Serious-minded little maid, Wondering and half afraid, Half inclined to speak with me, Half disposed to let me be, Hesitating yet, and shy, Half a twinkle in your eye, Half in doubt and half in fear, Staying neither far nor near,

How I wonder what you see With those eyes that question me; What the instinct bids you know If I may be friend or foe; Frawnlike, full of grace and sweet, Ready with fast flying feet In the orchard's deepest shade To find cover, little maid.

Grave and curious little lass, Like a wild bird in the grass, Still intently watching me, With your wings half spread to see If my smile bodes good or ill Willing to make friends and still Undecided if they stay Here and near or fly away.

How They Dispose of the Dead at Benares.

I have been present at these burnings The bodies are brought in an a frail litter. A pile of logs is built up, held in place by four iron stanchions. The body with the head uncovered is placed on the logs, more logs are piled on top, the fagots underneath, and the fire lighted. There are various ceremonies connected with the rite. The body is carried several times around the pile before being placed upon it. The nearest relative walks around the pile with a jar of water, letting it drip down as he goes, till of a sudden he dashes the jar to the ground, breaking it to pieces. A symbol of all life, everywhere. At a certain moment, beo, the skull is frac-tured by the nearest relative, to allow asy escape of the spirit to another I. Where the deceased is rich, the fire is made of costly and sweet-smelling wood, sandal-wood and the like, and the ceremonies are more elaborate and more prelonged. No doubt it is the ideal way to dispose of a dead body, but when I have seen it done here it seemed to me a callous and a careless rite. It is true, if one have faith death would not be a cause of mourning, but parting from those one adores is a poig-nant sorrow, even if there is to be another meeting here on earth. So far as I have studied the faces of mourners here, I could see nothing. In these mat-ters they are either behind or very far in advance of us. No doubt Mrs. Annie

But I have noticed all over India the ab-solute indifference of the natives them-selves to the pain, and deformities, and maladies that are displayed as an ex-cuse for alms. It is not the stoicism of our Western Indians, who thought it dishonorable to show fear, or to shrink from pain, but an imbedded indifference. -From "Religion and Caste in India," by Price Collier, in the March Scribner.

BRITISH DRINK AND SMOKE BILL

The highest consumption in the United Kingdom was in the year 1907, which was about 2.057 pounds an individual, taking the whole population as a basis; while in 1909 it fell to 1.975 pounds an individual. Of the amount paid for tobacco in 1909 the Government received $74.367,254.

The total cost an individual per an num in 1909 was about \$2.00/2, and counting a family as consisting of 4.62 persons (which is a census basis), the annual expenditure of such family was \$13.43, which amounts to a weekly ex-mediture of  $\mathcal{G}(\mathcal{G})$  (ants nditure of 251/2 cents.

The annual average for intoxicants for a family of the size above mentioned is estimated at $77.51. The two expenditurns combined would indicate that the average by each family in the United Kingdom in 1909. was $1.74 a week.-From Daily Consular and Trade ports. Re
