However, altho' I thought it my duty to go in,
I am more than contented with my present position & the opportunities it gives me for doing the work I want to do. The training of men for business life on the lines which I have laid down here & which are being more ~~the~~ or less copied in Manchester & elsewhere is a new experiment.
Altho' I have been occupied largely in propaganda - addressing Chambers & Commercials all over the midlands &c. & in acquainting myself with business conditions. Fortunately I have been able to use up some of the material I collected during my last year at Harvard, so that I found time to write the little books on the Tariff Problem & on the Osman Wages Classes as contributions to the Fiscal controversy, as well as the adjustment of wages just before it arose.

As to labour problems, what I want to do
