the ordinary endemic diphtheria existing in Philadeliphia, but to the more violent form occurring from time to time in different places. Dr. Formad visited an infected town on Lake Michigan, where one-third of all the children in a marshy district died of the epidemic, and brought back with him specimens of the diphtheric virus, several of the false membranes which are invariably formed in the throats of affinited persons, and portions of their viscera. In all blood, said the professor, there are two kinds of corpuscles,—the red, or color giving, and the white. By careful study and experiments, both in human beings and the lower animals, it was found that this infinitesimal plant fastens upon the white corpuscles, and multiplies its cells, altering their character, until with the interior destroyed, they burst, and the plants, set loose in an irregular mass, separate and go off individually,
