Rev. Mr. Smythe Honoured on His Departure

The following article taken from the Bridgeburg Review will be of interest to citizens generally. It refers to the Rev. Wm. Smythe, the new pastor of Sydenham street church.

Rev. William and Mrs. Smythe and Miss Eleanor Smythe leave to-day for Brantford, where Mr. Smythe has been appointed pastor of Sydenham Street Methodist church.

Mr. Smythe was presented with a purse of money by the congregation at a meeting in the church Tuesday evening.

Hugh Murray Chapter, No. 184, R. A. M., presented Mr. Smythe with a purse of money, Monday night.

"Dear Sir and V. E. Companion:—It is with regret that the companions of Hugh Murray Chapter, No. 184, have learned that you are about to leave us for a new field of labor.

"While we will greatly miss your presence from this Chapter, we are sure that your removal to a larger place will enable you to continue in the good work of our Order, as well as to your own advancement as to the honor of the Chapter which you will no doubt attend.

"The members of Hugh Murray are greatly indebted to you as being the light in our midst which brought into being this Chapter, and as well as appreciation of your kindness and service kindly accept this slight token from the companions of this Chapter as being but a very small expression of the esteem and good will which this Chapter shall ever hold for you, and may the hand of Providence spare you many years of good health and happiness.

"Signed on behalf of the Chapter, W. R. KEE, Z."

Mr. Smythe has been four years in Bridgeburg. He has the Sydenham Street Methodist church in Brantford under his pastoral care commencing Sunday.

Woman's World

How a Great Dancer Teaches and Mothers "Her Children."

ANNA PAVLOVA.

Pavlova dances. Surrounded by chattering coryphees, hand on hip, head to one side in a pose of anticipation, she works out a terpsichorean problem. She has succeeded. The group parts, and she steps forth, leading a tall girl in shimmering blue classic dress. Pavlova reiterates the steps, the music breathing soft accompaniment. The girl imitates. Over and over she steps, Pavlova snapping her slender fingers, tossing her head, forcing into the figure the spirit which makes great dancing. And when the coryphees succeed an approving pat on the shoulder rewards the radiant girl.

In rehearsal when the music is a bit uncertain, when the lights are blattant, when the vast orchestra and the rapturous balconies beyond are chilling in the unresponsive mistiness, the joy of Pavlova's dancing is as apparent as when she dances to crowded auditoriums. She colors the ballet, the director and the strangely gentle conductor of the orchestra. The final twirl is not coincident with the final chord. She steps out of the musical picture and shakes her head at the conductor. "Last four bars," orders Mr. Theodore Srier, and again the final twirl, still out of beat. Over and over she does that difficult twirl, the ballet does its intricate tableau and the orchestra its tempestuous mate. All watch her. She snaps her fingers. "One, two, three, four," marks time with her arms and smiles because it is art to achieve the difficult.

"She is the hardest working woman in the world," her agents, her directors and the rest of her adores declare fervently. And to watch her and talk with her during an hour confirms the extravagant statement.

Far more than merely the director and teacher of these girls, she is their mother, speaking of them as "my children." They live with her. She sees to it that their other studies are not neglected. She watches them; will not allow them to go to parties or go out at night. Their street clothes are as quiet and unexcited as her own.

Never do they wear silk stockings on the street, for, besides being very bad for the feet, they are extravagant, and children must be taught not to be imprudent.

And most important is their work. But that she teaches them less by word than by example, for they cannot fail to imitate the ardor with which she pursues her art all day and every day, to the exclusion of every other pleasure.

Coquettish Little Hat of White Straw For the Small Girl.

The small fry are by no means forgotten in this season's offerings of millinery. The hat shown in this illustration is of white straw, with a drooping brim and a trimming of blue satin ribbon and clusters of tiny pink roses.

A shirred facing is becomingly placed in the underside of the brim.

To Keep Silver Bright. An easy way to keep silver bright is to put a handful of borax in a dishpan of hot water with a very little soap. Put the silver in this and let it stand the entire morning. Then rinse in clear water and wipe thoroughly dry with a soft cloth.

You can treat plated ware in the same manner without the slightest injury to the plate.

The largest hotel in Europe has just been completed in London. It is the distinction claims on behalf of the new Regent Palace Hotel—an enormous yet artistically designed building behind the eastern side of the Regent street. Its aim is to supply moderate prices the comfort and luxury of the "exclusive" hotels, and one of its motives is: "No tips, no extras; music all day." One of its most striking features is the Rotunda Court, which has an imposing glass dome and a brilliant color scheme. The building consists of eleven stories, and it completely dwarfs everything else in the vicinity. It has accommodation for 1,600 guests and a reception hall and water garden are planned on a proportionately large scale.

The delegates were taken around Paris after the meeting in autos, and made ill.

NOTE OF EXTREME OPTIMISM. Sounded by Dr. Ryerson Who is in New York To-day.

By Special Wire to the Courier. New York, July 7.—The condition of the allied troops along the western battle front was described as excellent by Dr. G. Sterling Ryerson, president of the Canadian Red Cross and Surgeon General of Canadian forces, who reached here to-day on the Steamship Espange from Havre.

Dr. Ryerson's wife and daughter were passengers on the Lusitania. Mrs. Ryerson lost her life when the ship went down.

"During my absence I visited almost the entire battlefield along the Aisne and Marne," Dr. Ryerson said. "I found the condition of the Canadian and allied troops excellent as taken in this line. All water used for drinking is boiled, and every man before he leaves the base camp is subjected to vaccination and anti-typhoid treatment."

Molly Gaines was adopted by foster parents in New York by legal bill of sale process, one dollar being the consideration.
