Editorial

Our pulpits are our work clothes. Each of us live some kind of a sermon every day.

CARE OF TUBERCULAR PATIENTS

When the provincial sanatorium was established this paper suggested that if the government was really in earnest in the desire to limit the ravages of tuberculosis in our province provision should be made for a measure of free treatment for those unable to themselves bear the expense. THE ACADIAN believed then as now that the real menace of the malady was not in the homes of the rich who were able to pay the cost of treatment at the sanatorium but in the homes of the overcrowded poor. This being the case it was the plain duty of those in authority to safeguard the public health by such measures as provided all the benefit which the institution is able to provide for the prevention of the spread of the disease.

It is because of such a belief that we are pleased to know that now after the lapse of so many years the government of the province has decided to take action. A bill was presented in the legislature last week which provides that any person unable to pay the necessary expenses of treatment, and who is recommended by the medical health officer of any municipality or town in which the sufferer has a settlement, may be admitted to the Nova Scotia Sanatorium on request of the mayor, warden or clerk of such municipality for a period of three months, the cost to be made a matter of public charge.

As in numerous other cases of a similar character the government has failed to assume the responsibility of making action on the part of the municipal authorities obligatory, thus rendering ineffective what otherwise might prove very useful legislation. The passing of laws the carrying out of which is made optional on the part of those affected, while apparently very popular with our provincial rulers is not likely to be attended with any very material results. We need today in our legislative halls a bolder spirit than that which evidently dominates and directs their activities.

LET US HOPE SO

In these days when in view of the oft reported corruption existing in connection with public affairs we are at times inclined to the belief that "every man has his price", it is most encouraging to find evidence to the contrary.

One such case which brings refreshment and reassurance is that of John W. Davis, who served for a time as Ambassador from the United States to Great Britain. A solicitous friend, who was anxious that Davis should appear to advantage as a prospective nominee of the Democratic Party for the office of President, urged him to sever his connection with certain New York financial interests which he is now serving as attorney. The reply which was given should be well pondered: "If I were in the market for the goods you offer," Mr. Davis writes, "I would not complain of the character of this consignment, although I notice you do not guarantee delivery! The price you put on them, however, is entirely too high. The only limitation upon a right thinking lawyer's independence is the duty which he owes to his clients, once selected, to serve them without the slightest thought of the effect which such a service may have upon his own personal popularity or political fortunes. Any lawyer who surrenders this independence or shades his duty by trimming his professional course to fit the gusts of popular opinion, in my judgment not only dishonours himself, but disparages and degrades the great profession to which he should be proud to belong." That is fine and we may hope that a spirit and an idealism such as this are much more common than is supposed.

COUNTRY VS. CITY PRESS

Turning from the city newspapers to the rural exchange which comes to our desk, says The Lake Crystal Tribune, is like stepping from the slums full of vile odours into an old-fashioned garden sweet with honeysuckle. The pages of the big dailies are so full of murder, thievery, immorality, the breaking up of homes by infidelity and selfishness that the better news is obscured. One puts the paper aside with a feeling of depression and heartache that the world is so full of such terrible and unhappy things.

Then, picking up the papers that record the happenings of the smaller towns around us, one gains renewed faith in life.

Here are set forth only that which uplifts a community—the activities of the business men, the church news, the civic good accomplished by the women, school items, the happy social gatherings of the people, the marriages, births, and deaths, farmers' items and all the thousand and one daily occurrences that make up the simple annals of the great common people who are really the foundation of this broad country of ours.

Scandals are seldom published in the country newspapers, but if so happens that decency demands it, the uglier details are omitted or are given a kindly touch that is widely different from the unfeeling publicity of the city press. No wonder.

The offenders may be our neighbors, or people we have rubbed elbows with all our lives. They are real human beings, while to the great dailies they are merely grains of a sort that are ground out hourly in their newsmill.

MORE DEVELOPMENTS IN COUNTY FINANCES

The financial situation in the affairs of Kings county appears to be in a hopeless muddle. Chartered accountants have been making investigations for months past and while we are favored with the information that this will cost the municipality a very considerable amount, little information of practical value to the rate-payers has so far been disclosed. Naturally the people are interested as they pay the taxes which will amount to a considerable amount in the coming years. They are making anxious enquiries and certainly deserve a more full and comprehensive statement than so far has been given.

One of the late developments is the proposition of the legislature of the province to make the county a refund of nearly ten thousand dollars which it is said the recent audit shows the municipality has overpaid to the Highway Board. Hon. Mr. MacDonald, the senior representative for the county, has introduced a bill to provide for this refund which, it is likely, will receive the sanction of the legislature. Just how the officials of the county and Highway Board could have made this mistake it is pretty difficult to explain, and the whole situation is puzzling in the extreme. It is no wonder that faith in our system of responsible government should wane when public affairs are carried on as they are.

THE OLD CEMETERY

The present condition of the old Main Street Cemetery is such as to demand immediate attention at the hands of the civic authorities. Provision was made in the estimates for the current year for this purpose and the work should not be longer delayed than is absolutely necessary. Summer is coming on when Wolfville will be thronged with visitors and when the unkempt condition of these grounds will prove anything but good advertising. The whole appearance of the cemetery evidences a neglect on the part of those whose fathers lie covered there which is far from creditable. In passing the grounds on several occasions recently the writer has noted one of the gates standing open, and a generally untidy aspect not at all in keeping with what one would naturally expect. A feature of anniversary week in recent years has been a visit to the cemeteries and appropriate services held over the graves of departed professors and teachers and patrons of the educational institutions, and in view of similar proceedings this year it is now none too early to begin operations which will ensure such conditions that as a community we may have no cause to be ashamed.

CUT OUT THE MIDDLE MAN

We venture the assertion that readers of THE ACADIAN are not reaping the benefit from our classified advertisement department that they might. For a very small charge there is here an opportunity for calling the attention of the public to any article which they desire to purchase or dispose of. Through the use of this department of the paper the purchaser and the seller are brought in vital contact. Today the middle-man is in too many instances taking a very heavy toll from the profits of the producer. Let the classified advertisement of THE ACADIAN do the work of the middle-man and get into touch with prospective customers through its agency. There is no cheaper or better method of exchange or sale, and it is placed at the disposal of all readers of the paper. Try it.
