IMPORTANT STATEMENT.

LONDON, April 21.

Speaking in the Commons this afternoon of the manner in which the Government was dealing with the question of war equipment, Chancellor Lloyd George announced that while Britain had started the war with the assumption that the expeditionary force would consist of six divisions, the country now had more than six times that number of men in France. These divisions (about 750,000 men) were adequately supplied, every man who had dropped had been replaced. It was one of the most magnificent pieces of organization ever performed. Nothing like it, he said, had ever been done before in any country. Stating that as much ammunition had been expended in the battle of Neuve Chapelle as during the whole Boer War, Mr. Lloyd George said that the character of ammunition had to be changed in the middle of the war, and to secure supplies, sub-contracts were given to between 2,500 and 3,000 firms. When it was found that they could not keep up the supplies, the Government took steps to take over all works suitable for the manufacture of munitions.
As a result there had been a great increase in the output. If they took the figure 20 as the amount of artillery and ammunition manufactured in September, in October it was 90; in November, 90; in December, 150; in January, 180; in February, 250; and in March, 380. Britain was also supplying her Allies with munitions, yet in spite of this there was a large reserve. The Chancellor adhered to his statement that a small minority of workmen could, through drink, throw the whole work out of gear.
He promised that when the Government measures were introduced, dealing with this matter, it would be found that it had not been approached from the point of view of persons who wanted to advance any particular idea or notion, but from the point of view of persons who had one object in mind, the increase in munitions. It was no use saying there was more drinking than normally.
These were abnormal times and they had to take abnormal measures with an evil which had become abnormal.

PROHIBITION DEFEATED AT HALIFAX.

HALIFAX, April 21.

A vote was taken on Prohibition of the liquor traffic in Halifax City, in the Local Legislature to-night, so as to bring Halifax City into line with the rest of the Province, which is now under prohibitory law. The vote on the amendment to the present Actord 12-12, but Prohibition for Halifax City was defeated by the casting vote of Speaker Ellis.

THE BRITISH SQUADRON.

NEW YORK, April 21.

The British squadron off New York was strengthened to-day by the arrival of the cruiser Powerful. Within three hours of its arrival it held up a big steamer off the New Jersey Coast opposite Asbury Park.

Casino Theatre.

To-night the great dramatization of Paul Gilmore's huge success:
"Captain Alvarez" will be shown at the above Theatre. As is well known the story deals with an American soldier of fortune and his thrilling adventures in the Argentine Republic. Particularly exciting are the feats of horsemanship during one of which the rider crosses a swinging bridge. The photo play is produced by the famous Vitagraph Co.
of America and consists of six reels.
