A PRACTICAL S MI FOR THE PEOPLE

"SEED TIME AND HARVEST."

(By Rev. Stephen Paulson.) Whatsoever a man soweth that shall

Man has ever been encouraged in his sowing by the certainty of reaping. The hope of tomorrow's sheaves supports today's toilsome sowing. Even so certainty of victory has often won battles before they were fought. Armed with confidence patriots have beaten down stone walls with naked thought and the nerve out of the arm. The rumor of some calamity is nough to destroy enterprise. Men will not plow if warhorses are to trample down the ripe grain. Men will not build if the enemy are to warm their hands over the blazing rafters. Men Were They Put to Death

Omaha, Neb., May 7.—According to the story told by 0. K. Carr, a well known Omaha man who was through the San Francisco earthquake and firs 350 wounded and injured peon-le were holders and broken or burned limbs hall be given back.

on. Combination.

The child is a mirror which reflects every act done before it. You are careful to plant good seed in your field. Are you plant as careful to your to take great pains to remove weeds and brians from your garden. Are you willing to spend the same amount out traits from your garden. Are you willing to spend the same amount out traits from your garden. Are you willing to spend the same amount out traits from your garden. Are you willing to spend the in the sacetime of their lives. It is more than the same amount out traits from your can be same as the same and the same distorted mind and a sciented seven as some must carry a crooked body.

"Whatsoever a man soweth that, shall he also reap." We stand here face to face with an infallible law. The young man sows his "wild onts" and thinks that somehow he is going to escape the harvest. But it will come. From time immemorial we have had to reap the result of our deeds and no exception will be made in your case. If we had keener sight we might see that many things which we call "misfortunes" in our lives and the lives of others, are simply the results of the principle that what a man sows that he reaps.

In conclusion let me say that man by his sowing determines what God shall be to him. Give God your heart and He shall give you love tender as that of a mother. Give Him the publican's prayer, "God be merciful unto me, the sinner," and He shall give you mercy as wide as the sea. Give to His little ones even a cup of cold water in His pame and He shall give you to drink of the water of the Rheumatism

In its is a universal principle. Drag on plank to the stream and you have only a narrow and frail bridge by across it. Give deep thought to steel to be the cables and stone buttresses and you have only a narrow and frail bridge which spans the flood and carries thousands of people. Bury your one talent, and one talent shall be yours to the end of time. Invest your talent for God and humanity, and it shall be doubled in the using. Give kindness and hospitality and generosity to your fellow men, and shaken together shall men give into your bosom."

We have then mentioned two elements of the principle of sowing and reaping—the element of proportion between the investment and the return. There is a third element which lies on the surface of our text, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." If you sow tareseed you will reap wheat; if you sow there seed you will reap wheat; if you sow there seed you will reap wheat; if you sow there seed you will reap wheat; if you sow there is or the wind the shall he also reap." If you sow there is one of the principles of the principle of the principle that and not something else.

Every day men are sowing and reaping. We are reaping the fruit and we are sowing for future harvests. But it takes so long to appreciate the principle that we shall reap what we sow; that if we sow the wind, we shall reap the whirlwind; if we sow to the spirit we shall reap a spiritual harvest.

Childhood and youth are the spring-time of life. In a child, parents have virgin soil in which to plant for time and eternity. The child is open to every impression, eager for every new experience, drinks in every word spoken; The child is a mirror which the stream of the control of the child is a mirror which the stream of the control of the child is a mirror which the stream of the control of the limbs, which keep up a constant jerking and twitching. There is only one way to cure this trouble—through the blood which feeds and strengthens the nerves. And Dr. Williams' Pink lills are the only medicine that can be entitled to whatever they carn by their hands or ability, but not by any methods approaching what is falte has been called legal homesty instead of thical honesty. Man need the trouble through the reverse cry out. Sometimes the trouble troop the nerves and what we call "being run down." In other cases St. Vitus dance is the result, and the suffered frequently loses all control of the limbs, which keep up a constant jerking and twitching. There is only one way to cure this trouble—through the blood which feeds and strengthens the nerves. And Dr. Williams' Pink lills are the only medicine that is a disease that is becoming more and more frequent among school children. Young people the trouble the nerves with study and the nerves with study and the nerves cry out. OUR ONE MINUTE SERMON

In a little graveyard in a quiet New In a little graveyard in a quiet New England village stands an unpreten-tious monument on which is inscribed the epitaph: "He had his faults, but was honest." Surrounding his tomb-stone are big shafts of granite of others whose wealth enabled those left behind to erect stones in memory of the dead, but the unpretentious monu-ment referred to was hought and would result, if because of ms own sympathies and convictions, he gave a pledge regarding the time and method of achieving the object they had in view. No party or government was entirely united on this subject. He warned the women against indiscreet action which he said probably would check the flowing tide, and advised them to leave the matter contidently to the growing strength of their case. The premier wound up his remarks with saying that he believed it would not be "many years" before the desired change was brought about. This reference to "years" hes met with hissing from the members of the deputation, who left the foreign office greatly dissatisfied.

The arrival of the deputation at the foreign office of women from various localities, marching with banners flying and bands playing to the Victoria embankment, whence accompanied by an interested crowd of onlookers, the women marched to the foreign office.
