THE RICHEST
YOUNG WOMAN IN THE WORLD
His Daughter, Aged 22 Years, Heiress to Andrew Carnegies Millions
Interested in Charities—She is Wife of Young American Naval Officer—Her Father Believed to Have Left a Fortune of $500,000,000 Heiress to the Carnegie millions is his only daughter, Margaret, since April 23 Mrs. Roosevelt Miller.

"The richest heiress in the world" has been the easy expression most people have referred to in speaking of writing about her.
In 1907 there was as much concern occasioned by her falling and injuring her ankle, as there were remarks made about her being the "luckiest girl in the world" when in 1902 her father presented to her a $2,000,000 palace in New York as a Christmas present.
When Mr. Carnegie's six-year-old daughter was brought in to see the king on the occasion of the king's visit to Sikibo Castle, His Majesty asked the child for a kiss.

She complied readily and then invited the king to go to the nursery to see her doll. King Edward laughingly accepted the invitation and visited the nursery.
Miss Carnegie was graduated on May 27, 1916, from Miss Spence's school, 26 West 56th street, New York, and in December of the same year she was introduced to society at the Carnegie home, East 91st street. Her coming out was one of the most elaborate social affairs that had ever taken place. Guests attended from all parts of the United States as well as from England and France.
After her introduction to society, Miss Carnegie was prominent in the younger set, but gave much time to philanthropic work. When the United States entered the war she also devoted a great deal of attention to war work in addition to her local charitable efforts.
It was said that when the girl was twelve years old she first began to interest herself in Pittsburgh charities and it is believed that her father since trained her to carry out his scheme of benefactions.
She and Ensign Miller met for the first time at a social affair at the latter's home. Their wedding on April 23 was the last social affair Mr. Carnegie attended in New York. She is twenty-two years old and her husband is twenty-four.
Ensign Miller, son of an ex-president of the Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, who died in 1918, had not completed his college course when war was declared.
In 1916 he left Stevens Institute in Hoboken, where he was taking a course in civil engineering to drive an ambulance in France, and when the United States became involved entered the navy.
Wealth Put at $500,000,000.
Estimates of Mr. Carnegie's wealth put it at $500,000,000. When he died in 1919 he left in 1901 he sold his securities of the Carnegie Steel Corporation for $308,450,000 in bonds of that company. He was possessed of large interests in addition to those bonds. When he started in 1901 to endow his great benefactions he made broad gifts to his capital for several years in gifts to libraries for peace propaganda, and to other philanthropic causes.
The fortune of $308,450,000 in 5 per cent. bonds if allowed to increase by the accumulation of interest and reinvestment since 1901 would amount to about $1,000,000,000 today, but his numerous benefactions prevented this. According to financial authorities, however, the ironmaster's ambition to die poor was

SERVANT PROBLEM SOLVED Dinner Ready for the Table a New Activity of the U. S. Government The maid may depart at a minute's notice, and her mistress, if she lives in Buffalo, will experience no sinking of the heart, for she can order meals for her family from the cooked-food centre, and the family machinery will run as if there had been no interruption. The Buffalo food centre is under the supervision of the home demonstration agent of the Department of Agriculture and the Buffalo Home Bureau. Complete meals are sent out from it to be served in the individual homes. Its patrons have the family life that centres around the home dining-room table with the saving of fuel, labor, and food costs which come through large scale operations.

The work in Buffalo started in a small way, but a few weeks' experience has shown that the equipment was inadequate to handle the business that immediately developed. The cooking of meals was discontinued until alterations could be made, and on June 17 the centre was ready to handle business on a large scale.
Two hundred people came the first day, and the regular orders for dinners and luncheons continue to grow. The menus are prepared under the supervision of the home demonstration agent, so that they represent balanced meals. These menus are distributed to the patrons one week in advance, and the orders are returned to the kitchen several days in advance of the delivery of the meals. In this way materials may be ordered when they can be secured at the lowest possible figure.

Special features of the service include the Thursday night dinner, which is in great demand by those fortunate housekeepers who have made to whom they give a half holiday Thursdays. Many housekeepers also order the Sunday free dinner, because it gives them a day free from preparing meals. Food for the sick is a feature of the work in which the physicians are greatly interested.
Special diets for special diseases are recommended by the home demonstration agent and this food can be procured at the cooked-food centre on special orders.
