The total number of killed and wounded were about 500. The Government forces were estimated at 28,000 and the rebels at 7,000 to 8,000. ## BUSINESS MORALS OF THE CHINESE

Oriental Honor Fails to Stand the Test.

STANDARD IN JAPAN IS HIGH

Travelers Less Likely To Be Robbed in Tokio Than When Visiting in Europe.

Yokohama, Dec. 22.—It is a fruitless topic to discuss the different standards of commercial morality of different nations, and quite useless to argue with those people in the Far East, who believe implicitly in the Chinese and the Chinese only. "A Chinaman's word is as good as his bond"; "in transactions involving thousands and even millions, not a cash has been lost in dealing with Chinese," etc., etc., are set phrases that time one.

Even one bank manager was so in the habit of uttering those cut and dried phrases in after dinner speeches that he automatically rose and repeated them on the same day that his Chinese comprador had been discovered as an embezzler of more than a half million taels.

Another, a merchant, said in the same conventional way: "Hear! Hear!" to those after dinner sentiments in the same week that his silk comprador had gotten away with a certain $300,000, and possibly, much more.

My own experience with the race has been limited to small sums and I have found honest and dishonest Chinese, also honest and dishonest Japanese, neither race possessing a money-morality of either quality. The Chinese and Japanese courier and traveling servant of course "squeeze" the stranger outrageously in their accounts, but they are outdone ten times over by certain robbers whose addresses I can give in Europe. The most shameful robbery committed by all the tribe and the lowest standard of commercial morality ever held up to gaze are the credit of a New York dressmaker who made some gowns for a Japanese woman a few years since.

I have been robbed twice in London hotels, with strong locks on doors and windows, but never in a Japanese teahouse or foreign style hotel; although in the latter there are long verandas without partitions, on which all the rooms open.

One year ago I was from foreign merchants of the uncertainty of Japanese agreements, of how the Japanese dealers will go back on their contract if the market goes against them a few dollars by a rise or fall in quotations, but every once in a while there comes the failure of a foreign merchant whose irregular transactions count up to hundreds of thousands and offset the doings of all the little dealers in matting, window blinds and chairs, screens. Can we, the people of the shipping trust country, point a finger anywhere?

With fire insurance companies Chinese shopkeepers have a deservedly bad name, and their houses and stocks are insured only at extraordinary risks. To be next to a Chinese tailor or printer is considered more dangerous than being next to a Chinese painter and almost equal to living beside a powder magazine. Of all people, the Chinese are the most careless about fires and accidents, and the most careless about not to teach them anything. Added to this common cause of disaster is the strange fate that brings accidents to past stock and low and to the loss of a heavy insurance has just been effected.

One hears months ago a Chinese tailor rented a shop next a foreign hotel in Yokohama, put a few hundred dollars' worth of goods on the shelves, insured them for a few thousand, and then it took fire late at night. The shop was burned to the ground and so was the large new hotel. The tailor set up another shop, insured at the same overvaluation, and again burned down.

A printer's shop in the midst of the foreign business quarters has just now burned for the seventh time in five years, and an incensed community demands that insurance companies protect their patrons by refusing all Chinese risks. In printers' shops and tailors' shops they hang things on lamp chimneys and gas jets to dry, and all go away and leave them for a few hours. With all their heedlessness, no one is caught asleep and burned to death in these Chinese fires. All losses are repairable and fully covered by insurance.

The Chinese reformers who have escaped to Japan keep headquarters and publish a seditious newspaper in the foreign settlement of Yokohama, and there is a going to and fro of petticoated agitators between here and Hongkong. Until recently the reformers were all Cantonese, who had been educated in English schools in Hongkong or had had that admirable government before them as an object lesson. Now, men of all provinces are expressing themselves on the necessity of a change of government in China, and an attitude of western ways, of following the example of Japan and meeting the western world on its own ground, confronting the west with the west's own weapons.

We hear of temples and temple lands in the Yangtze, provinces and around Shanghai being given up to schools of western education, and Christian missionaries being asked to take charge of such schools or to engage reliable teachers for such awakening communities.

The star refugee and reformer here for a long time was Lang Chi-Tao, who fled from Peking with Kang Wei just ahead of the coup d'etat of 1898. From this refugee he wrote stinging attacks on the government and papers in Chinese ports and the Japanese police watched him carefully. They wanted no such embarrassing situation as now exists in respect to the Korean who lately murdered a Korean refugee implicated in the assassination of the late Queen of Korea. The Japanese authorities promptly arrested the murderer, and his trial and punishment for such a deed is a fully proven crime must follow. But the Koreans have applied for his extradition and want him sent over at once that they may give him a trial and hang him as the brave avenger.—Chicago Tribune.

FIREBURN AT ST. CATHARINES.
St. Catharines, Ont., Jan. 22.—Two incendiary fires took place in this city last night. About ten o'clock a barn near the Whitman & Barnes Manufacturing Company, owned by Edward Steel, was burned, and at two o'clock this morning a building used some time ago as a saw mill factory was destroyed. In each case the cause was not known.

BAYLEY'S ONTARIO CLAY WORKERS

Association Held Its Second Annual Meeting Yesterday.

Officers Were Re-Elected—Interesting Papers Were Read.

The second annual convention of the Ontario Clay Workers' Association was held in the Duffield block on Wednesday, when about 30 interested persons were present. The officers of the association were re-elected and the papers of importance to those engaged in the manufacture of clay products were discussed.

Among other things papers were read as follows: "The Best Method of Economizing Fuel," by G. W. Wood, of Highgate; "Tile-making for Profit," by Henry Jones, of Delaware; "Are Continuous Kilns Practicable?" by Joseph Russell, of East Toronto; and "The Most Satisfactory Size to Manufacture Brick," by J. M. Carter, St. Catharines. Mr. S. J. Fox, M.P.P., of Lindsay, was to have presented a paper on "How to Increase the Profit in Brick Manufacture by Reducing the Cost of Manufacture," but Mr. Wilson McCready, of Lyons, was to have discussed "The Manufacture and Use of Hollow Blocks, Compared With Cement." These gentlemen, however, could not be present, and the questions were taken up by others. Altogether the convention was considered most satisfactory.

THE TRADE OUTLOOK

Encouraging Developments in Canada and the United States.

New York, Jan. 22.—Special telegrams from correspondents of the International Mercantile Agency, respecting the state of trade throughout the United States and Canada, are summarized as follows: The most encouraging developments of the week are the widening of the market for iron and steel at Pittsburgh and Chicago, with increased confidence that bottom prices have been reached. Other features of great trading prospects, a real plethora of money at New York and western centers, and the highest prices for meat since 1898, due to increased milling demand at home and foreign requirements and a greatly oversold May option at Chicago. Other advances in prices were for corn, oats, print cloth, cotton, coffee, leather, hides, tin and copper, with partial reactions in the last two. Silk piece goods are in better demand, prints are hardening. Converters are buying with more freedom.

Boston's wool shipments exceed those of a year ago. Sheep and leather are firm at advances. Most important industrial negotiations are about to be begun in Indianapolis. The miners' union want 10 per cent higher wages for piece coal, and more than that for machine mined. Bituminous operators in four states want a reduction. John Mitchell says he is hopeful that an amicable settlement will be reached. Throughout the Canadian Dominion the week has been quiet as the severe weather has checked sales in the country districts and made collection slower. Cotton goods continue firm and the tone of the woolen trade is improved. Spring orders in men's and women's furnishings goods are brisk.

In one of the seamen's missions in London a pulpit has recently been installed in exact imitation of a ship. The pulpit is built of oak, and is constructed exactly like the prow of a ship. The design follows the line of the ship of the ancient Vikings. The pulpit is the gift of the commodore and officers of the fleet of torpedo boat destroyers which are used as a school ship at Medway, England.

WHICH WEDDING IS THE QUESTION

The Aristocracy of England Invited to Two Ceremonies of Titled People.

London, Jan. 22.—A puzzling question is agitating aristocratic England. Two marriages are to take place on Feb. 10, that of the Duke of Norfolk and Miss Gwendolyn Maxwell, and that of Princess Alice of Albany and Prince Alexander of Teck. There are scores of members of the English nobility who will be privileged to attend both ceremonies, but if the wedding of the Duke of Norfolk is officiated, it would be an affront to the royal house, which would have to risk. On the other hand, the Duke of Norfolk, though now fast growing old, is not so unimportant a personage that one would wish to incur his enmity. Consequently, what are the peers and peeresses to do? A postponement of the Duke of Norfolk's wedding is an impossibility, that of the Princess Alice almost an impossibility.

Elaborate plans are already afoot for the wedding of the Princess Alice. The guests of the Duke of Norfolk will be the Duke of Norfolk and his family, and a number of European royal families in attendance, whose rank is such as to entitle them to be the personal guests of the Duke of Norfolk. ## PLAYS BEAUTY ARTISTS

Novelist Rita Says They Are as Wise as the Serpent.

London, Jan. 22.—Rita has burst forth again. This time she is writing against the "beauty artist." "The specialist," she says, "who steams and smears and electric rolls the face, but who is not such a fool as to permit her client to leave without confident assurances of her improvement."

"In many respects," says Rita, "the beauty artist is as wise as the serpent. If not harmless as a dove, for she is possessed of one golden secret. She knows that once woman begins to assist nature, or improve it, she will try one thing after another."

"What men bargain for in modern love," declares Rita, "is not a woman, but a face. It is the genuine face or figure, hair or complexion, of a woman, or is it chin straps, wrinkle plaster, face creams, figure reducing belts, bust developers, nose machines, face masks, hair transformations, and other woman's guides to beauty. It is an appalling thought how much of the modern woman is real, and how much is art."

OLD CASTLE DESTROYED

Ancestral Home of the Lechners Burned to the Ground.

London, Jan. 22.—Sir Edmund Lechners' ancestral home, a most interesting old castle, was burned to the ground on Tuesday night. The castle, which had been the home of the Lechners for many generations, was a fine specimen of the architecture of the 14th century. It was situated on a hill, and was surrounded by a moat. The castle was burned by a fire which started in the kitchen, and spread to the rest of the building. The fire was extinguished by the fire brigade, but the castle was a total loss.

ARTILLERY ASSOCIATION

Annual Meeting at Toronto—Officers Elected.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—The 21st annual meeting of the Ontario Artillery Association was held in the Canadian Military Institute Wednesday, Major McNachtan, president. The report of the council expressed satisfaction with the idea of a new militia bill in the House, and hopes that it would be administered with a generous spirit. It also heartily supported the idea of establishing a permanent camping ground and urged that better accommodation be provided for the militia in wet weather. A complaint was made against the method that stores are handed out, and the red tape of the ordinary requisition. The report further expressed regret that a reduction had been made in the permanent corps at Kingston, and complained that the men were put to perform duties that were not calculated to further them in the matter of instruction. The report was adopted.

The following officers were elected: President, Lieut. Col. Hurdman; Vice-presidents, Lieut. Col. W. Mead and Lieut. Col. Davidson; Major E. D. Arnold, Ottawa; Major D. Odell, Cobourg; executive committee, Majors M. P. McNachtan, Cobourg; W. C. Tidwell, Hamilton; J. S. Hendrie, Hamilton; J. McCrae, Guelph; secretary, L. H. Irving, Toronto; treasurer, Major M. Myles, and Lieut. Col. John Gray. The financial statement showed receipts of $1,325 and expenditure $473, leaving a balance of $852.

HAS VARICOSE VEINS

Empress of Germany's Leg Affected—Not to Appear at Court.

Berlin, Jan. 22.—Empress Augusta Victoria has varicose veins in one of her legs, and is obliged to keep it extended on a cushion. The exclusion of ladies from a recent drawing-room because of the empress' indisposition caused intense disappointment on the part of many women of distinction who come from the provinces or other countries for presentation. Usually only one drawing-room is held each season at this court, and it is uncertain now whether there will be any this winter. The empress' physicians think she probably will be able to attend the court balls, four of which will be given in February.

RADIUM TO TURN NEGRO WHITE

San Francisco, Jan. 22.—A series of experiments with radium, starting in the scope, has been undertaken at the University of California. An attempt will be made to turn the skin of the white. The tests have been undertaken by Robert A. Ross, a senior in the college, and the investigation into the combined rays of the two in the coloring cells of the body will be determined.
