COLUMBIA TELEPHONE CO.
New Offices Now Open in the Reservation.

On Nov. 1st the Northwestern Telephone company, a branch company of the Columbia Telephone company, which has its head office at Grand Forks and operates exchanges in Rossland, Grand Forks, Greenwood, Phoenix and Midway and Republic, with trunk lines to Spokane and all Washington and B. C. points, will have its line in operation to Brewster, Hallet, Clover, Concomully, Riverside, Loomis, Golden, Oro, Molson in the Colville reservation, Wash. This enterprising company has constructed over 200 miles of telephone line in this new district during the summer of 1900. The success of the Columbia Telephone company since it started in July, 1899, has been phenomenal, and is a criterion of what the independent telephone companies are doing in the west. The rates have been considerably reduced since this company started business. The Columbia company deserves the support of the people of this district. The rates from Rossland to the new offices are moderate, and range from $1 up. The distance to Concomully is over 700 miles.

ROSSLAND NIMRODS.

How They Treated a Friend to a "Grouse" Dinner.

A trio of Rossland nimrods, Smith, Brown and Jones, went a hunting a few days since. They circled Red Mountain and finally separated, two going one way and one the other. The lone hunter who went off by himself shot a fine grouse. The other two traveled till nightfall, and had not seen a feather during their long tramp. Finally they came to a milk ranch, where there were a lot of chickens and they bought and paid for two fat hens, which they shot and brought home with them. These they took to a leading restaurant and left them to be cooked. In the meanwhile they invited a friend to have a grouse dinner with them. The dinner was greatly enjoyed by the friends and the guest was loud in his praise of the grouse. After dinner he sauntered up the street and met the milkman who had sold the chickens to his friends. He was picking his teeth, and he casually remarked: "I've just enjoyed a fine grouse dinner with Smith and Jones."

A ROMANTIC ROSSLAND STORY

HOW AN EASTERN GIRL FOUND A HUSBAND THROUGH AN AD.

The Lady Had to Hunt for the Swain and It Took Two Days to Locate Him—They Departed in Search of a Minister.

Truth is stranger than fiction. The old time worn adage has again been proven true in a somewhat extraordinary manner. There occurred here in the city full of the elements of fiction, romance and other ingredients of an up-to-date modern love story. The truth and veracity of this article is vouched for by one of the local hotel proprietors, whom for the sake of convenience will be called Jack. To him is due not only the thanks of the heroine, but the general public itself owes him acknowledgments for the clever manner in which he ferretted out the mystery and succeeded in giving two happy lovers at least a transient view of the hallowed bliss of connubiality. On going, as is his usual custom, to meet the incoming evening train, Jack became involved in a matter which bade fair at first to end in a somewhat unpleasant manner. As the train stopped at the depot a young lady appeared on the platform loaded with the usual array of baggage which generally accompanies a tourist of the gender sex. The look of eager expectancy on her countenance changed gradually from disappointment to actual despair. Two tears slowly formed in a pair of dark grey eyes as she gazed anxiously from face to face as if searching for some one in particular. Friend Jack looked at the young lady's embarrassment for some time before approaching her. But as she turned a small, pitiful face full of a woman's appealing helplessness toward him he overcame his natural hesitation and accosting her inquired if he could be of any service. Clutching his coat, as a drowning person would a straw, she poured out the following remarkable story: Having lived in an eastern city for many years without meeting her ideal of what a man ought to be. "There are so few good men in the world now-a-days," she remarked incidentally, she decided to use the advertising medium of the newspaper for effecting the desired object—marriage. That this method succeeded admirably the result will show. Having with much trepidation inserted the ad. she waited results patiently. Day after day passed and still no answer. Was she fated to live and die an old maid, lonesome and unloved. No! One day the postman's knock interrupted those little musings and to her delight there was a letter from the MAN.

Right of Way.

Mr. H. B. Smith has been engaged lately in making accurate plans of the roads from Rossland leading to Trail, Northport and around Red Mountain, with a view of securing the right of way. The platting has all been finished and tracings are now being made for transmission to the coast, where they will be filed and a right of way established and remain with the provincial government. This step had become

J. R. REA.

Rossland's Soldier of the Queen is Feted Upon His Return.

The return of J. R. Rea, private, of the first Canadian contingent, was the occasion of one of the most enthusiastic and joyful receptions which the young city of Rossland has so far experienced in its brief history. Private Rea wired that he would return last evening, and Captain Forin of the Rossland Rangers thereupon called together the members of the local volunteers and arranged for a reception.

THE ALBI CASE.

The Prisoner is Sentenced to Five Years. Albo Acquitted.

The case of W. R. Albi and M. A. Albo, charged with shooting Herbert MacArthur in the Columbia hotel on May 1, and aiding and abetting the same, came up for trial yesterday at the Nelson Assizes. It resulted in a conviction and a sentence of five years against the principal, W. R. Albi, and the acquittal of the second prisoner, Albo, on the score of insufficient evidence.

It will be remembered that Herbert MacArthur had gone to Albi's room on the morning of May 1, in a partially drunken state. The purpose of the visit he was endeavoring to seduce some woman. Albi fired through the door at him, and MacArthur turned to go, opened the door and fired down the passage, hitting MacArthur in the back. The bullet is still in the body of the unfortunate man, and is located somewhere near the spine, where it has induced paralysis. On the fall of MacArthur the prisoner leaped upon him and jabbed him with the muzzle of the revolver. On the arrival of the police Albo was found standing near the helpless man in a suspicious manner.

Arrangements Are Being Made for the Erection of a Bell Tower.

The congregation of the Roman Catholic church is now figuring on the erection of a campanile, or bell tower, to accommodate the massive tenor bell just purchased in Europe through Father Welch, in order to commemorate the closing year of the nineteenth century, according to the expressed desires of the Pope.

Drove to the Velvet.

Messrs. John Dean and W. H. Goodve on Thursday went out to the Velvet over the new road. The road is a hill from here to a point below Sh-p-Cre-a station and there it branches off up the mountain. The grade, they say, is an easy one from there to the mine, and the scenery is diversified and full of changing views. It is a most pleasant trip and one which, they predict, will be very popular. There is a combined church and school house at the Velvet, and soon there will be quite a village built up in that vicinity.
