Sunday at George St Methodist Church

Rev. J. W. Bartlett occupied the pulpit of George Street Church on Sunday morning and evening. In the morning his discourse was based upon 1 Peter 2nd chap. and 5th verse. His eloquent remarks were timely, instructive and interesting in quite an unusual degree.

Evening Service.

In the evening Mr. Bartlett gave an old time sermon from the text, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation?" Both morning and evening touching references were made to the demise of Rev. Canon Dunfield, and the very sad accident that resulted in the death of Capt. John Jacobs on Saturday last. Mr. Bartlett paid a very high tribute of respect to Canon Dunfield, who was so well known and respected by the whole community and whose demise was widely regretted.

Brother Jacobs was noted for his uniform and consistent service in connection with George St. Church. He was always present in his place in the church when it was possible to get there, presenting an humble and Christlike disposition. For many years he was a class leader, and perhaps one of the best testimonies to his Christian character and his genial disposition is the great respect and esteem shown towards him by the members of his class, individually and collectively. The Dead March in Saul was played at both services. Mr. Gordon Christian presiding at the organ.

WESLEY CHURCH.

Rev. J. K. Curtis, B.A., preached at Wesley Church on Sunday morning and evening, to crowded congregations. The services at Wesley are invariably of a most interesting character. People who avail of the privilege of hearing Mr. Curtis never tire of hearing and speaking well of him. His congregation esteems him very highly, not only for his work's sake but for his intense zeal and enthusiasm in his pulpit ministrations.

LONDON, March 14. Sir Edward Grey, Foreign Secretary, leading the Commons, made an important pronouncement of the Government's naval policy. Mr. McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty, in defense of his estimates against attacks, explained that in 1914 Britain would have 30 and Germany 21 Dreadnoughts. The size of the British navy would be practically governed by that of Germany. Unless some marked change occurred in the German Naval law, this year would be the high water mark of the British estimates. Grey affirmed McKenna's statement, but emphasized the cordiality of Britain's foreign relations and the earnest desire that nothing should disturb these friendships, especially with Germany. Then he dwelt upon the difficulties encountered in the question of disarmament. He pointed out that it was the most civilized nation that spent most in armaments, asserting that unless mischief brought home to men's feelings as well as their minds the growth of armaments must in the long run break civilization down. Some thought the end would be war, but he thought it would more likely result in international revolution. Rivalry would not be stopped by a single nation dropping out of the race. Although Britain had a strong navy, her army was small, and agreement with Germany needed careful handling. He was hopeful that something might be done. Any real limitation of armaments must depend on the nations learning, like individuals, to resort to law instead of to force of arms.

VIRGINIA, Minn., March 13. Death in the form of 500,000 tons of iron ore, rock, earth, ice and snow, slid down on 30 track layers who were working at the Norman open pit mine. Only four escaped the avalanche; three of these are in hospital suffering from injuries that may prove fatal. The place that was an open pit is now almost plain rock ore and earth. Here and there parts of a body may be seen, and crushed heads protrude from the mass. Arms and legs are seen at various angles as the great lantern steam shovels swing over the filled pit.

RIO JANEIRO, March 13. Anti-clerical riots occurred at Sao Paulo yesterday. The military police attacked the mob, which fought back. During the encounter many were killed and injured. Numerous arrests followed. All the churches have been placed under military guard. The rioting originated in the disappearance from the Parochial school of a young girl, who could not be produced by the school authorities when a demand was made for her.

Tinsmiths' Meeting.

Mr. Kenneth Ruby, President of the Tinsmiths' Union, must be a happy man to-day, judging the enthusiasm displayed and encouragement given at last night's meeting, which proved one of the best in its history. Presidents and representatives from all the city unions were present, and the speeches delivered did honor to those sons of toil. It was clearly shown by those gentlemen that the success or otherwise of the striking tinsmiths affected every Union man in the Colony; and financial aid and moral support were promised them in their fight for a fair wage; they have the sympathy of over 3,000 Unionists, who will urge their better halves and all connected with them not to patronize those employers with whom the tinsmiths have a grievance; as it was considered the latter are endeavouring to uphold a righteous cause. There was no doubt left in the minds of those present that right was on their side in this contest and that the labourer is worthy of his hire. One thing was made evident, and that is: the bond of friendship between the several Unions was cemented firmer, if possible, by last night's speakers. The following took part in the debate: Messrs. McGrath, Allan, Halleran and Rodgers, of the Longshoremen's Union; Messrs. Goff and Barnes, of the Carpenters' Union; Mr. O'Keefe, of the Bricklayers' Union; Mr. Woods, of the Firemen's Union; Mr. Whitemarsh, of the Shipwrights' Union; Mr. Collins, of the Tailors' Union; and Mr. Nichols, of the Typographical Union. All the speakers urged the Tinsmiths to keep up their fight for a fair wage, and promised them all the help possible, knowing they had the sympathy of the masses. New spirit was instilled in the Tinsmiths by last night's meeting, a fact which was acknowledged by their energetic President who, after thanking the Union representatives, brought the meeting to a close amidst much enthusiasm. Messrs. McGrath and Allan, on behalf of the Longshoremen's Union, offered the Tinsmiths the use of their hall on all and any occasion, a kindness which is appreciated by the Tinsmiths.

Keenly Contested Race

The three mile skating race in the Prince's Rink last night between T. Woods, of the City, and Patterson, of Nova Scotia, was an interesting prelude to the hockey match.

Both men made an excellent start when Mr. Higgins got the men away at 8.25, and at the start Woods forged ahead keeping his lead to the third lap when Patterson ran ahead and kept slightly in advance. Woods tripped and fell in the seventh round when Patterson gained easily a half lap and held it until the first mile was covered in 3 minutes, 25 seconds. Woods spurred in the second mile and recovered considerable of the lost ground, and later Patterson again ran ahead, and was again about a half lap ahead when the second mile had been covered in 6 minutes, 15 seconds. Intense excitement now prevailed amongst the thousands of spectators as Woods was putting up a plucky race and making every effort to gain what he had lost by his fall. As the laps of the last mile were covered both men spurred frequently and Woods gained slightly but could not overtake his man who finished about a third of a lap ahead of his opponent, doing the three miles in 9 minutes, 35 seconds. Messrs. Martin and Regan were scorers, and Mr. C. W. Ellis official time-keeper. Patterson received a handsome safety razor as a prize and souvenir of the race.
