A Paper for
Farmers and Stockmen

I have had several opportunities of sitting behind Canadian horses, and have always found them good horses, showing excellent quality and speed. There is an inclination on the part of the gentlemen in England to buy Canadian horses for smart carriage work. I know of several friends of mine who have done so. They are no doubt influenced a good deal by the tremendously high prices the London dealers ask for carriage horses. Still, it is also fair to say that the general soundness and excellence of imported Canadian horses has a good deal to do with it.—LORD MINTO.
