LOVE AND MYSTERY

WE take pleasure in announcing the first ten numbers of our new "Red Rose Library," a series of paper books of "Love and Mystery," by well-known American and foreign authors. All copyrighted, and limited to editions of 10,000 copies, to be published monthly at 50 cents per volume, mailable at pound rates. The great popularity which our first series of paper books, "The Fleur de Lis Library" attained, has encouraged us in creating this second series, an entirely different class and style of fiction.

No. 1 MANDERS. By ELWYN BARRON, author of "In Old New York," etc.

"A romance sweet as violets." — Town Topics.

No. 2 FRIENDSHIP AND FOLLY. By MARIA LOUISE POOL, author of "The Meloon Farm," "Roweny in Boston," "The Red Bridge Neighborhood," etc.

"The story will rank with the best previous work of this author."

— Indianapolis News.

No. 3 THE BLACK TERROR. By J. K. LEYS.

"An absorbing romance that brings the interest to the highest pitch in the first chapter, and keeps it there until the last." — Chicago Tribune.

No. 4 ROSE OF ACADIE. By MARSHALL SAUNDERS, author of "Her Sailor," "Beautiful Joe," etc.

"Unusually beautiful in treatment." — Chicago Times-Herald.

No. 5 MURIELLA. By OUIDA, author of "Under Two Flags," "Moths," etc.

"Told in the absorbing style peculiar to the author." — Herald.

No. 6 THE TRIUMPH OF DEATH. By GABRIEL D'ANNUNZIO, author of "The Flame of Life," etc.

"The writer of the greatest promise to-day in Italy is Gabriel d'Annunzio." — The Bookman.

No. 7 ADA VERNHAM, ACTRESS. By RICHARD MARSH.

"The character of Miss Vernham is drawn in an absorbing and clever style." — Boston Times.

No. 8 VIA LUCIS. By MAGDA STUART SINDICI.

"Without doubt the most notable novel of the summer is this strong story of Italian life." — New Orleans Picayune.

No. 9 BREAKING THE SHACKLES. By FRANK BARRETT, author of "A Set of Rogues," etc.

"It is a breathless process, yet interesting, this breaking the shackles." — London Chronicle.

No. 10 UNIG THE HEIGHTS OF SIMPLICITY. By JOHANNES REIMERS.

"He writes extremely well, with delicacy and conviction." — Chicago Tribune.
