

URGES SCOUTS
TO BEST WORK AS AUTUMN BEGINS

Dr. G. B. Peat, District Commissioner, issues Call of Encouragement

ACTIVITIES OF TROOPS RESUMED

Reports Recall Good Camp Days and Tell of Winter Plans

With the beginning of the autumn activities of the Boy Scouts in Saint John, Dr. G. B. Peat, District Commissioner, issues the following rally call:

"Now that the fall has started, we can look forward to a new year of scouting, and I feel sure that it will be another good one—in fact I hope that it will be the best ever. There are several reasons why I hope so. In the first place, more scoutmasters have taken special instruction than ever before, so this means that they can give you a better idea of scouting than ever, as every one of them is full of ideas of how to build up the scouts and improve things. We can be certain that a good deal of good work is going to be done. In the second place, most of the troops that have held summer camps have done far more real scout work than formerly, and now know just what they need to take up for the winter. In the third place, some of the troops have been to earnest in their scout spirit so well that it is going to be a fine example to the others. It is going to take some lively stepping out for you to keep the pace they have set."

MUCH TO BE DONE
There is lots for you to do this year. Make yourselves known. Get out and hustle. Show everybody that you are out to mean business. Help somebody out somehow. Remember that people have been exceedingly good to us, and it is decidedly up to us to show them that they are getting full value, and a bit over for their outlay. We have all got to make scouting go, and we are going to get exactly what we earn. If we don't make good we'll get exactly what we deserve.

REPORTS FROM TROOPS
St. Jude's No. 5 is now under way again after a very successful summer. We regret that our S. M., Harry Fowler, has gone to the United States to live, but we are glad that before he went he succeeded in getting a very fine man, T. A. Linton, to take his place. Our first Council Circle with our new S. M. present proved a great success.
TRINITY NO. 17
We spent a very pleasant and successful two weeks at camp this year. Allan Gard, a former member, visited us for a time and acted in the capacity of A. S. M. The Cubs spent the last week in camp with us, and made a very creditable showing. On the way home many boys uttered words similar to these: "I'll be glad to get home, but gee, I hope there will be another camp next year!"
ST. JAMES NO. 19
Our troop camped at Crystal Beach this year. Nine scouts had a very fine time with Le L. Johnson in charge and J. J. Legate assisting him. Each day a new patrol leader was appointed for each patrol and a flag was awarded daily to the leader of the patrol with the highest total of points for the day's competition of games, tests, etc., while the troop flag was awarded each morning at flag break to the patrol with the best all round tent at morning inspection. The people at the neighboring farm houses and summer houses treated us excellently.
YOUNG JUDEANS, No. 12 and 13—(Preventing scouts) All set for a "bang up" season. Our troops put in an active summer of scouting, with a couple of good hikes to Dark Lake, and finished up with a wonderful week at Mathers' Beach, Long Island. Our camp was a huge success. We had 20 boys, divided into three patrols. Our S. M. took the Gilwell Course this summer. The health of our camp was good, and our fellows gained all the way from two to six pounds in weight. A hearty invitation to return next summer, from the owner of the grounds speaks for itself. We did as scouts should do, cleaned the grounds, filled the pits, removed large stones, and generally improved the appearance of the entire camp site.
ST. GEORGE'S, No. 21—We began our first meeting on Sept. 26, and it was a "bumbling." We intend to make this year our best. You talk about a camp. Say! Ours was perfect, and then some. Our A. S. M., Don Colwell, told us about his training at Gilwell Camp. After a jolly good holiday we are settling down to work, and if you want to see us, just stroll over to West Saint John any Wednesday evening.
SUNRISE TROOP, No. 4, B. I. H.
—On September 23 we started in our regular meetings in good shape. It was announced that a prize will be given by the scoutmaster to the boy who beats lives up to his scout promise and law. As the troop leader and patrol leaders are not allowed to compete for this prize, our assistant scoutmaster, Mr. Wiley, has promised a special prize to the patrol leader who does his work best. On the 30th we invested five new scouts. Last Saturday we went on a hike to West Saint John. Mr. Parker, our superintendent, chairman of our troop committee.
ST. JAMES' PACK, No. 19—Our meetings started on September 13. Since then we have been very busy reorganizing the pack into four sixes

NEW SCHOOL IS TO BE ROOFED IN BY TONIGHT

Vocational Structure Ready for Plastering Early Next Week

WORKMEN EMPLOYED
ON JOB NUMBER 135

Work Well Along on Contract Time After Six Months

The Saint John Vocational School in Douglas avenue will be roofed over by tonight and plastering will commence on Monday or Tuesday. It is a little less than six months since the construction was commenced, and it has gone forward with great speed and scrupulous attention to every detail. There are now 135 men employed there and everything is well forward, according to the contract. George P. Hennessey, supervisor of the work in the interests of the Vocational committee, yesterday showed a reporter the features of special interest. The site of unrivaled beauty is being made still more imposing with its double terraces and three flights of granite steps. The architectural design of the exterior is most imposing. New Brunswick materials are used wherever possible and the red brick structure with symmetrical rows of large mullioned windows has on the facade 12 towering pilasters of Miramichi sandstone.

IONIC DOORWAY.
It is in Renaissance style and the pilasters and doorway are Ionic. The carving of the capitals on the pilasters has just begun and it is done after the stone is in place in order to obviate the possibility of damage to the carved stone while in transit.

The frontage is 267 feet and the auditorium and shoproom wings extend back about 165 feet. The site and the structure of the building permit of the direction of a third wing to the rear if it should be desired later. The main entrance gives access to the first floor and leads directly into the auditorium which has a seating capacity of 800 including the capacity of the gallery. The gymnasium which is of regulation size forms the stage of the auditorium. While the gymnasium can be shut off from the auditorium with folding doors it can also be used to seat the pupils of the school when it is desired to have a large assemblage and the auditorium is required for the general public.

There are three entrances to the auditorium from the main corridor and two cells in the rear. There is an orchestra pit in front of the stage. The gymnasium will be wainscoted to a height of eight feet and has superior room and apparatus rooms opening off it.

LONG CORRIDOR.
The main corridors run the entire length of the building on each of the three stories and at either end of the corridors are the fire-proof stairways which can be shut off from the rest of the building in case of fire. The floors of the corridors will be tiled and along one wall there will be steel lockers and display cases.

On the main floor to the north of the entrance which will have marble stairs in the interior, are the general office, the principal's office, the large vaulted records, library or board room which is to have a fire place with oak mantel and will be finished in oak, and opening from the library by two doors is another room which can be used as a lecture room or extension to the library. Another large class room is situated at the north east corner and adjoins the male teacher's room. The shoproom extends to the rear from the north end of the building and is made on the lines of modern factory construction so as to give the maximum of light. Slabs are used in the reinforced concrete work of the shop room which has concrete pillars supporting the ceiling.

CLASS ROOMS.
To the south of the main entrance on the first floor are the class rooms for the commercial course including those for business practice bookkeeping, shorthand and typewriting. The typewriting room is in the south east corner and its walls are constructed with the special object of deadening the sound and preventing the noise of the machines disturbing nearby classes. The women teachers' room adjoins.

On the second floor to the south are the home economics class rooms including laundry, sewing room and cooking laboratory, a model flat, a four unit kitchen where electric, oil, coal and gas cooking stoves are to be installed one in each unit. Going north on the corridor of the second floor there are the dressmaking and millinery rooms and the physics and chemistry laboratories with preparation rooms. The workshop wing does not reach to the second story and at present it is possible to walk out on its roof and admire a view of marvelous beauty in the rear of the school.

GROUND FLOOR.
On the ground floor of the building, for there is no basement, there are found the class room for architectural drawing, mechanical drawing, darning and the rooms which will probably be used for night classes. Underneath the main entrance stairs there is a battery room on the ground floor and adjoining are two cloak rooms for night pupils with compact store rooms above the cloak rooms.

On the ground floor of the shoproom wing will be located the motor mechanics section for which a special floor has been installed, the machine shop, woodworking shops and construction room. Saws and shavings will be installed.

Beneath the auditorium on the ground floor are two class rooms on one side of a corridor with the cafeteria kitchen and store room on the other side and towards the rear of the wing and beneath the gymnasium are the shower baths for the boys and for the girls with supervisors rooms and the large ball which can be utilized as a swimming pool.

Weddings

Stickles-Smith.
WOODSTOCK, Oct. 1—A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Luke's Episcopal church Wednesday at 1:30 o'clock in the presence of a number of guests and friends of the bride and groom, when Miss Grace Robinson Smith, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Smith, was united in marriage to Mr. Andrew Gordon Stickles, of North Devon. The bridal party entered the church while the choir sang "The Voice that Breathed O'er Eden," the bride leaning on the arm of her father. Border Police Hold Up Liquor Influx

WINNIPEG, Oct. 2—Liquor with a valuation of $180,000 has been prevented from reaching its intended destination in the United States during the last three months through the operations of the border police stationed along the Manitoba boundary in Minnesota and North Dakota, according to members of the force.

They said that 80 rum-runners had been taken into custody together with nearly that number of cars. The liquor, it is alleged, came from the direction of Winnipeg, and 18,000 quarts have been seized at the border points since June 1. Automobiles seized carrying liquor are estimated to be worth $150,000.

Forty of the alleged rum-runners taken during the summer will be arraigned before the federal grand jury when that body meets in Fargo, N. D.

Needles and Pin Are Found In Stomach

LONDON, Oct. 2—Two needles and a pin were found in the stomach of Mrs. Anne Denenberg, of Berners street, who was fatally burned when she was scalded by a hot liquid when she was eating fish. The needles and pin had apparently lodged there for some time.

The husband said, at an inquest, that his wife had not done any sewing, beyond stitching on a button occasionally, for 25 years, and he was not aware that she was in the habit of putting either pins or needles in her mouth.

The coroner said that the articles were in no way responsible for death.
