RISING PRICES IN FRANCE. Good Taxes Grievance in the Republic With Everyone. The dear food crisis in France is beoming more serious every day (writes Chronicle), and the increase in the price is alarming. Shopkeepers, wine merchants, and restaurant proprietors, proprietors and wine merchants. It not to squeeze the consumer too suddenly at the outset, the price of wines was raised 10 centimes per litre. Altogether it is a poor outlook for the already heavily taxed Parisian, for the price of every article of food has gone Nearly every restaurant in the to 33 per cent. in its menu prices. A parliamentary commission, representing the Socialists, has already met to from this body will wait on the French alleviate the misery which is sure to fall on the poor workers. If the pre mier has no suggestion to make the deputation will go the length of urging that the government shall lower the
