

A certain lady had two children, girls, both young and nearly of the same age, but the elder one, by some whim or accident, possessed all the mother's affection—there was none for the younger—nothing but harshness. Very lately the mother fell sick, and was confined to her bed. While lying there she heard gentle steps approaching it. "It is that you, my child," said the sick woman. "No, mamma, naively and softly said the resigned one, "it is me." Most parents, and all mothers, will understand this simple answer.

HOW TO LOSE THE APPETITE FOR DRINK.—One who has tried it says, "I overcame the appetite by a recipe given to me by our good family physician. I'll tell you the tonic which I have used with effect for the last twenty years." I expected, of course, some nasty medicine stuff; but no, he prescribed an orange every morning, a half hour before breakfast. "Take that and you will neither want liquor nor medicine." I have done so regularly, and find that liquor has become repulsive. The taste of the orange is in the saliva of my tongue, and it would be as well to mix water and oil as rum with my taste.—Household.

Milton, that glory of British literature, received £10 at two different payments for the copyright of "Paradise Lost," yet Mr. Hoyle, author of a treatise on the game of whist, after having disposed of all the first impressions, sold the copyright to a bookseller for 200 guineas.
