CONTINUES PUBLIC SPEAKING COURSE

Rev. J. S. Bonnell Addresses
Young Men's Club—Exercises Uses

The Young Men's Club of St. Andrew's Kirk met last evening with Kenneth Steele in the chair. J. D. Robertson reported for the program committee, and programs for the balance of the year were distributed. For ushering at the church the names of volunteers were taken.

Rev. J. S. Bonnell resumed his address in the public speaking course. He illustrated the correct position in the public speaking course. He showed how most effectively to employ gesture. He said the effect of many an otherwise good speech had been spoiled by the speaker standing in a lolling position.

Exercises were read by members of the group to show the correct methods of breathing while delivering an address.

The speaker stressed three essentials: First, mental discipline, second, vocalization, third, practice. In enlarging upon the first he offered suggestions as to how the members of the club could improve their powers of concentration, and of original thought.

The class then gave themselves to an analysis of a two minute toast on the subject of Benjamin Franklin. A booklet outlining was written on the blackboard and worked out from suggestions by members of the club.
