

Nucle Tom's Department.

MY DEAR NEPHEWS AND NIECES,—We should like to inquire of you if, in reviewing the past, it will not seem that much peace and happiness are wasted by not controlling the disposition? The foe may be invisible, difficult to be detected, but, nevertheless, incessantly annoying. The greatest victories ever wrought in the world are those wherein angry passions have been voluntarily subdued, and revenge and hatred banished from the breast. There is no time nor sphere of life in which we can move but has its public and private collisions. There is a legion of little troubles, which are circumscribed to the neighborhood and the family connection, that spring up from a love of pre-eminence in social position, giving occasion for frequent heartaches. Offences must come, otherwise how could it be known what there is in our hearts? The best men who have ever lived have grown up under severe embarrassments. Regard the ills which are so trying to your tenderest sensibilities as the elements amid which you are to form a character; and resolve that this character shall be tempered with a forbearing and quiet spirit. Many of the ills of life are imaginary. How prone we are to suspect wrong intentions where none existed, and how hasty to pervert the meaning of words and actions through prejudice! But we must bar our doors against such thoughts, and give them no place at our firesides. Another good rule for observance is to limit our wants in a remarkable manner. Lord Bolingbroke, in his "Reflections upon Exile," says: "Our natural and real wants are confined to narrow bounds, while those which fancy and custom create are confined to none." Our nephews and nieces, who are just entering upon life and forming the habits which are likely to adhere to them to its close, will do well to treasure up in memory these true and instructive words of one of England's finest writers: "Our natural and real wants are confined to narrow bounds." It is surprising how little it is that is absolutely essential to man's existence, and, if he will take an intelligent and considerate view of life, to his comfort and happiness. Intellectual enjoyments are comparatively cheap. The cultivation of the mind, which affords the highest and the only enduring satisfaction, can be pursued on an income which is quite insignificant for the supply of luxuries. Our physical wants are but few, if we preserve our tastes simple as they are by nature.

HUMOROUS.

"If I punish you," said mamma to her little girl, "you don't suppose I do so for my pleasure do you?" "Then whose pleasure is it for, mamma?"

Two young men were passing a farmhouse where a farmer was trying to harness a mule. "Won't he draw?" said one of the horsemen. "Of course he will," said the farmer. "He draws the attention of every fool that passes."

"Patrick," said a gentleman to his Irish waiter, "I am going out to-morrow—call me at four in the morning."—"Yes," replied Pat, "but won't yer honor have the goodness to ring the bell, that I may wake in time."

"Mamma, where do the cows get the milk?" asked Willie, looking up from the foaming pan of milk which he had been intently regarding. "Where do you get your tears?" was the answer. After a thoughtful silence, he again broke out: "Mamma, do the cows have to be spanked?"

"See here," said a fault-finding husband, "we must have things arranged in this house so that we shall know just where everything is kept." "With all my heart," sweetly answered his wife, "and let us begin with your late hours, my love. I should dearly love to know where they are kept." He let things run on as usual.

We have just received the prize list of the Yarmouth County, N. B., Agricultural Exhibition, which is to take place Oct. 7th, 1880. This is a pattern for some of our Ontario exhibitions. When will they issue their prize lists?

London, Ont., possesses the finest Agricultural Exhibition grounds in Canada, and the exhibition has always been most successful when held here. The city owns part of the ground, and to satisfy a few people that expect to make a profit by the destruction of the grounds for exhibition purposes, many citizens are using their influence to destroy the possibility of the farmers from retaining their own. The city has been called on to vote for or against the destruction of the ground. They wisely voted against the destroying plan, a few years ago, but the few malcontent still keep up their demand, and may be able to bring influence enough to beat the farmers out of their rights again. If they carry their point it will tend to the injury of the exhibitions to the city, and will always be regretted, but people that have nothing to loose have often power to vote to compel others to pay.

If the soil is full of angle worms, it is, also, doubtless, lumpy and hard to pulverise when broken up with the spade or plough. In this case draining is the principal remedy. An application of salt, also ashes or sand, for mechanical effect, will prove beneficial.
