THE TABRIZ EXPEDITION
ST. PETERSBURG, April 29—The Russian column under General Skerff, now on its way to the relief of Tabriz, has passed Darabid Delle, where it was held back for a time by small bands of the Shah's followers, and is rapidly pushing towards the beleaguered city. The foreign officer confidently expects that the leading detachment will arrive at its destination tomorrow. The main body is some distance back of the vanguard.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

Any person who is the sole head of a family or who has over 18 years of age may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia and the Yukon Territory. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency where the land is situated, and must be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him, or by his wife, father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead.
Price $200 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead credit) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $100 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $200.00.

A FRIEND OF JIMMIE'S

By ELEANOR MERCIM KELLY.

People don't realize it, but some of the proudest, best-mannered dogs they see on the streets are only pretending to belong, as I used to. It doesn't harm anybody, and it cheers you up when you are lonesome and hungry. Besides, there's always a chance of being adopted. In my puppy days, I often followed ladies along the street, and day long, wagging and capering pollely, though my ribs and the lack of a collar, because there was no collar to the world that I was nobody's pet.
Later, after I came to live at the foot of the pasture, I learned to keep up appearances more cleverly.
When acquaintances passed at a safe distance, I would rush fiercely out of the weeds, barking very hoarsely and strutting up and down with rigid legs.
It generally fooled them. They would shy away respectfully, envying me the fine lawn and pasture, and the great house I guarded.

But one day a big bound came by who was not fooled. When I roared my warning at him and began to strut, instead of shying away he wheeled about and made for me. I could not escape through the pasture-lot because he was so close. I seemed easily to have been my enemy, the Colt. I could not retreat upon the house because there was my enemy, the Cook. There was no retreat open except the road, and at the turn of that I ran straight into my worst enemies of all, the Boys.

"Hi! Head off the cur! Dog-fight!
Dog-fight!" they yelled, and would not let me pass.

So I faced about desperately, my hacksles on end, and tried to growl. It was only a white cat, and the hound looked at half-eye out. I gave right up, because I thought perhaps he would not care to fight all by himself. But he kept on chewing at me just the same, and it seemed easier just to close my eyes and die than to make another effort to squirm away from those tearing teeth. All the while I heard faintly what the boys were saying—"Sickin'! Get a grip there!
Stand up to him, cur!"

At last a new one came running up, a thin little puppy of a boy, crying, "Say, that's a shame, feller! That's cruel!"

"Yah, yah, yaisy," jeered the others.
"Keep out of it, then, girly! The hound's fightin' fine."

"He ain't fightin'—he's just eatin'!" I'm going to stop this," cried the puppy boy, his voice breaking like mine does when I bark big and feel scared.

"You lay a hand on that hound, Jimmie Smith, and I'll kick the stuffin' out of you!" screamed the biggest boy of all.

But the hound, snarling, was already balled up in the air, and a rain of hot blood came into my eyes, and I forgot everything.

When I woke up I found my head was gone, and so were the Boysall but the puppy one. We were lying side by side on the grass, and the puppy was crying little. I saw it was the boy who lived in the house I had been pretending to guard, and I tried to sneak away, for the people in that house don't like dogs. But he put his hand on my nose.

"Don't you run off and leave me too, pup," he said, with a little grin.
Then he broke out blubbering. "I ain't cryin' because I got leeches. I cryin' because I'm so mad! Those mean old bullies! Just you wait till I grow up, and I'll get 'em!"

I understood perfectly. That's the way I feel when my tail goes between my legs of its own accord. And oh! how every part of me hurt, and how the trees spun round, and how good that hand felt on my neck.

The boy got up stiffly. "You poor little cuss," he sighed. "Wish I could have a dog. I'd choose you, and I'd call you Sue ain't you? You ain't clutterin' up her kitchen, she says."

I watched him all the way to the house, and every time he looked back the left hind dragged. I felt how much worse I made it for him.
In my body.

A wise old lady dog whom I knew had invited me to move in town, her alley, where she said the garbage pails were more plentiful and not so careful covered. I had been waiting for that moment I knew I should never care to leave the foot of the pasture lot, where I could watch for Jimmie and pretend to belong.

Things went pretty hard with me for a while. I did not dare show my head of the weeds to look for food, because none of my legs moved very easily and I could not get into my house. I roared, Boys are the dogs who belonged were likely to chase me, and I could not have got away. If I tried the pasture, there was my enemy the Colt, always on the lookout; and I still dream sometimes, after a heavy dinner, that his wicked grin was eating me as I saw them trample over that comes later. So I stayed in the weeds, and got thinner than ever, and shivered all the time. Fortunately a rain came up and made a puddle beside me, so I should have died of thirst.

Then at last I heard Jimmie's step passing on the road, and I wagged my tail so hard that it must have stirred the weeds, for he came in and found me.

"Why, hello, old sport!" he cried.
"He's been lookin' for you everywhere.
How 'bout your nose, and how your ribs stick out!"

He felt me all over, and I had to wince often, though his fingers were as gentle as my mother's tongue.

"Pretty bad, ain't it?" he said. "Say, you're going home with me, pup. When old Sue sees how bad you're hurt, p'raps she'll grease you with somethin'. Women are awful kind when a feller's sick."

I knew better, but it is hard to make Boys understand. It hurt more when he got me up in his arms, because I was as big as him, either because I was so thin, or because I was a short cut across the pasture lot, so and of course the Colt was ready for me. Jimmie had to put me down several times while he heaved the Sue's kitchen with sticks, and I couldn't do a thing to help. We went slower and slower as we reached the house. Maybe I was not the only one who didn't

THREE

there to annoy me when I stroll through the pasture. I believe I spoiled those fancy legs of his for ever, when I ran back that day to take care of Jimmie.

But though I am always hunting and sniffing about, I cannot find anywhere the boy who let me belong.

AMUSEMENTS.

KEEPING abreast of the times in the theatrical world is evidently one of the principal ambitions of Kirk Brown.
Every season this clever young actor comes to St. John with something new and original in the way of high class entertainment, and this season novelty will be his six new recognized dramas. "The Charity Hall," "Belasco and De Mille's noted society drama is one of the great new plays that will be offered Monday evening. "The Wife," by the same authors, is another play that should attract unusual attention.
Mark Twain's famous comedy, "Puddle Head Wilson" is also numbered in the list for the first week. "The Merchant of Venice" is the only Shakespeare production that will be seen the first week, and will in all probability be presented for this one occasion only.
Mr. Brown has several new plays for his second week that will interest his patrons.

YELLOWSTONE PARK AT NICKEL
Another picture of unusual interest at the Nickel—a refreshing treat for housecleaning housebodies or tired-out movers. This time it is a trip to the wonderland of America, The Great Yellowstone Park and Yosemite Valley in the United States. Here are to be seen the renowned boiling geysers, the picturesque canyons and magnificently wooded heights. A dainty bit of comedy entitled, "Any Port in a Storm" follows this travel feature and there are two other pictures: The Auld Dog and A Just Reward. Miss Edwards will continue in her hit-song, "Dreaming," and the New York Talking Picture Co. will have a stirring romance of the prairies called "On the Western Frontier," one of those dashing stories of open-air life with a stirred horseman and adventure. Saturday afternoon the Nickel's main will be especially interesting to the children as the prize winners in the Old St. John Picture Contest will be announced and extra pictures inserted in the programme. Monday and Tuesday are the days for the Great New York Martion Race, an event in motion pictures that will cause a sensation.

KING LEAR.

The management of the Princess are offering today that great tragedy of Shakespeare's, King Lear. This is positively the first time this play has been shown in this city. The both vaudeville acts appear afternoon and evening. Margaret Ross, the singing comedian, and Vaunette and Manley in a new comedy sketch. The other pictures are: The Winning Coat, a drama, by the celebrated Biograph Co.; A Sound Sleeper, a good comedy, also by the Biograph Co. There are two other pictures, a comedy and a drama. New illustrated song by Mr.
Waters. On Saturday afternoon the both vaudeville acts will have special numbers for the young folks. Send the children early Saturday afternoon.

THE EARLY MORNING.

"Father: I wish you would please tell that young man of yours I pay his visits at a decent hour. If he must start courting so early in the day, ask him to at least come after breakfast." Daughter (inquisitively): But, father, that is what he comes after!"
