

from all members of Parliament working together for the betterment of Canadians.

• (1740)

As individuals of Parliament, I encourage this action of all members on both sides of the House. I pledge my support for every positive action that is suggested by members of Parliament in order that it provide for a more prosperous and united Canada.

I suggest that we get serious about Canada. Let us work together to demonstrate leadership for this country, the kind of leadership that it takes to give us the good things this country has. For it is leadership that is welcomed with prosperity, and it is turmoil that is rewarded with disdain.

The Speech from the Throne has provided Canadians with a direction, focusing on working together. This country that touches three oceans can develop into an economic power that is the envy of the world's industrialized nations.

Mr. Speaker, we have the resources. We have the energy. We have the technology. We have the leadership and, by God, we have each other.

Some hon. members: Hear, hear.

Mr. Schneider: There is truly so much more Canada can be. We need only apply that with which we are blessed. I am, therefore, truly honoured to second the motion by my hon. colleague from Saint-Maurice.

Speech From the Throne

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Some hon. members: Hear, hear.
