Died Last Night at 8 o'clock
After Brief Illness From Attack of Influenza Which Seized
Him Last Saturday in Guelph.

Yesterday night at 8 o'clock the Rev. William Caven, D.D., principal of Knox (Presbyterian) College, in Guelph, died after an illness of exactly one week's duration. On Friday last he attended a meeting at Guelph, Ont., where he delivered an address of two hours' duration. While there he contracted influenza, which caused his death. The principal was approaching his 74th birthday, having been born on Dec. 28, 1830, and had therefore exceeded the usual limit, but his age was not deemed his fault. He was a man of unusual energy, and in a manner unexpected, and will come with a shock to the minds of those who knew him. He was in the prime of life when he was called to the principalship of Knox College, Guelph, in 1887. PRINCIPAL GORDON'S TRIBUTE.

Kingston, Dec. 1.—(Special).—Principal Gordon of Queen's University was informed by The World tonight of the death of Dr. Caven and gave the following message: "The death of Principal Caven is a serious loss not only to the Presbyterian Church, with which he was so closely identified, but to the country at large, in the college of which he was for so many years the honored head, his removal leaves a blank which it will be peculiarly difficult to fill. As a teacher he enjoyed in an eminent degree the loving esteem of his students, for they trusted him as one who, while conservative in his thought, was ever ready to welcome truth, clear in his views and candid in the statement of them. "As a leader in the Presbyterian Church he was singularly wise in counsel and persuasive in argument. His unswerving love of justice and his clearness of vision commanded the confidence of his brethren, while his gentle and amiable disposition won for him their devoted affection. Not only did the Presbyterian Church in Canada delight to honor him, but he was recently president of the Alliance of Reform Churches holding the Presbyterian system. His interest in matters affecting the general life and welfare of the public was shown in many ways, markedly in his advocacy of the better observance of the Lord's Day and in his wise and weighty counsels in the cause of temperance. "Eighteen months ago his life was despaired of, but he rallied from the sickness which then prostrated him, and of late he was able to take on his familiar duties. Now he has been released from his labor, yet the memory of his character and life shall remain as a treasure and an inspiration to all who had the privilege of his acquaintance."

Endeared to All He Knew His Death a Nation's Loss

Leading Representatives of Presbyterian and Other Denominations Unite in Saddened Appreciation of Personal, Religious and Public Qualities of Late Principal Caven.

The announcement of the death of Principal Caven was received with general and genuine regret by leading educational and clerical members of the several denominations in the city. There was a singular unanimity of opinion voiced as to the qualities which combined to render the deceased not only a foremost figure in the religious work of the country at large, but also endeared to all who knew him. His life was a life of service, and his death a loss to the church and to the public.

REV. DR. WARDEN, clerk of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, has been associated with the deceased principal for many years and speaks of him as a man of unusual energy, and in a manner unexpected, and will come with a shock to the minds of those who knew him. He was in the prime of life when he was called to the principalship of Knox College, Guelph, in 1887.

William Caven, the future principal, began his education under his father, the Rev. John Caven, by profession a schoolmaster, was a man of exceptional ability and attainments and a member of the United Sessions Church, which, in 1840, united with the Relief Church, to form the United Presbyterian Church, which in its turn united with the Free Church to form the present United Free Church of Scotland. John Caven left Wiltshire for Canada in 1847, first residing at Galt, Ont., and then removing southwards to the neighborhood of St. Mary's, where he resided till his death, in 1880.

During 1855-6 he spent a year in Scotland for the benefit of his health, still retaining his charge, and in 1865 he was appointed him to the position of Professor of Theology and Biblical Criticism at Knox College, Guelph. He was made permanent professor and commenced his long period of devoted service to Knox College in 1870, on the resignation of Dr. Willis, his official title being that of principal. He was elected to the position in 1870, on the resignation of Dr. Willis, his official title being that of principal. He was elected to the position in 1870, on the resignation of Dr. Willis, his official title being that of principal.

Principal Caven came of a long-lived race, his mother having died within the last two years. He was a man of unusual energy, and in a manner unexpected, and will come with a shock to the minds of those who knew him. He was in the prime of life when he was called to the principalship of Knox College, Guelph, in 1887.

AN EX-PUPIL'S TRIBUTE.

Rev. J. R. Fasken, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Toronto, speaking as a graduate of Knox College, and one who had studied under Principal Caven, said: "It is exceedingly difficult for me to select any outstanding characteristics of my outstanding teacher. His bearing to students was marked by an unobtrusive penetration. He did not pierce his man; he simply knew him. He was exceedingly kind, even to tenderness; one felt that in his gentleness lay his strength. He called the value of his things not at all, but at the end of the day he believed that light from every direction would make plainer the Truth."

CHARGES AGAINST SHIBLEY

Daniel Graves a Hotel Keeper of Harrowsmith Claims That Late Liberal Candidate in Frontenac is a Forger.

Kingston, Dec. 1.—(Special).—When W. J. Shibley, Liberal candidate for Frontenac at the last Dominion election, brought in bogus ballot boxes and then fled to the States, he seemed to have provided for himself a retreat safe from the arm of Canadian justice, for a bogus box manipulator commits a political crime and is free from the risk of extradition, but when a man commits a forgery in Canada and flees across the border, his journey may just begin, and so W. J. Shibley will probably find, all heard with surprise, and many friends with pain, the new developments. He was known to be in financial straits for many months past, but none thought he would try to bolster up his position by heading off a charge against a widow and a poor abiding man.

THE CHARGES ARE.

The charges now publicly made are these:

Forging Daniel Graves' name to a note for $50.

Accepting $15 from Alfred Cowdrey in payment of a note which he himself had discounted at the bank.

Failing to pay a note for $10 given to a Prince Edward County farmer.

Investigation at Harrowsmith has just established the truth of the rumors of two days past.

A representative of The World went out there and approached E. Daniel Graves, a hotelkeeper, and after some hesitation he told this story of his neighbor's downfall.

Shibley frequently borrowed money from me, and I had confidence in him, but a short time ago I met Mr. Basshaw, manager of the newly-established Union Bank at Sydneyham, and he told me that a note for $50, signed by me in the name of Shibley, had been cashed. I protested that I had not given him my name. When I saw the note I declared it was a forgery. Shibley's signature was "D. Graves," while I always write my full name and the D. and G. were different from mine. So I refused to pay. The manager threatened to put the bill in my hotel, but I didn't bother. Soon after I learned from the bank that the amount had been paid by Shibley's family. By this time he had skipped out.

Case of Cowdrey.

Another case was mentioned by several of the villagers, that of Alfred Cowdrey, a hard working man. He lives several miles out and could not be seen. His case was vouched for by several reliable people. He had borrowed $15 from Shibley and given him the note. He afterward paid the money and asked for the note, but Shibley made some excuse for not returning it. After he disappeared the note became due and the bank held Cowdrey responsible. Shibley had discounted it and taken Cowdrey's money, too.

There was a suspicion of forgery in Shibley's money, too.

WITHOUT PAYING DUTY.

Result of Mr. Dryden Meeting U.S. Minister Wilson.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—(Special).—This was "Railroad" day at the Fat Stock Show and was attended by a large crowd, almost as large as that present yesterday. It is said that never before in the history of the stock yards have there been so many prominent stock breeders present. The most notable feature of the day was the meeting of Hon. John Dryden, minister of agriculture of Ontario, and Secretary of Agriculture Wilson. One result of this meeting, it is said, probably will be legislation to enable Canadian stock breeders to bring exhibits to the United States without payment of duty.

THE CANADIAN SQUIRREL.

The squirrel is a little fur, this is a favorite for style and color. Nearly the year round its color is a rich brown, with pure white.

The squirrel is generally hunted with wire trap cages so as not to injure the skins. The reason for trap hunting is limited to the fact that the squirrel is a pest to the farmer and the hunter. Squirrels pilfer direct from the trappers and make them up on the premises into fur lined jackets, coats, scarfs and all suitable garments. The W. and D. Dineen Company, corner Yonge and Temperance streets.
