More Lost Stories.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The lost and found department for last stories is still flourishing. The person who supplied the information that "Satan Sanderson" was the name of the old-fashioned novel described in a previous issue, will please consider his or herself thanked. Here are some more lost notices.

"Do you think you can help me locate a little poem which was published in some of the Sunday papers at the time the Teddy-bears first became popular, telling what the dolls thought of the bears, for usurping their place in the affections of children that had hitherto been theirs? If this poem could be found, I would be very glad."

How The American Flag Was Made.

"Could you give me any information concerning a story that was published in one of the city newspapers in July about the American flag? It started 'Gee, ain't it fierce we ain't got no flag,' and then went on to tell how the woman took her skirt and made a flag."

We Watched The Gulls.

"Can any of your readers tell me where I could find a story which appeared some years ago in a paper partly given up to advertisements? The story was of the father of a family of teachers who, having married off the last one, feels an immense relief and asks for a holiday to go on a spree to celebrate. After receiving the coveted permission, he returns in a few days and tells his fellow-workers at the office what a delightful spree he has had, going across the ferry and back, watching the gulls."

"I am one of many who think this department a blessing to seekers of lamented lost stories."

About A Youth Who Wanted To Learn A Trade.

"I would like to find a lost poem. We had it for examination years ago. It was about a youth who wanted to learn a trade and he always found some fault with each, for instance, when he took up paper-hanging, he did not like the smell of paste, etc."

Can anyone help these people out? The payment for such help is, as before stated, other people's willingness to try and help solve any similar problems you may have.

Makes Hair Grow.

All drug stores sell SALVIA, and it is guaranteed to grow hair or money back.
The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of. If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

SALVIA is sold by first-class druggists under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word "SALVIA" on every bottle.

Everyday Etiquette.

"I have occasion to make several business calls a year upon men. Is it proper for me to send in my card when visiting offices?" asked Jane.

"No, a woman does not send in her card at a man's business office. A better way is to give your name verbally to the clerk or servant," replied her aunt.

Von HindenburgPresents Views.

Teutons are Confident Their Armies Will Win.

Berlin, Oct. 30, via Sayville.—"The situation is as good as possible, and all will be well also in the future."

Thus Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, chief of the German general staff, described the present war situation to a representative of the Vienna Neue Freie Presse, whom he received at headquarters in the presence of General Von Ludendorff, first quarter-master-general.

As to the duration of the war, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg says:

"That depends upon our enemies. Prophesying does not pay. During a war one had better leave it alone. It is possible that the year 1917 will bring battles which will decide the war. However, I do not know and nobody knows. I only know that we will fight this war to a final decision."

General Von Ludendorff here added: "We do not think of peace. We are absolutely decided to continue the war, as is shown with sufficient clearness by the measures of the allied (Teutonic) army commands."

Austria-Hungary Confident.

This interview with the chief of staff was given out to-day by the Overseas News Agency for publication. It continues:

"The correspondent, in turn, reported to Field Marshal Von Hindenburg on the general feeling in Austria-Hungary, declaring it was one of confidence and satisfaction, but that, as everywhere, the end of the war was wished for. The Field Marshal replied:

"That we all wish: I understand this well. The Austro-Hungarian people have accomplished their full duty during this war, and have made all the heavy sacrifices which were necessary. But still new sacrifices must be made, lest those already made have been made in vain."

General Von Ludendorff interjected:

"Tell your Austrian friends that there is only one efficient means for ending the war, a firm will to end the war by victory. Every soldier and all others must work together. They must realize that no way but war leads to peace. Munition is not all, grenades, but the morale of the troops brings the final decision and the morale of the German and Austro-Hungarian troops is superior to that of all our adversaries. Nevertheless, munitions mean very much in this war. At a previous visit the Field Marshal told you 'the main thing is discipline.' That is true. Discipline is based on the complete education of every individual man."

Asked whether there was any chance that the war would be culminated by a decisive blow, General Von Ludendorff said: "Perhaps. The trend of events must show this, but we prefer to make no statements."

Exhausting the Masses.

As to whether the masses will be exhausted, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg replied: "They are already becoming so. The Russian army commanders have charged themselves with that. There is no doubt that new masses will grow up in Russia. But that makes no difference. We, too, have enough men. Germany has a profusion of reserves, and in Austria-Hungary the reserves are by no means exhausted. We never were afraid of the British numerical strength. We know no numerical superiority."

General Von Ludendorff, taking up the situation said:

"Numerical superiority and danger only exist for the weak. Who objects against it ought better to object against himself. A firm will commands fate. There is no blind fate."

The New Russian Armies.

Field Marshal Von Hindenburg then continued: "The new Russian armies are as good or as bad as the former. The main quality of the Russian soldier is blind obedience. He makes no progress of a military kind; only the Russian artillery has become more efficient on account of instruction by French and Japanese officers, who partly command. But our artillery remains superior."

"During a certain period the Russians had more munitions than they formerly had. Their munitions supplies have now become diminished because of the end of importation by way of Archangel and Vladivostok."

The correspondent asked whether

When a Man Gets to be 50

The man of 50 has to slow up a little. He begins to realize that he has a stomach and liver. He can't eat and work as hard with the same disregard of health as he did 20 years ago, so he turns to Abbey's EFFERVESCENT SALT. Abbey's EFFERVESCENT SALT helps nature—does part of Nature's work—prevents constipation, biliousness, indigestion, uric acid poisoning—regulates the elimination organs—keeps the whole system in a normal healthy condition. Abbey's EFFERVESCENT SALT is a tumbler of warm water first thing every morning will keep you fit and full of energy throughout the day.

in the opinion of the chief of staff, the termination of the war was only possible in the east, to which Field Marshal Von Hindenburg replied:

"People do not know what nonsense they talk. One does a great injustice to the army commander by attributing to him a programme. He certainly has in his head a plan of war, a general view of war. But there is no prepared program, except that one—to gain victory. Where and how that shall be done can only be decided each moment anew on the basis of events. Therefore a decision can be looked for as well in the east as in the west."

"It is nonsense if they tell you that I intend to shorten my front in the west. I never thought of it. Why should I do it? The front in the west stands as firm as a rock, and if our enemies, by gigantic use of artillery, here and there gains little terrain, they shall never break through. In order to do this they would still have to attack for thirty years, provided they had enough men."

Take "Cascarets" If Headachy, Bilious And Constipated

Best for liver and bowels, bad breath, bad colds, sour stomach.

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascarets to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

The First V. C. in Canada.

London Chronicle—"For gallantry which had it been displayed in the face of the enemy, would undoubtedly have won the V. C." one reads in explanation of the Albert Medal conferred upon Lance-Corporal George Broadhurst, who at bombing practice heroically seized an exploding bomb, and thus probably saved many lives. Still, there would have been a precedent for the bestowal of the V. C. in this case, had the authorities seen fit to follow it. It happened as long ago as 1866, when Private Timothy O'Hea, of the Rifle Brigade, when stationed in Canada, broke open the doors of a railway van laden with powder and ammunition, and put out a fire which had reached the powder, would have caused an immense explosion. This did not occur even in war-time, but the action was accounted so immensely plucky that the supreme military decoration was awarded.

Believes You Should Love My and Shoot Straight

There is probably no more famous officer in all Great Britain than the man chosen by wise admirals to combat the German spy system and to penetrate at any time the German espionage system. He is Captain William Hall, a man in his heart. The man in charge of the war command cruiser Queen Mary, during the fight off Jutland, and one of the German commanders actually on a German cruiser in the first Heligoland battle.

Hall is a new fighter type, a sailor with the same sea in his veins and every man in his heart. The man in charge of the intelligence of the navy, because he knew well as ships, and the world as well as British. He is known for his encouraging words down spy disguises, which third degree methods would take a strong man to deal with Hall and not reveal him.

I never think of Hall as a service director without incident that occurred on the good ship Queen Mary, as in to the death after scoring a on a German cruiser in the first Heligoland battle.

Hall is a religious man, the ablest sea fighters they could face death himself, but dreadfully less feeling than the heart at the sight of an bound to the regions of duty.

Hall first found the German shell at seven or eight miles, side from the Queen Mary, the enemy, and Hall rushed in speed. Through his glasses he saw the German turning on her men crowding aft, but the water as long as possible.

"I'm a bit religious, you know said to me, 'and I didn't like the poor beggars going down way. I naturally took off and said a little prayer, but hadn't got very far when they to say, though, when I sort that all was not well, and I off eye seaward."
