

WHAT NEWFOUNDLAND DOES FOR THE EMPIRE

The Colony Which Has Not Neglected Naval Training

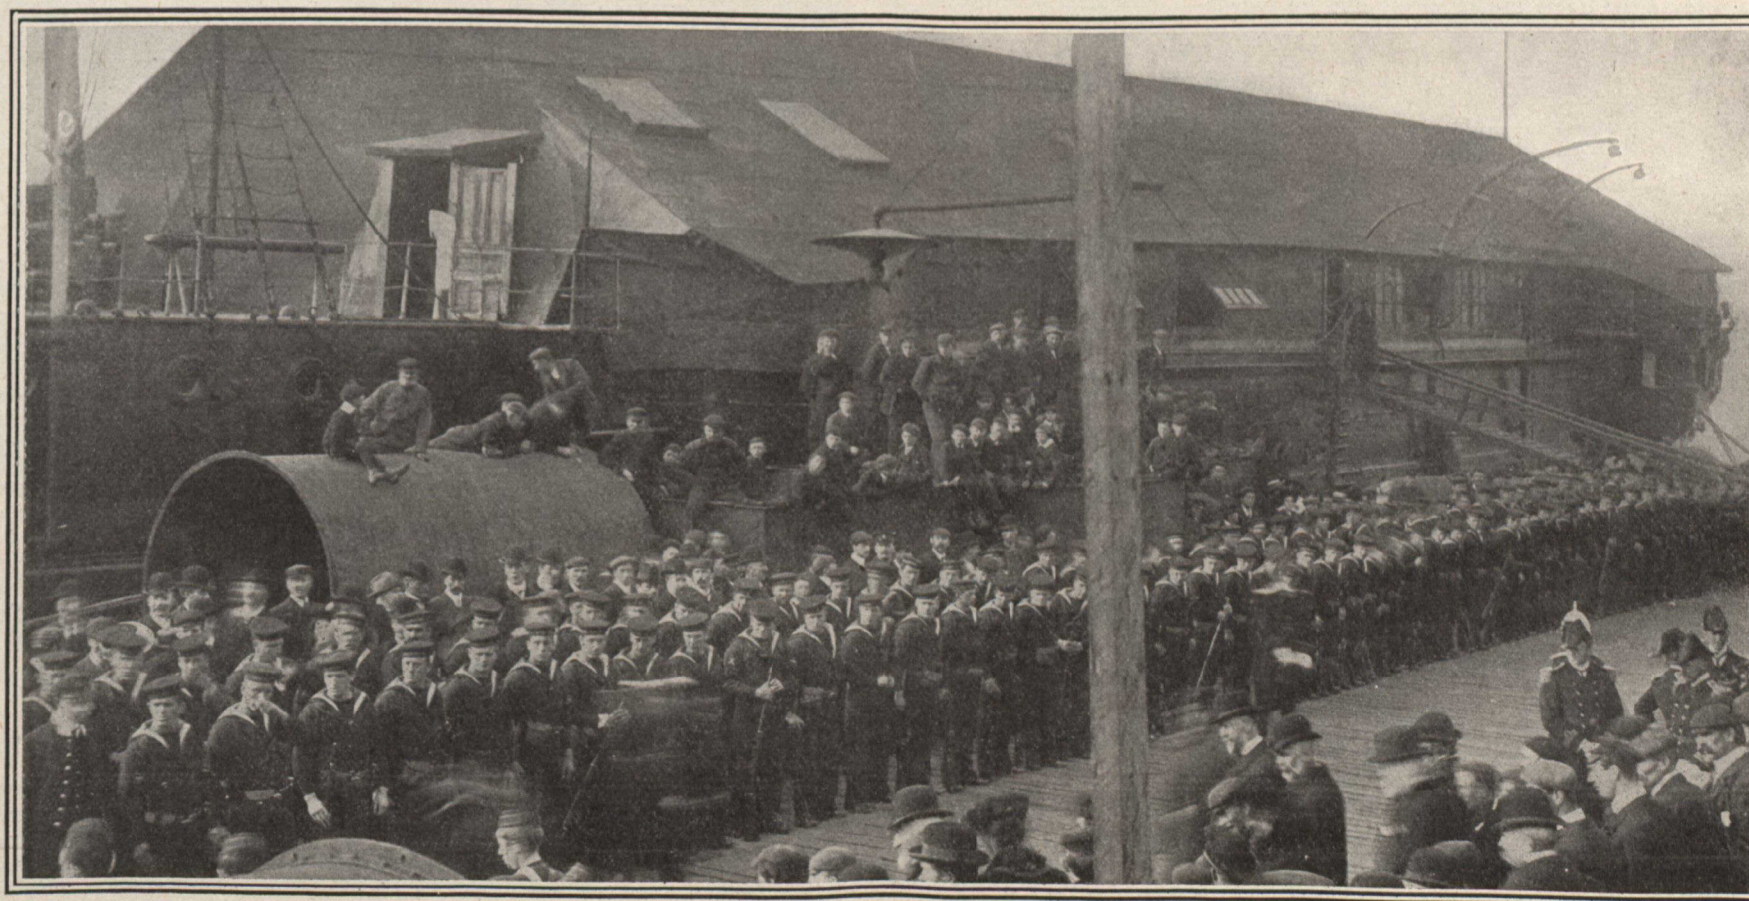

The erstwhile British North Atlantic Squadron in St. John's Harbour, Newfoundland.

A Line-up of Naval Reserve Recruits at St. John's,

Naval Reserves Acting as Guard of Honour at the Opening of the Legislative Assembly, at St. John's.

This picture shows the Naval Militia Parading for Inspection, just before leaving for a Cruise to Bermuda. The Training Ship in the rear presents a unique appearance with its canvas house on the stern deck.

Photographs by James Vey, St. John's