as Unsanitary, and Milkmen Cannot Leave Them on Step.

The regulation of the board of health restricting milk dealers from delivering milk in bottles and leaving them with customers, will cause a great deal of in-convenience to householders, but the health officials are hopeful that it will be the means of stopping the spread of typhoid.

Dr. Melvin, medical health officer, made the request, but it is thought that the restriction is only temporary and will restrict on the state of the st remain in force only until the typhoid has been checked. The dairymen use the oottles almost entirely in delivering the milk, and the countrymen also use them to some extent. The latter will not be so seriously affected by the new regula-tion, however, as they can substitute convey the milk in bottles to the houses of their patrons, but the glass bottles cannot be left with them, for fear of carrying germs from houses in which the malady exists. The dealers will be given a few days to notify their patrons that they must leave receptacles of some kind at their door.

It means now that the householders will have to be aroused from their sleep each morning in the early morning to meet the milkman or else leave the pitcher at the door. To persons who are unused to placing the milk jug at the door the constant worry will be, "Have I forgotten to put out the milk can?" How many unfortunate citizens will be aroused from their sleep to pergrees below zero.

On April 20, this year, the four men broke camp, and with five sleds, each drawn by a pony, started on their 750 mile march to the west coast.

During the first forty days violent blizzards raged practically without cessation. The ponies became snow blind and so exhausted that the men were obliged to kill three of them. Later the sun's rate to the traveler and sun's rays tormented the travelers and burned the skin from their faces, which soon had the appearance of raw beef, while the temperature at night was thirty below zero. Ponies Wore Snow Shoes.

Snow shoes were fitted to the feet of two remaining ponies, and proved of wonderful assistance to them in the loose snow. But for the ponies the expedition would have been in a worse plight. Unfortunately for the explorers, it was found necessary to kill another pony on July II this year, because the fodder had given out. Next day the last pony was killed, much to the distress of the members of the expedition, as a few miles further on splendid pas-The rations of Captain Kech and his

Ate Their Pet Dog.

On July 15 they tried to push on the coast, which was now visible, but they were searcely able to move. Their only chance for life was to kill the pet dog, which had tramped with them for about 800 miles. This was done and its flesh was cooked and teath. The meat was hardly finished when the explorers sighted a sailing boat in a Fjord to the east of Procent on the west coast of Greenland. By means of shots and signals the explorers succeeded in attracting the attention of those on board the vessel, and Pastor Chemnitz, who was on the ship, soon, with the assistance of the crew, had the famished and worn-out explorers in Safety.
