

BORN IN CANADA
PARLT. BUILDING

Was Margaret Anglin the Only Child of This Distinction?

Canadian people love to follow the careers of her sons and daughters who have some to other lands to seek their fortunes. Amongst those of whom we are especially proud is Margaret Anglin, whose remarkable success on the stage has scarce a parallel.

Writing of her career, Miss Anglin says: "At the time of my birth my father was Speaker of the House of Commons, Ottawa, and my parents resided in chambers in a wing of the Parliament buildings, and there in these Parliament buildings I was born. Incidentally, I believe I may properly claim the distinction of having been the only child ever born in that beautiful and historic edifice. And, if that be true, I am also the last. This, in view of the changes made in its reconstruction following the damage by fire."

If this be so, Miss Anglin can truly claim a rare distinction, for never again will such an event be able to take place. The old buildings are no more.

GERMANY WILL ACT

Will Disregard Entirely American Notes on Subject of Sub. War

London, Dec. 6.—A wireless despatch received here from Berné says "The Cologne Gazette declares that in her submarine warfare Germany will be guided by her own interests and will not allow herself to be influenced by American threats or suggestions."
The Frankfurter Zeitung warns Germany against expecting double rewards as a result of the invasion of Roumania. It says the Russo-and Germanic, which are situated mainly on the lower Danube in territory which has not yet been invaded.

FEEL FINE! TAKE
"CASCARETS" FOR
LIVER, BOWELS

WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Enjoy life! Your system is filled with an accumulation of bile and bowel poison which keeps you bilious, headachy, dizzy, tongue coated, breath bad and stomach sour. Why don't you get a 10-cent box of Cas-carets at the drug store and feel bully. Take Cascarets to-night and enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. You'll wake up with a clear head, clean tongue, lively spirit, rosy skin and looking and feeling fit!
Mothers can give a whole Cascarets to a sick, cross, bilious, feverish child any time—they are harmless—never grip or sicken.

Allied Correspondents in Greece Live Under
Threats of Violence

London, Dec. 6.—The Foreign office has issued a statement to the effect that there is reason to believe that press messages do not give a clear picture of the actual situation at Athens, both because the Royalists have succeeded in regaining control of the cable and press connection and because the allied press correspondents in Athens are living under threats of personal violence, in common with all those suspected of Venizelist leanings. The foreign office adds:
"There is reason to believe that very grave acts of violence have been committed by Royalist forces and the mob."
French Colony Quits Athens.
A Havas despatch to Paris from Athens says that the entire French colony left Athens yesterday. The foreign colonies now fill all hotels of Piræus, and many have embarked on the vessels in the harbor.
"Athens has been raised in the exultation of the foreigners and the popular odium of the Venizelists. The state of anxiety of the Venizelists and searches of their residences continue, while the Venizelist organs no longer appear."
"Barriers have been raised in the streets and are guarded by Royalist regular troops augmented by voluntary enrollments of the mob. The patrols of ministers have been looking after the departure of their nationals."
"At Jamina officers of the garrison, aided by riotous mobs, have arrested Venizelist supporters."

News From
Terrace Hill

(From our own Correspondent.) Sunday last, Advent Sunday, was a special prize day at St. James church Sunday school. Addresses were first given to the whole school, by Rev. E. S. Sotley, speaking the pastor, and its lessons. Mr. Isaac Davidson, the oldest member of the church, spoke briefly, and Mr. Henry Fielden delivered a carefully prepared address on "The Bible." Special prizes were given to the scholar in each class for regularity in attendance, general proficiency and knowledge of the church catechism as follows:
For the most regular scholar in the school, a bible, to Murray Smith.
Special given by Mr. Davidson.
Special prizes: Geo. Riley and Archie Wills (equal) To Roy Bott and Elsie Riley, each a book.
Hymn books to Lucy Foster, Clarence Riley and Primrose Pritchard.
Prayer books, Annie Rotehell, Adeline Riley, Conny Wills.
Mr. Fielden and Mr. Houghting also are giving prizes.

Mrs. Jas. Scazo, of West street is confined to the house with bronchial trouble.

The changeable weather is responsible for a great many colds and sore throats at present. We will likely lay up for this later.

With Christmas less than three weeks away, the different Sunday schools are very busy preparing for their Christmas entertainments.

Ripping Rhymes
Walt Mason

When Chaucer lived there were some other birds, with inspiration loaded to the guards. And there were highbrows in that distant age, who looked with scorn upon great Geoffrey's page, and said, "Gad, you're too good for your own zooks, he writeth middling fair, for one whose soul is of affluous bare; as crossroads jingler he may cut some grass, but who'll recall him when ten years shall pass—'neath you'd read verse of great majestic power, you must peruse the gorgeous works of Gower." Now, it is true that in G. Chaucer's time, the critics joshed him for his paltzy rhyme, and held that Langland, of "Piers Plowman" dope, had moderns skinned beyond all hint of the critic clan. How vain the judgment of the critic clan. They heap their laurels on some 10c man, and say his harp will never be un-strung, while there are men to read his native tongue. Their petted poet crosses the divide, and is forgotten ere he's fairly died, while some unknown, who smarted "neath their jeers, lives in men's hearts through all the rolling years.

The Battle of the Bees and the Birds.
There came a time when the birds were all called together and a swallow spoke.

"I have seen strange things," he told them, "in the cave of a black dwarf, who works magic with his black fire. The bees seeking a king and the black dwarf melted in the fire a shooting star, the hum of bees, an emerald, a sapphire, a bit of fort-set lightning, a bit of the rainbow and some honey that he might make a marvelous king bee with speed and color. But I flew into the cave and dropped a feather in the fire and when the Bee-king came forth he had feathers."

"Let us go," said the birds, "to the cave of the black dwarf and learn more of this bee that is like a bird. Even, indeed, if it be a bird, then should it come to us and not to the bees who have no feathers."

So they travelled to the cave of the black dwarf, this mighty army of birds and the black dwarf listened to their questions.

"It is true," he said, "that I have made a bee with feathers like you, and like a bee yet it is more like unto a bird. I myself call it the humming bird."

"That is enough," said all the birds. "If you have made this strange bee-bird call him a bird, then indeed, he is one. And his place is with birds, not with bees."

So all the birds journeyed to Beedland and demanded the humming bird who had so strangely come to be their king.
"There was a queen, too, beautiful like the feathered king, and the bees, proud of their beauty, their splendid wings, their hum and their speed, refused to give their rulers up, So began the battle of the birds and bees to settle once and for all whether or no the strange king with feathers and a hum like a bee was bee or bird."

It was a dreadful battle. The birds used their beaks for swords and the bees used their stings. They fought and they fought and they fought and then the birds called in a battalion of eagles. Still they fought, but now the bees were losing.

And in the end the birds won the king and called him over after a humming bird as, indeed, he was, but the bees had stung all the feathers off the eagles' heads and when the feathers in the course of time came back—they were white.

Folk called them bald-headed eagles and so they're called to this day.

SIDE TALKS
RUTH YOUNG CAMERON

PATIENT HORSES, PLACID COWS, ETC.

The other evening at dusk, as we strolled down a country road, we passed a stable, and the owner, who had been within came the thud of a horse's hoof as he changed his position.

"What a picture that little sound gives you of the whole stable," I said. "You can just see the patient horses standing there." How instinctively we associate "patience" with "horse."

"Patient horses!" echoed my companion, "isn't it queer how instinctively we associate that adjective with the horse? I wonder if it's the same way with other animals."

"What's the adjective for cow?" I questioned, and then answered myself in low breath, and in accord with my companion,
"Placid."

Can you imagine describing a cow with any other adjective unless you make a deliberate effort to select an unusual one?
The dog came under consideration next and we were unanimous in calling it—can you guess?—"Fathful."

The Cat has No Universal Adjective.
On the cat we differed. There got a group to be any quality universally attributed to cats. I think this is because the cat is the least understood of all the domesticated creatures.

Sometimes when you lack a topic get a group to talking on this subject. Supply them with the noun and see how often they pick the same adjective. It would be an interesting experiment, I think.

CHILD'S DRESS.
By Anabel Worthington.

Another of the little beauty dresses for a "Doty Dimples" or for the kindergarten graduate. All the models for them are alike in their simplicity, but different in detail, so that each little miss may have a style all her own.
The little frock pictured is in one piece from the shoulder to lower edge, and so easy to make, to adjust and to temporarily make in the home dressing. The sleeves are cut comfortably full and long, cuffed with contrasting goods; the dar of the short sleeve is not over, so use it if you prefer. The collar finishing the "V" neck is also of contrasting goods—may come on a shield to be worn on winter days. At a lowered waistline a belt draws in the fullness of the skirt section.
Although contrasting goods plentifully trim this type of dress one may have smocking, or embroider the collar and cuffs with some simple or in other ways such as practical little frock an adorable one. Any one can put it together by following the pattern guide.
The dress pattern, No. 8,043, cuts in pieces 4 to 10 yards. To make in size

Hardy Williamson
Hardy Williamson, a Tenor singer, whose reputation extends throughout England and America, will be heard in this city on Monday Evening, Nov. 27th, according to an announcement made by H. J. Smith & Co., who has made the arrangement under which the noted vocalist will come here. The concert, which will be held in Victoria Hall, will be of an extraordinary nature, admission being by card only. The famous clavichord, which is a type of voice that sings and sings and sings will be greeted by an audience composed of many of the musicians and music lovers of Brantford, as invitations to the affair will be tendered to all who are prominent in musical circles here. The appearance of Mr. Williamson will be one of the most notable events of the musical season, as he is a singer of more than ordinary ability who achieves success wherever he sings.
A native of Sunderland, County Durham, England, Mr.
Williamson is only 27 years old. He possesses that rarest of all voices—a genuine tenor of golden timbre and extended range. It is a type of voice that sings and sings and sings and creates a sensation. As an artist he is remarkably versatile, having sung with equal success in concert, opera and oratorio. His first engagement in America was with the Century Opera Company, and he appeared in many important roles in the productions of that organization. At the Sunday night concert of the Century Company he became so popular that his appearance always brought forth an ovation from the audience. Since his arrival in this country, his popularity has steadily increased, and to-day he is in high favor from coast to coast.
Invitations to the recital in which he will appear here will be issued shortly, and can be secured from
