Luxurious Liner.
A deck, stretching the whole length of the vessel, which can be encased in glass during inclement weather and will be used for dancing. It is one of the features of the new French transatlantic liner Paris which was launched a few weeks ago.
The Paris is 250 ft long and is of 27,000 tons displacement. A double cellular bottom, divided into forty compartments, protects the vessel's iron skin while the skin itself is subdivided by fourteen bulkheads and water-tight compartments. There are nine decks, four of which stretch the entire length of the vessel.
All the latest improvements in safety devices will be installed on board, including submarine signaling apparatus, wireless direction finders, and an improved lifeboat launching system.
Three passenger lifts will be installed. A palm garden and an operating lift will add to the entertainment of the passengers, and a miniature theatre will be provided for the children.
The Paris will have accommodation for 485 first, 476 second, 920 third cabin passengers, and a stowage capacity of holding 1,118 persons. Her crew will number 685 officers and men.
Joffre's Hard-Boiled Eggs.
General Joffre's cook was once the chef of a famous Paris restaurant, and he is highly distinguished with the General's taste in food. He says that the General prefers beef that has been boiled in the soup to the finest culinary efforts in the way of fillets of sole cooked with a wine sauce. He is also extremely fond of cabbage, but at every meal he insists upon having a salad which he eats with hard-boiled eggs and flavors with an English sauce.
One day M. Clemenceau came to lunch with the General, and to the dismay of the chef, he brought his own luncheon with him. He handed the chef a box of macaroni, which he instructed him to boil in water, "spiced too much." Then he took two bananas from a paper bag and said they were to be put on the table.
Joffre and Clemenceau drank mineral water with their luncheon, but the former Prime Minister had to forego his dessert, for the General ate one of the bananas with such a relish that he promptly offered him the other and it was instantly accepted.

The Cost of High Living.
Those who would have us forget the spathy of Parliament and the intrigues of the men who are manipulating the markets are lecturing us soundly on the cost of high living. Well, there is something in it. A man does not need meat twice a day; he can get along without it every day; he does not need to buy Quaker Oats in bicycled packages when he can buy ordinary meal quite as good for half the price. Nor does he require strawberries at Christmas time when a dish of preserved peaches may be had for one-tenth the sum. Neither is it necessary to wear the wool garments, when combination cotton-wool may equally serve the purpose. And so it is all around. This is no time for extravagance in food, dress or entertainment. It is only fair that we should practice economy, fair too that we should train our children to economize, for otherwise we shall become a nation of spendthrifts. Yes, while we deplore the high cost of living, let us lessen the cost of high living.—Western Home Monthly.

Insurance Peculiarities.

In these days you can insure almost anything. At the time of the roller skating boom in England, one insurance company issued a policy which, for 61 a year, provided £500 in case of accidental death, with reduced amounts for disability.
An enterprising firm of insurers issued a booklet to their customers insuring them, with every hat they purchased, for £250. Perhaps one of the most useful policies is one granted by a well-known insurance corporation which, in event of a firm going bankrupt, insures the continuance of the employees' wages for a stipulated period.
A golfer can obtain a policy to be relieved of all financial responsibility if he hits or injures his caddy. One can not only insure against becoming insane, but it is also possible to insure against an insane person regaining his mental capabilities.
Several companies will insure crops in glass-houses against hailstorms. And you can also insure against increase of income—loss by bad weather, riot, invading locs, twigs, sweeping winds, strikes, a strike or insurance against loss of voice.

Work and Wants of the Canadian Patriotic Fund.

When war broke over Canada it became apparent that the dependents of many of our city's military would suffer if an organization did not exist to assist them according to their needs.
The Canadian Patriotic Fund was thereupon founded.
Its object was to supplement, when necessary, the allowances made by Parliament to the families of enlisted men and through personal service to give comfort, advice and friendly help to those whose breadwinner was at the front.
The magnitude of the task thus assumed was not at first appreciated. Given now the general public does not grasp it. The fund has had to raise, from its inception up to September 30th, 1916, the vast sum of $14,567,981.74.
It has now upon its books over 65,000 families, comprising about 175,000 persons. It has distributed, through the voluntary work of thousands of patriotic men and women, the greater part of the money collected.
It has recognized, as the Government could not recognize, the varying needs of the soldiers' families, and the difference in cost of living between one province and another. That is to say, it has discriminated, giving help where needed and withholding it when not needed.
But it has gone far beyond being merely a channel for conveying money from generous givers to needy families. Its workers visit regularly the beneficiaries of the fund, helping them in illness, comforting them in sorrow, and playing in a score of ways the part of a friend.
THE FUND'S WANT. While the war lasts, this fund must endure. To maintain it during the coming year the sum of thirteen and a half million dollars must be raised.
In September the fund expended $595,000. Its outlay will increase with the growth of our armies.
In the past, by far the larger portion of the money has been given by generous-hearted men, and women and children; by wage-earners and capitalists; by all classes, all ages, all conditions. The appeal has gone home to all.
There is no reason to fear that the patriotic spirit of those who give so generously will fall them in the face of the growing demands of the fund.
Nova Scotia is asked to give Eight Hundred Thousand Dollars for 1917. The sum will represent that little more than the claims that Nova Scotia, according to estimates, will make on the fund in the same year.
There can be no shadow of doubt as to what the answer will be.

A Wonderful New Remedy

Whichever of injury and suffering this war has brought, it has at the same time proved a wonderful stimulant to discovery and invention. These, too, will survive close and become the blessed inheritance of peace. It is natural, also, that the noble professions of medicine and surgery, so closely associated with the camp and the battlefield, should be among the sciences that will most greatly benefit by the new lines of research and practice that the war has been instrumental in opening to the ultimate advantage of all humanity.

When Animals Sleep.

BEARS SLEEP NEARLY ALWAYS DROWSY.
The sleeping hours of the animals at the Zoo vary as greatly according to the families to which they belong as do their other characteristics and habits. The big orangutan goes to bed at sundown, and retires to see visitors after dusk. He is also an early riser. With the lions, tigers, and other members of the cat tribe, the night finds them at their liveliest, and they sleep most between the midday meal and supper-time. The eagles go to sleep just about the time their neighbors in the owl-age are waking up, while the bears, during the winter months, apparently sleep all day and night too.

Children Cry for Fletcher's CASTORIA

At the Experimental Station, Fredrickton N. B., where it was used to bring the land into cultivation at the earliest possible moment, two plants of stump removal have been tried, and herewith are given figures of the relative cost on land from which an average tree on ground had been removed.
The two methods employed were stump pulling by power, and removal by dynamite.
A stump puller of the drum and lever type was employed, giving a lifting power of 25 tons with an ordinary team. With one hundred and twenty stumps to be cut and over to the acre and seventy-two smaller stumps, it required an average of twenty minutes with a team and driver and two men to remove each of the smaller ones. The 120 stumps required 40 hours, and the smaller ones 6 hours.
Where power machinery was used, cost per acre was 46 hours work, team and driver, at $20; $14.72; 92 hours work, helpers, at $16; $16.56; 32 hours work, cleaning and piling, at $10; $39.49; 60 hours work, burning, at $10; $10.80; Total, $101.48.
Where explosives were used the cost per acre was: 150 lbs dynamite powder at $14.91; $22.35; 500 lb. fuse at $60; $3.00; 1000 caps at $1.00; $3.00; 40 hours labour of dynamite operator, at $20; $9.00; 40 hours, team and driver, at $20; $12.80; 80 hours, helpers, at $16; $4.40; 60 hours labor, piling, at $10; $10.80; 40 hours labor, burning, at $10; $7.20. Total, $132.75.
On other areas where there were heavy boulders and small stones the cost of clearing ran up to $180.00 per acre, while where the land was free from stones and stumps were small comparatively and few, the land was made ready for the plough at a cost of less than $41.00 per acre.

"Only for the Teeth Have We Learned to Take Precaution in Advance of Pain."

Experience has taught us that to wait for the toothache warning is to allow irreparable loss to be done.
But why do we not apply this lesson in caring for the general health, and by keeping the blood rich and the nervous energy at high-water mark, reduce sickness to a minimum and prolong life?
There are many symptoms to warn you of the weak, watery condition of the blood and exhausted nerves, and by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to restore richness to the blood and feed the starved nerves back to health and vigor.
But just as the tooth cannot be saved after decay has gone too far, so the nerve cells can never be replaced once they are dead.
On this account it is a thousand times better to be warned by sleeplessness, headaches, indigestion, tired feelings and muscular weakness rather than to neglect treatment and allow nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia or paralysis to develop.
That Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest of nerve restoratives is being proven every day, and you will find the evidence in the daily and weekly papers.
50 cents a box, $5 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.
Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations disappoint.

Delicate Feat.
An expert workman in one of the great needle factories, in a test of skill, performed one of the most delicate feats imaginable. He took a common sewing-needle of medium size, an inch and five-eighths in length, and drilled a hole through its entire length from eye to point, the opening being just large enough to permit the passage of a very fine hair.
