Prof. R.M. Yerkes/Cambridge

the observer's attention to the Kingdom of Heaven in which there are neither.

Please let me say how very much I enjoyed the pleasure of meeting you, and how sincerely I hope the future holds many occasions for a further interchange of views. I envy you the field of study in which you are engaged, it has the human interest at the heart of it, and round about the diviner atmosphere that sustains the aspirations that are the very breath of life.

Thanking you again for your welcome letter and the papers, and with the best of wishes and regards, I am,

Sincerely yours,

WLMK
