

MAKING HISTORY AT GRAND PRÉ

At Grand Pré, Nova Scotia, the other day, three hundred members of the Acadian National Congress assembled, and kneeling reverently at the statue of Evangeline, the heroine of Longfellow's immortal poem, accepted on behalf of the Acadian race a gift of two acres of the Evangeline Memorial Park from the Dominion Atlantic Railway.

There are in all about fourteen acres in Evangeline Park, and the two acres were presented to the Acadian race on the condition that they would build a church there.

George E. Graham, general manager of the Dominion Atlantic Railway, expressed his pleasure at welcoming the delegates. With regard to the proposed church, the D. A. R. would still further beautify the grounds and would give it perfect setting. The company would open the old post road that had been closed for fifty or sixty years. He asked them to cast their minds forward the next five years when this chapel would be erected, a beautiful sanctuary in the midst of a beautiful country.

Mr. P. J. Venoit, minister of highways for New Brunswick, subscribed $100 for the erection of the new church and George E. Graham $100 and the Rev. Father Cormier addressed the people, saying that the church would be erected on the site of the old church of St. Charles. It would be a facsimile of the church of their ancestors.

Hon. D. V. Landry, Moncton, president of the Acadian Congress, formally took possession of the plot and returned thanks to the Dominion Atlantic Railway for the gift. Men and women knelt reverently on the ground, the tears streaming down their faces, murmuring blessings on the day that had restored to them the land of their ancestors. They plucked flowers and leaves and dipped their fingers into the water, all of which were more sacred in their eyes than words could tell. The pilgrimage to Grand Pré took upon itself all the characteristics of a pilgrimage to Holy Land. In the past, said Mr. Landry, the Acadians had been reproached as an inferior people. That reproach was now eliminated. The ambition of the Acadians now was to unite in work that would make not only for the returning of progress but for the advancement of all Canada. These sentiments were the sentiments of the whole race.

Do not be fooled by the anonymous ads of the "wets" who fail to render a reason. They are hard pressed when they have no better argument than the fact that lack of drink drives men to drugs. What gave them this appetite? No stranger argument could be produced against strong drink than the fact that it leaves men with this unnatural craving which only drugs seem to satisfy.

Banish "booze" and in another generation there will be few dope fiends.

We challenge the liquor traffic to produce any evidence that they have ever helped any business outside of the undertaker's. Moreover they cannot point to a single institution that they erected or maintained in the interests of humanity, such as schools, churches and orphanages, but on the other hand this deadly menace to society has filled our jails, reformatories, asylums and alma houses.
