ADDRESS BY HIS EXCELLENCY SIR W. L. ALLARDYCE, GOVERNOR OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

Comrades—Both as Patron of the Great War Veterans Association and as your Comrade, I am glad to be with you this evening and I warmly welcome the various representatives who have come from all parts of Newfoundland to take part in our first Dominion Conference. As many of you are aware the distinguished Field-Marshal, who I understand, prefers when with ex-service men to be addressed as a Comrade, will be with us in about five weeks' time and I am confident that not only all ex-service men but every Newfoundland-er, appreciate the honour that is conferred on the people of Britain's Oldest Colony by his coming to St. John's to unveil our National War Memorial.

I am sure that no one here to-night will dispute the statement that Earl Haig has done more for the ex-service men than any other person. He knows, better probably than any other individual, what the ex-service man did when our National existence was at stake, when Civilization trembled in the balance, when the whole world held its breath as to whether the forces of right or the forces of the Devil were to win. The man in his Majesty's uniform, by his undaunted courage, by his unflinching devotion, by his heroic conduct, saved humanity from becoming the slaves of Germany. In 1921 Lord Haig proceeded to South Africa at the request of ex-service men there after first successfully maintaining the various organizations formed in Great Britain by demobilized fighting men, and at a conference at Cape Town, which was opened by General Smuts, the British Empire Service League was founded, and with that League we are affiliated. It seems hardly necessary to add that that League is outside of politics.

Now the principal objects of the League are three, and they may be briefly summed up as follows: "Unity, Comradeship, Peace." I have no doubt that a good many of you who are here to-night remember to have read some of Aesop's Fables when a boy, and if so you will recollect the story of the Frog and the Ox, and how easy it was to break one fagot, and how extremely difficult to break a dozen or more when bound together. It is the old, old saying, "Unity is Strength." Ex-service men by combining and joining the G.W.V.A. give added strength to the cause, they expand the influence of the Association, and they thereby multiply the power to help their Comrades and their dependents, and the families of their Comrades who fall. New Unity as you know is the twin-brother of Comradeship, but Comradeship in name alone is not sufficient. What is required is both enthusiasm and effort. This applies not to Newfoundland only but to all ex-service men throughout our Empire, and along with enthusiasm and effort there must also be the spirit of self-sacrifice. In the Great War the men in the service stood shoulder to shoulder to resist military and its accompanying evils, and in doing so they proved to the world that there are more important things in this life than wealth and social status. Why should we descend to a lower plane to-day? The demand for that high standard, for that abnegation of self, has been just as insistent since the war terminating as during the great struggle itself. The will to help is not dead. The Comradeship which during the war shone with a white flame burns wherever there are ex-service men, and during this most difficult reconstruction period, which has overtaken the world, the same unquenchable spirit of devotion to country, which every true ex-service man has at heart, is an invaluable asset and a hopeful augury for the future.

Finally a word as to the third object, Peace. Ex-service men as a body know, better probably than any other section of the community, what the horrors of war really mean. No rational being would wish to see it again. At times, however, war is unavoidable, and it is doubtful whether or not unpreparedness is the best way to avoid it. But this is a highly controversial subject. On one point, however, we can all agree, i.e., that the blessings of real peace and contentment cannot be overestimated. Before sitting down I commend to you the following words taken from the message which His Majesty addressed to the Overseas Delegates at the first Conference of the British Empire League:—

"Let us not forget that, in one sense of the word, we can never really be ex-service men; in peace or in war every one of us still owes service to his fellow man as long as he has strength to give it."

The President addressed the Conference as follows:—

ADDRESS BY LT.-COL. NANGLE, C.F. DOMINION PRESIDENT.

Your Excellency, Comrades. To-night is an epoch-making event in the history of Newfoundland. You have here assembled in this room to-night representatives from all parts of our Island home.

Here you are assembled in an Orange Hall, being addressed by a sign of what our Association stands for, and I hope the spirit of our meeting to-night will spread throughout the whole of Newfoundland and bear good fruit. (Cheers). This meeting here to-night is remarkable for several reasons; here we are an Association without a creed that I think is unique in Newfoundland. We are also an Association without politics that is unique. We represent the men who went out and fought, and who are prepared, if necessary, to do so again. We stand for the good of our country and in doing so we are sure to hurt the susceptibilities of some people, but we do not care. There is a right course for us to follow and we are going to follow that course to the bitter end. (Applause).

Conference, as a rule, are instituted by officers and officials of Societies who look upon them as a social, re-union than as a business proposition, but this conference is first and foremost strictly business. At this time of year we would not call you men in from all parts of Newfoundland, from your work, of making ready for the fishery, if we had not good reasons. We called you in here for good reason and hope you will give this conference your full and undivided attention.

To you, Sir, as Patron and friend of this Association we tender our thanks for all you have done for us in the past and we wish to couple with that thanks the name of your good lady. There is no one who has done more for the disabled and sick ex-service man than Lady Allardyce. (Applause). I hope you and your good lady will be left with us for many years to see the end of the terrible period through which we are passing and when the time comes for you to go to other fields of labour there will accompany you the best wishes of every ex-service man in this island of ours.

To you, Sir, as Chief administrator we pledge ourselves and in doing so we pledge eight thousand ex-service men of Newfoundland, we pledge you our help and support in the strenuous times through which you are passing. We are ready at your call to support you in every way from the formation of a Dominion Government to the forming of a mopping up party.

The political events of the past month are not responsible for the summoning of this conference. Long before the political pot boiled over this conference was determined upon. We all feel that Newfoundland is in need of an organization such as ours. Every one of us realize Newfoundland is slipping and have felt the necessity of a conference such as this. We need a greater and wider constitution for this organization, as the one drawn up when the organization was formed is out of date and the first essential is organization and that is the reason why we are here to-day. We want to reform it and make it one that will win back for Newfoundland the honoured name which it has held for centuries. If you men explain the aims and objects of this organization to your fellow ex-service men all over the country and get them to come together then you will be doing your duty to Newfoundland. As the Executive head of this organization I am merely the man at the tiller. I can only guide the boat but it is you men will put your backs to the oars we will forge ahead; if you will all pull together and put your backs into it we will gain our object but until then we are all aches and aches and just drifting by in the stream.

There are other reasons also for bringing you to town. In the near future we have coming to visit us the foremost figure in the British Empire, Field-Marshal Earl Haig. We have been singularly honoured in having him come to visit us as one condition he made was that he be brought here direct and back. The only place he has visited officially since the Armistice is South Africa. Two years ago the ex-service men were all disorganized and had four different organizations, all working against each other. The 4 heads of the Associations got together and sent a message asking the Field-Marshal to come out and unite them in one strong, firm body, and to-day they are all united and fighting the cause of South Africa. He is not prepared to go to Canada until the ex-service men there send for him. They are also disorganized, but when the call comes from the ex-service men in Canada we will go there and repeat the good work he did in South Africa.

Earl Haig is coming out here at a time which is very inconvenient for himself. He is first and foremost a sincere man, he is also a family man whose life is wrapped up in the love of his children who just at this period will be coming home from school and he means to be there to meet them, but he is rushing across the Atlantic to visit us and unveil our National War Memorial and then rushing right back to meet his children.

As I mentioned before another object of this conference is the re-drafting of our constitution. This constitution was drawn up more as the constitution of a branch but now when all of you men get together and we get your views and ideas of what we need, we hope to be able to turn out a constitution that will live, as long as the last survivor of the Old Guard.

The President closed his address by reading the following telegram:—

Would it embarrass you financially if your partner died to-morrow?

We have known cases where, on the sudden death of a partner, credit has tightened and the remaining partner has had a hard time keeping things moving while straightening out matters for his partner's heirs.

Moreover, the family of the deceased man invariably looks to the remaining partner for first help! One cannot always realize upon the assets of a deceased partner, but an Imperial Partnership Policy is ample protection against such a contingency.

The matter is very clearly dealt with in a book we have published, entitled "Personality in Business." It would be well worth your while to send for a copy and read it. It's yours for the asking.

HEAD OFFICE TORONTO
J. A. MACKENZIE, Manager for Newfoundland, ST. JOHN'S

"Canada, extend hearty fraternal greetings to Members Dominion Conference, Newfoundland. Great War Veterans with cordial wishes for successful outcome of proceedings and continued success. Inter-Island ex-service men in Newfoundland, depend largely on effective reciprocal arrangements between Governments to which end we appreciate your co-operation."
McNEIL.

Rev. W. E. R. Cracknell, (C.P.), on behalf of the delegates replied thanking His Excellency for performing the opening ceremony of the Conference which augured well for success. It was a matter of satisfaction to all ex-service men to know that in his Excellency they had a good friend and a comrade. He also congratulated the Dominion President on his address which contained material which if applied could do a lot to make a better Newfoundland.

After the departure of his Excellency, the Conference then took up its Agenda, the first item of which was, the election of Field-Marshal Earl Haig as Grand President of the Association. The following messages were then despatched:—

"His Majesty King George the Fifth, Buckingham Palace, London, England.

"The Great War Veterans' Association of Newfoundland, assembled in Dominion Conference, humbly beg to express to your Majesty their loyalty and devotion to your Crown and Person. They further desire respectfully to affirm that the aims and ideals of their Association stand for good Government and good citizenship. For these aims and ideals this Association will fight to the last."

TO COMRADE FIELD-MARSHAL EARL HAIG.

Comrade Field-Marshal Earl Haig, Bermuda, St. Basil's, Scotland.
"The Great War Veterans' Association of Newfoundland assembled in Dominion Conference, sincerely reciprocate your greetings and good wishes. This conference unanimously elected you our first Grand President. In asking you to accept this office our Association is only in a small way repaying your many kindnesses to it. A Royal Newfoundland welcome is awaiting yourself and Lady Haig from the Great War Veterans' Association."

NANGLE.
Dominion President War Veterans' Association."

Messages were also sent to the British Empire Service League, the British Legion and the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada. Committees were then appointed to deal with the following subjects:—

1.—Constitution.
2.—Fenians.
3.—Tubercular ex-service men.
4.—Hospital Services.

The advisability of sending a circular letter to the various candidates in the forthcoming election was then discussed. A motion to this effect was subsequently moved and carried and the Conference was moved into committee of the whole.

The following motion was then moved, seconded and carried unanimously:—

"The G.W.V.A. of Newfoundland in Dominion Conference assembled, hereby reaffirms that the Association is non-party political and that every individual member using the Association to such purpose is violating its constitution and will be dealt with severely by the Dominion Command."

It was further resolved that the resolution be conveyed to the members of the Association, the candidates and the general public.

The conference re-assembles for the dispatch of business at 8 o'clock this evening.

MRS. DAVIS NERVOUS WRECK

Tells Women How She Was Restored to Perfect Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Man.—"I cannot speak too highly of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a nervous wreck and I had to force myself to do my work. Even the sound of my own children playing made me feel as if I must scream if they did not get away from me. I could not even speak right to my husband. The doctor said he could do nothing for me. My husband's mother advised me to take the Vegetable Compound and I started it at once. I was able to do my work once more and it was a pleasure, not a burden. Now I have a fine bouncing baby and am able to nurse her and enjoy doing my work. I cannot help recommending such a medicine, and any one seeing me before I took it, and seeing me now, can see what it does for me. I am only too pleased for you to use my testimonial."—Mrs. EMILY DAVIS, 721 McGee Street, Winnipeg, Man.
