ASTRONOMY .- THE SOLAR SYSTEM. -- If we suppose ! the earth to be represented by a globe a foot in diameter, the distance of the sun from the earth will be about two miles ; the diameter of the sun on the same supposition, will be something above one hundred feet, and consequently his bulk such as unght he made up of two hemispheres, each about the size of the dome of St. Paul's. The moon will be thirty feet from us, and her diameter three taches, about that of a cricket-ball. Thus the sun would much more than occupy all the space within the moon's orbit. On the same scale, Jupiter would he above ten miles from the sun, and Uranus forty. We see then how thinly scattered through space are the heavenly bodies. The fixed stars would be an unknown distance ; but, probably, if all distances were thus diminished, no star would be nearer to such a oue-foot earth, than the moon now is to us. On such a terrestrial globe the highest mountains would be about 1-59th of an inch high, and consequently only just distinguishable. We may imagine, therefore, how imperceptible would be the largest animals. The whole organized covering of such a globe would he quite undiscoverable by the eye, except perhaps by colour, like the bloom of the plum. In order to restore this earth and its inhabitants to their true dimensions, we must magnify them forty millions of times ; and to preserve the proportions, we must increase equally the distances of the sun and of the stars from u. They seem thus to pass off into infinity ; yet each of them thus removed has its system of mechanical, and perhaps of organic, processes going on upon its surface. But the arrangements of organic life which we can see with the naked eye are few compared with those the microscope detects. We know that we may magnify objects thousands of times, and still discover tresh complexities of structure ; if we suppose, therefore, that we increase every particle of matter in our universe in such a proportion, in length, breadth, and thickness, we may conceive that we tend thus to bring before our apprehension a true estimate of the quantity of organized adaptations which are ready to testify the extent of the Creator's power. -Wheweell's Bridgewater Treatise.

JONATHAN SAVIL - About the year 1704, one Jonathan Savil, who had robbed Dr. Radcliff's country house, lay under sentence of death for a similar offence. In this dreadful situation, he formed the resolution of writing to the Doctor, who received the letter from the criminal, while in company with a party of nobility and gentry, at the Mitre Tavern in Floot-Street. The latter specified the injury done, expressing great shame for it, and withal entreating for pardon and intercession, with strong promises of restitution, should it ever he in his power. The company were amazed on hearing the contents of the letter, and expected something witty from the person it was addressed to. On the contrary, the Doctor very seriously hid the measuremer answer in two days. Then taking Lord Greaville into another room, he declared that the letter he had received had given him great sati-faction, in clearing an innocent man from his suspicion, and that he must become a petitioner to his Lordship, to use his interest with the Queen in the criminal's behalf. 'The application, was successful ; a reprieve was granted, and the culprit was transported to Virginia. 'The Doctor's humanity did not stop here ; he gave him letters to the Governor ; and Savil, who was alive in the year 1715, in flourishing circumstances, had actually made the Doctor restitution of £150, the computed amount of the loss.

BY ALEXANDER W. McLEOD.

"Although Mr. McL. makes larger concessions in some respects to the Church of England than we feel at all inclined to grant, we think aclusively refutes the idle and angrounded p etence to saperiority, which, in common with the Church of Rome, many of her com-numion are making over other degeminations that are her equals or re-periors in parity of doctride and practice."—CHRIGTIAN MESSERGER.
