twenty feet of water, wherein he could carry out his direful threat was close by, he changed his mind, and decided he would return to Lindsay and take chances on getting exempted. The harbour was a death—with the exemption board he had a fighting chance.

FIRE ESCAPES ARE PROVIDED

Placed on Number of Buildings in Belleville.

Fire Chief W. J. Brown has been instrumental in having placed on several public buildings fire-escapes where they were very much needed. Other places are likely to be required to provide escapes.

TAR AND FEATHER FOR PRO-GERMAN

Lansing People Seize Objectionable Person, Dealing Punishment

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 6.—After being given a mock trial, at which he was accused of pro-Germanism, William Saier, 56 years old, well known here was tarred and feathered by a group of 25 men or more, clad in white robes. Saier was seized about two blocks from his home by six men who pushed him into an automobile and drove to a golf links two miles west of the city, where a score or more men were waiting. After the assault, Saier was driven back to within a block of his home and deposited on the sidewalk. The police have located several persons who saw the kidnapping, but have no clue to the identity of the band. Saier refused to make any statement even to the police.

THE LAW OF SELF PRESERVATION

From early spring and on through all summer, some people were loading up with coal; they had the cash and could do it. Others who had not a bank account had to take chances and today with winter evidently set in, chances seem nil. One can hardly blame the dealers nor the purchasers. What was needed was an enforced conserving of coal by the government for the people, arranging for an equal distribution. But like other vital questions our Fuel Controller may look the door after the horse is stolen. It is no use telling people to be economic in the use of coal when they can't even buy the elusive mineral. Why not reserve for once the old Bible proverb, "To him that hath shall be given," and enforce a conservation of coal as of men? In England at the beginning of the war the government commandeered motor vehicles as a national necessity, then why not commandeer coal as a community need? Had the government controlled an equal distribution of coal through local officers, the writer from knowledge at hand ventures to say, there would have been no need for a man to help himself from a local coal yard as happened quite recently. We are fond of inviting the Germans to be democratic like us, but there is not much democracy in one man's cellar having therein a two years' supply of coal.

S. A. ARMY BUILDING BURNS

Eighteen Persons Were Burned to Death

Patterson, N.J., Nov. 7.—At least eighteen persons have been burned to death in a fire which destroyed the Salvation Army Rescue Mission building here early yesterday.

Ten men are in hospitals with probably fatal injuries and many others were less seriously hurt in leaping from windows of the burning structure.

Arrival of fire apparatus was delayed through confusion in turning in a proper alarm and the entire building was ablaze when the firemen reached it.

Rapid spread of the flames made use of the only fire escape on the building impossible, and the lodgers many of whom were old and crippled were driven to windows from which they leaped before the firemen could catch them in nets.

There were eighty-five men asleep in the mission when the flames started in an old frame building adjoining the main structure used for storing newspapers and magazines.

Arrival of fire apparatus was delayed through confusion in turning in a proper alarm and the entire building was ablaze when the firemen reached it.

Rapid spread of the flames made use of the only fire escape on the building impossible, and the lodgers many of whom were old and crippled were driven to windows from which they leaped before the firemen could catch them in nets.

CREW ADRIFT 24 HOURS

Ogdensburg, Nov. 6.—Captain Alfred Lozon and a crew of five men arrived here today aboard the bow half of the steamer S. N. A. Four after undergoing a strenuous experience.

"We left Ashtabula in tow of the steamer German," said Captain Lozon to-night. "We were one day and two nights crossing Lake Erie. One day out a terrific storm arose and the sea rolled clear over the ship."

"In order to save the steamer German the captain cut us loose and we remained adrift a night and a day. The steamer German put into Erie, Pa."

"We had given up all hope of being rescued when the little tug Dempsey hove in sight. The sea was rolling high and only after three attempts was she able to cast us a line. We finally made it and after much difficulty reached Erie."

The vessel was towed here by the tug O'Brien and will leave tomorrow for Montreal.

The S. N. A. Four belonged to the Great Lakes Engineering Works of Detroit, but was sold to the United States government. The craft is now on its way to the coast, where it will be turned over to the Federal representatives. The half which is moored in Canadian waters just north of the city is 130 feet in length. The boat's home port is Ashtabula.
