Fr. Vaughan Creates a Stir

Among New York Society Women, Demanding Modern Dances — Speaks in Plain Terms to a Big Audience at Brooklyn.

New York, Jan. 20.—Speaking to a big audience, among whom were many society women, in the Brooklyn Academy of Music, Rev. Bernard Vaughan, the noted English Jesuit preacher, expressed strong views against the society craze for such dances as the "Apache" and the "Turkey Trot." As usual, the eminent speaker adhered to his custom of calling a spade a spade.

"If proper dancing is all the world over a recognized and exhilarating pastime—improper dancing, on the contrary, is a practice that is intoxicating and therefore to be ostracised from every decent vaudeville, and, still more, from every private drawing room," he said.

"To any one with even the most elementary knowledge of physiology, it is apparent that the movements in the so-called dances of the 'Apache' character can result in nothing making for righteousness or even decency. Men and women do not happen to be felines or sleighs, nor are they automata or gramophones. Not even are they oysters or jelly fish. They are human beings, and unlike asbestos, are very susceptible to fire.

"The so-called dances bearing very suspicious names are forces calculated to awaken animal passion and to set youth on fire, and it is quite impossible to consider what sort of a patent fire engine could extinguish such enkindled flames either in this world or the world to come.

"It would not be a bad plan to have the boss ready to play on people who dare to defy the public conscience by indulging in vicious movements whose tendencies are recognized to be so injurious to civic morality that those responsible for the decency and welfare of our great cities felt themselves compelled to inhibit, such criminal practices in halls licensed for dancing."

The address was applauded heartily, and at its close many women of fashion sought out Father Vaughan and said he was unquestionably in the right. The matter had been presented to them so forcefully that they saw the dances in a new light.

Search For a Bride.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Exeter have been entertaining a large shooting party at Burghley House, Stamford, England.

The mansion has 145 rooms, and the banqueting hall is only surpassed by that of Westminster. It is famous also for its state beds, one of the finest of which is that used by Queen Elizabeth on the occasion she visited her great grandson.

The first Marquis of Exeter married the only child and heiress of Mr. Thomas Vernon, a Worcestershire squire, but the result was unhappy and in 1791 he divorced her. He then took to travelling about the country on foot, and at Bolas, in Shropshire, met a girl of exquisite beauty and great natural refinement, but bearing the distinctly unromantic name of Sarah Cloggin. He married her, and took to travelling about the country learnt for the first time the real identity of her husband.

Redmond's Opinion.

The following opinion recently expressed by John Redmond is an aid in understanding his character and the cause he advocates. Mr. Redmond said:

"I have been asked to state exactly what an Irish Parliament would do if created to-morrow. In such a Parliament, many of the old fighting faces of men who took part in winning the restoration of the Parliament will be present, but there will be many other men there—men of moderate views on both sides of existing controversies, who have been quite unable, owing to the circumstances, to take part in the work of the Imperial Parliament.

"There will be many business men there who are precluded absolutely from serving their country in the Parliament at Westminster. There will be many professional men there—men representing science, literature, and art. There will be representatives of the old landed gentry, and men of all creeds. And, if I understand the feeling of Irishmen aright, you will have non-Catholics in that House in a far larger proportion than their numbers would warrant, as compared with the Catholics of the country. The old parties will have disappeared; there will be no fierce controversies to arouse passion in our country. The last of those controversies centered round the land question, which has already been settled. Those in England who will be looking out for violent scenes, extravagant language, or revolutionary proposals will be woefully disappointed."

Smuggling In 'The Good Old Days.'

Many stories have been told of the "good old times" when smuggling was rife, but few more terrible than the following:—

"Honiton, November 7, 1787.—Yesterday morning three Excise officers, who, on information that a party of smugglers would return from the sea coast loaded with spirits, by way of Roncombe's Gull Turnpike Gate, lay in wait for them near that place. The body of smugglers, six in number, with a horse each, laden with spirits, had, very artfully, sent two of their party, Easy and Marsh, on before, who, on being attacked by the Excise men, very readily delivered them their goods, upon which the Excise men told them they would give them their horses, and bid them begone; but, as that would not answer their end, therefore, to cover their design of waiting until their comrades came forward to their assistance, they begged the Excise men to let them drink.

"While the officers were making preparations for that purpose, the other four smugglers rode up, when a most furious and bloody engagement ensued. The Excise men being armed, stood their ground for some time, particularly Mr. Jenkins, of Honiton, and Mr. Scott, from Ottery Division. These two, having been knocked down by large stones thrown by the smugglers, were overpowered by their numbers, who, taking their cutlasses from them, exercised them with more than savage barbarity, whilst those who had not those weapons made use of large stones, until they left their mangled carcasses most horrible objects to behold. Mr. Jenkins died under their hands, as it is supposed; the other, Mr. Scott, languished a few hours under a furze rick, near the turnpike house, after which, being seen by some people coming to Honiton market, he was removed to the house, where he expired.

"It is very remarkable that although this horrid murder was committed within the hearing of the people at the turnpike, yet they never attempted to give any assistance, nor, after the affair was over, did they attend the sufferers any commiseration, or take any notice of them from the bleak hill on which this act was committed into their house, until they were compelled to do it by a gentleman of the neighbourhood. The other Excise man ran away at an early period of the fight."

The Christmas number of the London Strand contains an interesting article entitled, "Who are the ten greatest men now alive?" The article contains lists selected by the Speaker of the British House of Commons and other distinguished persons. Edison is an easy first. The Speaker's list is as follows: Lord Lister, Prof. Ede Metchnikoff, Lord Kitchener, Lord Rosebery, Joseph Chamberlain, Theodore Roosevelt, Lord Roberts, G. Marconi, Rudyard Kipling, Emperor William II., Thomas Edison, Richard Strauss, Ernest Haecel, Thomas Hardy, Porfirio Diaz, John S. Sargent, R.A., Lord Rayleigh, Emperor of Austria.

Sluggish Liver Action

Causes indigestion, constipation and bilious headache—Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills the cure.
"Sluggish liver has been my trouble," writes Mrs. I. P. Smith, Paris, Ont., "and I have been greatly benefited by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I have taken medicines from several good doctors, but none ever did me the same amount of good as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I could not keep up and do my work if I did not use these pills when the bilious spells come on, and I have recommended them to many."

"Dr. Chase's medicines were about the only kind that came into my father's house 40 or 50 years ago, and they were always satisfactory."
Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are prompt, definite and direct in their action on the liver, kidneys and bowels, and are therefore the most effective treatment obtainable for biliousness, indigestion and constipation. 25 cents a box, 6 for $1.00, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

London, Jan. 8.—Kier Hardie, Socialist leader in Parliament, makes an attack on the Throne for forcing the Gaekwar of Baroda to apologize because he turned his back on King George immediately after doing homage to him during the Durbar ceremony at Delhi.

Kier Hardie voices his opinion of the incident in a signed article in the Merthyr-Tydfil (Wales) Pioneer. He says in part:—
"Evidently some of the Gaekwar's fellow rulers had been taught to grovel low before the Throne, but this Prince remembered his American trainings. He kept erect, and upon leaving his Majesty's presence actually turned his back upon the Throne. Future historians will depict this incident as being most significant.

"Here was the King-Emperor going through his part like a well-jointed automaton. The white-robed figure approached, moving with native dignity, yet doing all that is required of a gentleman. He could not but remember that his country was in the dust, that the foreigner's heel was on its neck. No wonder that he refused to add to his country's abasement by kissing the foot of his oppressor."

The publication of the article has led to the most violent criticism of Hardie.
