David Blair, the examiner, on drawing has written to the Vancouver News-Advertiser expressing surprise at the lenient manner in which the school board dealt with Mr. Tom who, he said, had made the admission that of the drawings by his pupils had been ruled. As the subject bids fair to be a lively one, the letter is here published in full:

To the Editor of the News-Advertiser: Sir:-I was somewhat surprised at the tees of this city at their meeting last Fribooks sent in by Mr. Tom's pupils at the The action of the school board must strike any observant person as unbusinesslike. They had not even seen the books condemned by the board of examiners; they had heard only Mr. Tom's side of the question, and yet, in face of the fact that Mr. Tom made the damaging admission that some of the drawings were ruled, they passed a vote of confidence in him and dismissed the matter as too trivial to take up more of their valuable time. And they did this notwithstanding that the school board of Victoria had reported in the matter of Miss Cameron's pupils that the condemnation of their work was justified. One Vancouver trustee took occasion to indulge in sneering remarks regarding my work as examiner. Sneers, however, will not alter facts. Mr. Tom admits that six or seven out of of their model drawings. I have no hesitaion whatever in saying that when the trustees see the nineteen books they will find, as the Victoria trustees found, on pupils, a most disgraceful state of things. Nothing more extraordinary has come under my notice during the twenty-five years I have been engaged in this work than these books from the Strathcona school. It is hard to believe that Mr. Tom was ignorant regarding what was done by the nineteen pupils he was preparing for examination. He had been instructed on two former occasions regarding ruled work in model drawing, and I do not think it is fair

Notwithstanding this, together with the fact that teachers have had printed instructions on two former occasions that no ruling what-ever is allowed in this work, the model drawings of Mr. Jamieson's pupils done in the public attention, anything bearing the school under his direction and sent in at the last examination are practically all of interest. The following remarks of ruled; and this without any attempt to disguise the fact, as was done more or less ver, on Mr. Tom's case at the meeting skilfully by Mr. Tom's pupils.

DAVID BLAIR. Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 13th. 1905.

Who can foretell the end of the drawing marks upheaval? It is already being aired in the press, it is being discussed on the street corners and now there is a prospect of its precipitation into the arena of controversy on the public platform. This morning a petition was in circulation calling for a public meeting to be held to-morrow evening. If there is a sufficient number of signatures Mayor Barnard will have to sound the tocsin

GREGORY H. TOM.

There is certainly something brewing Victoria with regard to this question. On Friday evening a number of the examining board held a meeting which was altogether private. One prominent local educationist informed a Times reporter that no meeting was held, that the presence in the city of the examiners from Vancouver was merely a coincidence, and that the IS MAKING ROUNDS ON gathering was nothing more than a social seance. True, there might have been many of the elements of a social interchange in that session, but the writer will wager an A 1 John B. The superintendent of education told the Times to-day that the meeting was day dealt with the question of the drawing held, he left the inference that it had a bearing upon the drawing marks controversy, but he declined to satisfy the curiosity of the scribe by disclosing what had taken place or been decided upon. "It will all come out in good time" he said, and from these words the reporter extracted a few grains of comfort. There will be a meeting of the school oard this afternoon at 5 o'clock. It will be a special session, and, according the circular notifying the members, will be for the purpose of discussing the principalship of South Park school. "What does that mean?" inquired a limes reporter of the chairman. general discussion," Mr. "Well, a but there remains the question of a sucessor. We can't wait until Miss Cameron's time of notice expires. It may be necessary for her successor to give 30 cations or making a promotion."

There is some speculation as to whether the South Park principal's decapitation disposes of her connection with the edu-cational circles of the province, or whether those who occupy the seats of the mighty will proceed a step farther and deprive her of her certificate. This, of course, would open up a vista of the into the parents of his pupils that this state finite vast. If the principal of South Park school had not been so prominently before the public as an educationist for so many years, the case might not have attained much prominence, although the principle would amount to the same.
