TEACH CHILD LIFE'S ORIGIN

Parents Should be More Honest in Dealing With Problems.

Adoption of Double Standard of Morals Aimed At.

Living Wage Wanted More Than Costly Buildings.

June 29.—Outspokennes with regard to questions of public and personal morality characterized the joint ssion of the sections on education the International Council of Women yes terday afternoon. The various papers read all led up to the same point. They constituted a powerful plea for more straightforwardness, and honesty in dealing with problems which have a direct bearing on the well being of mankind.

The first papers dealt many straightforwardness.

have a direct bearing on the well being of mankind.

The first papers dealt more particularly with the training of children, and an interesting contribution was that of Prof. Wilson Gill, Philadelphia, which was read in his absence by Mrs. Loring Spencer, explaining the system of school cities which has been introduced in connection with many American schools. The children constitute a miniature municipality, elect their Mayor, formulate by-laws for their own governance, and by experience in law-making it is hoped, will become law-keeping citizens. In a sense they serve an apprenticeship to citizenship, and by discussion are taught to take an interest in public affairs.

RESPONSIBILITY OF PARENTS.

RESPONSIBILITY OF PARENTS.
Dealing with the educational responsibility of parents, Miss Maud Edgar said that the time had passed when education was regarded merely as the accumulation of book learning. It was the making of the useful citizen, in which they were interested, and the highest ideal was that each individual should become a useful instrument in the service of the world. It was on the parent that the greatest responsibility rested. The child in its first six years attained more knowledge than in any other period, and, unfortunately, the attitude of the parent-in those years was often subversive to moral training. If the child's will were upheld in opposition to that of those in authority all sense of veneration and obedience was crushed.

TEACH THE CHILDREN. RESPONSIBILITY OF PARENTS.

TEACH THE CHILDREN.

Along the same lines was the paper read by the Hon. Mrs. Franklin, Great Britain, while Dr. Sylvanus Stall, Philadelphia, urged the importance of instructing children as to the origin of life in such a manner as to impress upon it the sacredness of the matter. Parents must not think that children did not think about these things. Let parents begin with the story of the creation, and then show how plants and other organic life were given the power to perpetuate their species, leading up to the higher organisms, and they would be TEACH THE CHILDREN. petuate their species, leading up to the higher organisms, and they would be equipping their offspring with knowl-edge which might keep them clear of danger.

THE SOCIAL EVIL.

Without gloves Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Moreton spoke of the plague spots of social life. In one American city, she said, there were fifty thousand women of ill-fame, and the expenditure on vice amounted to over $500,000 a week. The first step to combat the evil must be the abolition of the double standard of morals, and the educating of their boys and girls in such a manner that they would not, through ignorance in the first place, come to learn terrible lessons. In her opinion a health certificate should be demanded before any marriage was permitted.

"I can't bear your dollars," was the THE SOCIAL EVIL.

"I can't bear your dollars," was the indignant protest of Miss Beavor, one of the British delegates to the International Congress of Women yesterday morning. Miss Beavor was not protesting against the use of the decimal system of currency, but against the smpg complexency that took the erection of large buildings to mean education. "What we want," she added, "is a living wage for the women workers. That would be better than any of your hundred-thousand-dollar buildings."

LINE OF EDUCATION. LINE OF EDUCATION.

The discussion arose in the section of education, following a paper read by Mrs. Ogilvie Gordon on "Training for Careers for Women." Mrs. Gordon, in the course of her paper, pointed out that the ages at which the largest number of women were engaged in umber of women were engaged in sional life were between 20 and nd over 45. That menat that of of essonal life were between 20 and 30, and over 45. That menat that many professional women who maraled found it necessary to return to their former occupations, and also that many women had to enter professional life at middle age. The broad principle they ought to follow on the case of girls was to give them a good general education that would enable them to be readily adaptable to any sphere or position they might be called to by marriage, and then to supplement that general cultivation of their powers by helping them to select some one definite directio of study or training in which they might make themselves expert and so lave an assured future.

Careers were opening for women in the artistic crafts, and in conection with hissness, but there were a number of factors which caused the lowness of wages. and over 45.

DEGENERATE LONDON.

The capital of the Empire is becoming a city of degenerates. Prof. Ramsey Wright, in his address at Convocation Hall last night, on the subject of "Heredity and Environment," said that twenty-five per cent. of the married population of London was responsible for fifty per cent. of the births. Unfortunately that twenty-five per cent. lived in the slums, and was largely made up of degenerates, drunkards, incorrigible criminals, persons suffering from tuberculosis, and mental defectices. The same process of progressive decadence was found in other large centres, while among the higher classes various reasons led to a decreasing birth rate. Among the reasons for that progressive decadence was philanthropy and the improvements in hygiene and medicine which, naturally, ran counter to the law of natural selection, and preserved spersons capable of transmitting defects who would otherwise be eliminated. To counteract these things it had been proposed that a health certificate should be required before a marriage certificate was granted, that degenerates should not be permitted to marry, or that the system of election in breeding animals should be applied to mankind.

Sir William Thompson also delivered DECENERATE LONDON. The capital of the Empire is becom-ng a city of degenerates. Prof. Ram-ey Wright, in his address at Convo-

TIMES PATTERNS.

LADIES' AND MISSES' COLLARS AND CUFFS.

8550.—The low Dutch collar bids fair to be a most important adjunct to the toilette this season, and is very smart and dainty. They may be made of several materials, allover embroidery, tucking, lace and plain linen. Hotifs, either of embroidery or lace, are often used in the trimming, although the prettiest finish is an embroidered scollop with a row of eyelets or embroidered dots above. The set illustrated contains four different styles of Dutch collars, a turn down collar and cuff. The pattern is cut in three sizes for ladies and misses—small medium and large. The medium size requires ½ yard of 24 inch material for each.

A pattern of this illustration will be mailed to any addess upon receipt of 10 cents in stamps or silver.

She noted that Section on "The Shop and Factory Laws of Canada." She noted that "sweating" is not extensive in Canada, although there are a few shops that practise it. "I am proud to state in Canada we have many manufacturers who go even beyond the mere requirements of law and who provide clean workrooms, good ventilation, well-nappointed samitary turrangeemints, dressing rooms with materon in charge, fibrary and recreation room with piano. There are manufacturers who allow their females to leave earlier than the mele employees so that there may be more room in the street cars."

The National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada Limited bought "Fruit-a-tives" in 100 gross lots (14,000 boxes). Lyman Sons & Company, of Montreal, and Lyman Brothers in Toronto, also ordered "Fruit-a-tives" by the hundred gross lots. These big wholesalers bought such big orders simply because the retail dealers ordered so many boxes of "Fruit-a-tives"—and the dealers had to keep "Fruit-a-tives" always in stock to supply the constantly growing demand of people in every section of Canada.

Hornfeck was discharged this afternoon on a charge of murdering Louise Pearl James. The prosecution fell down woefully, the most damaging evidence being a confession written by the prisoner. An alibi was established by the defence, which showed that the accused was not within ten miles of the city on the day of the murder. A precedent was established when C. P. Fullerton, for the defence, called the prisoner to the witness box to testify at his preliminary trial. Louis James, the husband of the murdered woman, did not appear to give evidence, and the case was closed. The next action of the Crown is watched for

Kenny, a former employee of the olbroit River tunnel, who mysteriously disappeared from this city least February, was former employee of the Detroit River by a tug man at 7 o'clock this morning, near where the tunnel goes under the river. The friends and relatives are sure that foul play has been committed. The young man, who is 22 years of age, was last seen alive in company with two strangers at the British-American Hotel on the evening of February 14th. He had a small amount of money and a gold watch at that time. When the remains were searched both money and watch were missing, although letters which proved his identity were found in the pockets. Coroner Labell has deemed an inquest unnecessary, and the remains will be buried immediately. Kenny's home was near Romeom, where his father is a well-to-do farmer. former employee of the eDtroit River

Ottawa, June 28 .- A question of the ownership of a rabbit, which cost twenty cents, embroiled two promient Ottawa families in the Police Court to-day, and families in the Police Court to-day, and took up two hours of the court's time. City Solicitor Taylor McVeity charged Col, Graves, his next door neighbor, with the theft of the rabbit in question, and after the matter was gravely threshed out, and many witnesses examined, the Magistrate decided that it was a case of mistaken identity as to the rabbit, and dismissed the charge. Members of each family claimed the rabbit was lawfully theirs.

Mr. McVeity, his wife, his son and servant positively identified the rabbit as the one which had disappeared from the McVeity residence early this month, and had been seen later in Col. Graves' back yard. Col. Graves and the defence witnesses traced the history of the rabbit as being one which had been given to his son by a companion, who had purchased it in Britannia for twenty cents.
