KAISER REPORTED ILL.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 21. Kaiser William is reported to be seriously ill.

FRENCH MAKING PROGRESS.

LONDON, Oct. 21. The Paris correspondent of Reuter says that latest information from the front indicates that the French are making marked progress on the right bank of the Meuse, and that the great battle raging in the north is as yet without definite result.

BATTLE RAGING.

BORDEAUX, Oct. 21. A great battle is now raging between Lille and Ostend, according to despatches received here this afternoon. The despatches add that the situation of the Allies is considered eminently satisfactory.

ALLIES SUCCESSFUL.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 21. The Telegraph learns that the Allies were successful, after a bombardment that lasted all night, in taking the town of Roulers, in West Flanders. It is reported that the Allies now occupy the town.

WATCH GERMAN DIGGING TRENCHES.

LONDON, Oct. 21. A newspaper correspondent at Dover sent to London this morning details of the recent operations of the British warships off the coast of Belgium. He says: On Saturday night the ships watched the Germans digging trenches along the coast under a flare of lights. This enabled the British ships to get the exact range, and at daylight they shelled the enemy's positions heavily. An aeroplane was brought down, and later a Zeppelin, and it is declared the guns of the British vessels accounted for 1,000 Germans killed and wounded in addition to putting six batteries out of action. Meantime a German submarine tried to sink the British ships.

A GERMAN REPORT.

BERLIN, Oct. 21. Severe fighting continues on the Yser Canal. The enemy's artillery was supported from the sea to the northwest of Nieuport. The fighting west of Lille continues. Our troops have taken the offensive and have repulsed the enemy at several points. In the eastern theatre of the war no decision has been reached.

THE 'EMDEN' STILL ACTIVE.

LONDON, Oct. 21. The German cruiser Emden, has again been sinking British steamers at a point 150 miles southwest of Cochin, British India. According to a report received by the Admiralty from Colombo, Ceylon, she has sent to the bottom the British steamers Toller, Clan Grant, Baumohl and Dredger, bound for Tasmania, and have captured the Exford.

GRAND ASSAULT OCTOBER 30.

PARIS, Oct. 21. The Tokio correspondent of the Matin, wires that the Japanese have set October 30th, the Emperor's birthday, as the date of a grand assault against the German fortress at Tsing Tao.

GERMAN STATEMENT UNFOUNDED.

LONDON, Oct. 21. The statement from German sources that there has been a rebellion in British Somaliland and that Berbera, with all the British officials has been taken, is entirely without foundation.

dition. The situation remains unchanged since the outbreak of the war.

CHURCHILL IN THE TRENCHES.

LONDON, Oct. 21. Winston Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, who accompanied the British Naval Brigade and Marines to Antwerp, was, according to one of the latter, with them in the trenches practically all of the time. Just before the order was given to retire, he urged the men to hold out for twenty-four hours longer when the big guns would arrive. One day he reconnoitered the position of the Germans in an aeroplane.

REFUGEES RETURNING.

THE HAGUE, via London, Oct. 21. Cardinal Mercier, Archbishop of Malines, who took refuge in Holland some weeks ago, has now returned to his native city. He has advised all Catholic refugees to follow his example. The Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant declares that 20,000 Belgian refugees passed through Rosendale on the way home during the past two days. It is rumored that Namur has been occupied by the Allies, but this report lacks confirmation. It is believed improbable.

THEY HAVE TO GO.

LONDON, Oct. 21. The police throughout England began to-day to round up all Germans and Austrians between 17 and 50 years of age. They will be sent to detention camps.

IMMIGRATION OFFICER SHOT.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 21. M. C. Hopkinson, the assistant to the Immigration Inspector, was shot and killed here this afternoon by a Hindu.

HOLDING THEIR GROUND.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—(Official.) A violent battle continues on the left wing with the allied forces holding their ground everywhere.

OSTEND REPORTED BOMBARDED.

LONDON, Oct. 22. A despatch from Berlin to-night by the Marconi Wireless Co. says: It is reported that Ostend is being bombarded by the British fleet.

ALLIES DOING GOOD WORK.

From the Battle Front, via Paris, Oct. 22. The Belgian army, with the English Channel on its extreme wing, is showing a marvellous fighting spirit, despite its long and arduous campaign, and the bitterness of the loss at Antwerp and other large cities. In a terrific open struggle which has been in progress along the frontier for several days, the Belgians with the Allied French and British forces have repulsed with the greatest energy the incessant German attacks. Yesterday like the previous day, the German heavy artillery poured a heavy bombardment on the Allied positions, but the Belgians delivered counter attacks and forced the invaders to retire nearly five miles. Further down the line on the Lys, the French were closely engaged, with general success. Three French sharpshooters performed a brilliant feat in defending a bridge, the possession of which was of the greatest importance to both armies. The Germans made a cavalry dash in an effort to seize a passage, but the Frenchmen from behind a mill 75 yards away, poured a magazine fire into the Germans, until the latter retired, leaving the bridge in the hands of the Allies. Around Lille, where the British are in action, there has

Together Again

"Mr. Challoner!" gasped Marian. "What are you doing in Atlantic City?"

"Searching for the most elusive creature on earth."

"When did you come?"

"I started the same day that I got your post card. That was day before yesterday. Aren't you glad to see me?" touching her arm as he fell in at her side. "You look at me as if I were a ghost."

"I'm very glad indeed to see you. It startled me just a little to see you here. I had no idea you had left New York so soon."

"Your post card seemed to say: 'Here I am. Come and find me.' I've been parading up and down the boardwalk like a man in a treadmill, looking for you. Whatever made you forget to advise me where I could find you?"

"I had no idea you wanted to find me."

"You might have guessed. You should have known. At any rate, I resolved to take a long chance, and come over here, trusting to beneficent luck that I might find you."

"Surely you didn't come merely to see me!" said Marian.

"Don't say 'merely,' objected the man. 'The adjective is too trivial to describe so important a matter. I was intensely anxious to see you, and greatly grieved that you did not communicate with me in New York.'

"Don't be foolish," smiled Marian. "Is it foolish to be earnest?"

"I'm afraid it is—in this case. Don't you?"

been fierce fighting, particularly in the neighborhood of Le Bassee which threatens the German possession of Lille. Street fighting has been severe between a long line of houses connecting the towns of Roubaix and Coing. Along the centre an artillery action continued yesterday without any great change, but several German trenches were captured.

Prescription "A."

CURES:

INDIGESTION and DYSPEPSIA
in all its forms.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache. I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing." I often have a pain in the pit of the stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a feeling of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems not worth living."

Why suffer from all these symptoms when "STAFFORD'S PRESCRIPTION 'A'" will cure you?

"The Old Melody."

"The Old Melody," a two reel feature produced by the I. M. P. Photo Play Company, in which King Baggot plays the leading role, proved a big attraction at the Crescent Picture Palace last night; this picture contains a very fine story and the acting and photography is the last word in photo play production.

The other pictures: "By the Curate's Aid" and "When Father was Kidnapped" were most enjoyable both being on the comedy side kept the audience in good humour right through.

The extra picture: "Four Queens and a Jack," put on instead of the usual song was also a comedy reel, and pleased everybody. Mr. Knights, we understand, having contracted a cold, preventing him from appearing last night, but the management hopes in a day or so he will be charming the Crescent patrons as usual.

On Friday and Saturday a big two reel Bison production: "The Battle of Manila" will be shown.

"Not at all. Hello, here's Huyler's. I'll buy you an ice cream soda."

Marian thought that Challoner cut an elegant figure in his suit of white flannel, and his flowing, broad-striped cravat, the latest importation in haberdashery. She was secretly elated over his having come and having found her, although she was in no way prepared to give him any inkling of her real feelings. But he was able to perceive in her manner what her words disclaimed, and he had no regrets whatever for his madcap quest of her among the swarms of people at the resort. His two days' search had begun to appear to him to be the height of folly, when, all of a sudden, he had caught sight of her as she emerged from the rug gallery.

For her part, Marian was bewildered and nearly overcome by the uncanny, apparently psychic vision of Challoner that she had beheld in the auction room, to be followed so incomprehensibly by Challoner's own voice halting her.

Chance, or fate, or whatever it might be, seemed to be forging the connecting link between her life and this man's, despite her determined efforts to make their paths diverge.

The events of life have a bewildering way of shaping themselves, upsetting and disregarding the designs of human calculation, defying the stern mandates of duty itself, setting at naught the feeble efforts of volition.

Marian Winthrop wondered deeply what the denouement of this odd meeting was to be.

How Napo'eon Was Spanked.

When in exile at Elba, Napoleon told a story of how his mother spanked him.

One day, it appears, his mother's mother was hobnobbing along the street in Ajaccio, when Napoleon and his sister Pauline followed the old lady and mimicked her. Their grandmother turned and caught them in the act.

She complained to Madame Letitia Bonaparte. Pauline was at once spanked and disposed of. Napoleon, who was out in his regimentals, could not be handled, since the uniform was as sacred as the flag. But his mother bided her time.

The next day, when her son was off his guard, she called out: "Napoleon! Napoleon! Quick! You are invited to dine with the governor!"

Whereupon the future emperor ran to his room to change his clothes. His mother quickly followed, and when she judged that the proper time had come rushed into the room, seized her undressed hero before he guessed her purpose, laid him across her knee, and belabored him earnestly with the flat of her hand.

British Member Shot in Roumania.

London, Oct. 16.—A despatch to Reuter from Bucharest, says:

"Noel Buxton, member of the British Parliament for North, Norfolk, and his brother, Charles Roden Buxton, sons of Sir Thomas Powell Buxton, former Governor of South Australia, who had been in Bulgaria to confer with Bulgarian politicians regarding Bulgaria's attitude toward the European war, were both shot to-day by a young Turk, Pachel Hassan.

"The Buxtons were travelling in an automobile with a son of M. Kuechoff, former Bulgarian Premier, to attend the funeral of the King of Roumania, when Pachel fired four shots at the party from a revolver. One of the Buxtons was shot through the lung. The other was only slightly wounded. The assassin was arrested."

The correspondent says it is believed that the wound of neither man is dangerous. He does not say which one of the brothers was shot through the lung.

Corduroys will be worn again, velveteens and velours will be elegant and distinctive.
