Col. Roosevelt Declares U. S. Should Raise Five Million Men for War.

New York, May 7.—Frusian frightfulness was denuded, and the determination of America to wipe it out was emphasized at a Lusitania memorial mass meeting at Carnegie Hall tonight, under the auspices of the American Defense Society and the American Rights League. The speakers were Theodore Roosevelt and Senator Robert L. Owen, of Oklahoma.

Colonel Roosevelt was greeted with applause which was not stilled until the National Anthem had been sung by the great audience.

"Three years ago today," he said, "the Lusitania was sunk. I wish that every flag in this city should be at half-mast today, and that this should be a penitential day forever for America. When the Lusitania was sunk we still failed to prepare, and the fact that we thus failed, the fact that we failed to get, showed that our unpreparedness was as profound in the soul as in the body. We suffered from spiritual no less than from physical unpreparedness. Thank, and humbly thank, our God that at last our people have wakened. It was the eleventh hour, but it was not the twelfth.

"We Americans had the right to feel satisfied until we have in France so many million fighting men that the strain will have been taken off the French and the British armies and the American army. We deserve to bear it. I hope to see immediately provision made for an army of five million men, and at the same time tell the war department that if they need them, another five million men can be had, too."

BOTH PENSIONERS
SUFFER FROM WAR

Cols. Labatt and Bradbury Sustain Disabilities, Committee Hears.

Ottawa, May 7.—Evidence regarding the pensions awarded Col. Labatt and Col. (Ret.) Bradbury was given at the meeting of the pensions committee today. The cases were brought up as a result of charges of discrimination in regard to officers' pensions against men made at previous sittings by representatives of the Great War Veterans' Association.

Col. Bolton produced statements of the medical board, which examined the two colonels, and it was shown that Col. Labatt was suffering from heart trouble resulting from his participation in the war and is in receipt of a total disability pension.

Evidence submitted regarding Col. Bradbury's case showed that medical boards had decided that 50 per cent of his disability was due to service at the front and pension was awarded accordingly. A private medical board in Montreal, however, had submitted that his disability should be placed at 80 per cent.

It was pointed out that the amount of pension awarded a man is determined by his capacity to earn a living on the general labor market. No attention is paid to the man's ability before the war.

The opinion was expressed by some members that Colonel Labatt, while occupying a lucrative position under the government, should not continue to draw a total disability pension.

FRENCH BEAT ATTACK

NEAR PEAK IN ALSACE

Paris, May 7.—The war office communication issued this morning says: "There has been marked activity by both armies on the front of Hallies-Villers-Bretonneux (Amiens) sector."

An enemy surprise attack to the south of Hartmannsweilerkopf (Alsace), failed.

"During May 6 four German airplanes were brought down during an aerial fight. Ten others were sent down damaged, within their own lines. During the same day our bombing machines dropped four thousand kilos (8,666 pounds) of projectiles on the stations of Fluville, Martel, Merreuil, Ham, Guiscard, Noyon, and Verdun.

"The army of the East, May 6.—The artillery has been active on the entire front. Enemy detachments attempted attacks at various points of the allied line but were repulsed."

WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN.

Sarnia Will Try to Raise $70,000 in One Day for Patriotic Uses.

Sarnia, May 7.—A mass meeting has been called for Friday evening, when arrangements will be completed for a one-day patriotic drive early in June. It is planned to raise $70,000 by a whirlwind canvass, and this sum will be divided among all the patriotic bodies for the year's work. It is planned to have the Duke of Devonshire give an address in connection with the matter when he visits Sarnia.

Lord Northcliffe
Says:

"I do not think the war can be fought without the Y. M. C. A." He means that the morale of the men might collapse were it not for the ministry of the Young Men's Christian Association. And Lord Northcliffe is right.

It may be that one of the explanations of the superior morale of our men—those of the Bulldog breed—is that they know what liberty is and have been improved in manhood by their liberty under liberal institutions.

Yet beyond this is the fact that our boys are kept heartened and fit by the ministry of the Young Men's Christian Association. The canteen service, the social and religious meetings in the huts, the athletic games, the provision made for letter-writing, the educational classes, the entertainments, and the general knowledge that they are esteemed and being cared for, gives our men that stamina of mind and body and heart that makes them endure in battle and all through.

So when you give money to enable the Y. M. C. A. to maintain and extend its service, you are really contributing to the forces that we rely on for final victory. Also every gift helps to bring the war to a speedier close, and our boys back to us the earlier. So give all you can when you are called on by the representatives of

THAN LITTLE SIN

Private Peat Gives Intimate Talk on Experiences in Trenches.

"It seemed to us fellows 'out there' that the Great God still lives, and when the historian writes the story of the war I hope he will not say the falsest thing of human lives. In conclusion he told them that the war would do all the boys good, as war was the best university. 'It is the only university where a man learns to understand his fellow man as he should do.'"

Thru the permission of Col. Bickford, Toronto district commandant, the funeral of the late Charles D. Wilson, the Toronto veteran of the Crimea and Indian Mutiny campaigns, will be attended with full military honors. The regulations only provide for military funerals in the case of soldiers who are on active service, but an exception is being made in the case of the late Mr. Wilson, because of his notable military career, and the fact that the military funeral was the wish of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association, of which Mr. Wilson was a member.

The late Charles D. Wilson, who died on Sunday, in his 51st year, enlisted when a lad of 17, in the 42nd Highlanders, Black Watch, going at once on the life of the men, and their associations. He pointed out that it was possible the war might last another five years and that the number of men already fallen might be lost. "But even suppose that does happen," he told them, "it is better than being killed by a low-down damnable, contemptible thing of a Hun."

He spoke of the necessities wanted out there and said what was most needed was letters from home. "I needed letters from home, and if you write to me about it, then I am sure God will forgive that lie." He said a lot of mothers worried about their boys and if the average narrow-minded man was to take a trip thru the trenches he might come back and say every man had a straight ticket thru to hell. "Over there because the work makes us rough, and we have to go months and years without looking at the faces of our women with their refined influences. We do swear, but don't worry, mothers; we all go the same way, and you would do the same yourselves if you were there. I have seen men die awfully, but not a fellow who believed that because that man died. He went to hell, for look down deep into his heart where the Great God looks and there will be the ardor and love for some dear one for whom he was perfectly willing to die so that they might be safe, and we believe the sacrifice is a little better than hell."

He stated that he never saw a soldier deliberately do a selfish thing to another soldier, and was of the opinion that the war would draw all the falsest things out of human lives.

WOMEN HEAR LECTURE

ON STOCKS AND BONDS

F. J. Coombs delivered a lecture before a meeting of the Canadian Business Women's Club, last night, on the subject of stocks and bonds. A bond was defined as an instrument on which a government or municipality agrees to pay a dividend at a fixed rate. There are five kinds of bonds: government, municipal, railroad, public utility and industrial. Bonds are paid by money raised by taxes.

Mr. Coombs differentiated between a shareholder and a bondholder. A shareholder is a partner in a company. A bondholder merely lends money. However, the bondholder receives the preference when dividends are being paid.

The speaker's parting warning was: Before you invest your hard-earned savings be sure to consult your banker or broker.

DISTRICT TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL
FAVORS ARBITRATION

Unanimous in Protest Against Board of Control Ignoring Suggestion.

SUPPORT CIVIC MEN

Will Ask Minister of Labor to Order Arbitration of Differences.

The specially convened session of the District Trades and Labor Council, held last night at the Labor Temple, unanimously passed a resolution placing itself on record as protesting against the recent action of the board of control in refusing to appoint a member to the board of conciliation suggested by the Civic Employees' Union, to adjust the differences between themselves and the city. The resolution also called for another request to the minister of labor to order the appointment of such a board, this order to be again presented for the consideration of the Toronto Board of Control. Failing compliance on the part of the board, the employees might, the resolution read, be forced to take the most serious measures to force their demands, but as they desire to abide by the most peaceful means of solving the difficulty, Controller Robbins and Ald. Gibbons were present, and Controller Maguire would have been present, but was unable to attend. All three of these members of the city council favor the attitude of the employees, and Mayor Church wrote to the labor council to the same effect. More than 400 were present at the meeting, which was orderly.

T. A. Stevenson, secretary of the labor council, traced the history of the troubles between the employees and the city, pointing out that they had originally asked for a raise of $4 a week, and failing to receive consideration on this point had reduced the amount demanded to $2 a week, to be made retroactive to Jan. 1. The city council had refused to make the increase retroactive, and the representatives of the men had tried to approach the board of control to request an appointee from that body to a board of conciliation. The board of control had refused to hear the deputation, and had also refused to make the appointment. Mr. Stevenson had asked the minister of labor to order the appointment of such a board. The minister of labor had written to the city council, asking that it appoint a member to the proposed board of conciliation. In reply, the city solicitor had written to say that it was questionable whether the city came under the rulings of the Industrial Disputes Act, being a corporation, and therefore not liable.

"I want to remind you people," said Mr. Stevenson, "that we do not believe in the policy of strikes at this juncture, but when the board of control refuses to receive our deputations and refuses to grant us a board of conciliation, we must do something. I was surprised to note that there was a lack of discussion when the matter of estimates came up before the board, as affecting the civic employees, W. J. Kennedy, president of the Civic Employees' Union, openly accused Mayor Church of going back on his own promises of a few months ago."

"Who has he done this?" said the speaker. "I can tell you. Because he believes there are higher influences than that of the workingman. The heads of the departments have ignored the fact that the civic employees still have the fighting spirit within us. This question is as important to the City of Toronto as to us. There are some very important questions at stake. The city council has answered tonight."

C. J. Mitchell said the union represented every section among the employees of the city. The three aldermen for Ward I had voted against the interests of the union.

Controller Robbins spoke as the member of the council board who had stood by the civic employees thru thick and thin. He had moved that the increases be dated from January 1. It had been lost in the city council by a close margin. If it was the right thing to grant increases retroactive to January 1 to policemen it was certainly proper to do so with other city employees. Municipal employees had been granted boards of conciliation ere this, and the controller believed the civic employees would be within their rights in doing the same thing. He concluded with the statement that he was present representing himself and no one else.

T. A. Stevenson read a telegram from H. A. Acland, deputy minister of labor, to the effect that the validity of the appointment of a board of conciliation was in doubt because the city, as a corporation, could refuse to be a party to the appointment.
