The Famous Foreign Legion.

WINS ANOTHER PALM TO THEIR FLAG.

Brilliant Gain of Recent Offensive Made by Men of Many Nations—Auberive Entered by Officer With But Ten Men—Gallant Colonel Killed.

Grand Headquarters of the French Armies in France, May 23 (Evening) —A marvellous regiment, animated by hatred of the enemy and the highest spirit of sacrifice. These words are used in the official army order in conferring the fifth palm on the flag of the famous foreign legion for gallantry in the recent fighting in Champagne. The regiment is unique in the number of times mentioned and decorated.

Fifty-one Nations Represented.
The staff correspondent of the Associated Press visited the legionaries in their rest camps, where they were recuperating and filling their ranks, and heard personal narratives from officers and men whose conduct is so highly praised. No matter what the men's nationality—and citizens of no fewer than fifty-one nations are represented among the legionaries—after joining them immediately become imbued with the regiment's glorious traditions. They have been always where the fighting was hottest.

When the war started, six battalions, forming two regiments, were sent to the front; now only three battalions remain, fused into one regiment. Among them are still Americans from various states of the Union, as well as from all the republics of Central and South America.
There are men from every British colony, from all the countries in Europe, Asia and Africa, and also a number of Frenchmen who have been attracted to the legion on account of its adventurous career. Many Russians, Belgians, Italians, British and Roumanians have recently been transferred to their own armies, reducing the legion's strength, but Spaniards, Swiss and South Americans are joining.

The legion's task, for the successful achievement of which it was honored to-day, was the most difficult in the recent French offensive. Its front stretched westward from Auberive, the capture of which was included in the objective aimed at. For five days and nights the legionaries fought continuously, without a moment's sleep.
They accomplished the task set them, but at the cost of the life of their colonel D— and many other gaps in their ranks.

At the end their commander was Major D—. Auberive was entered and carried by a lieutenant with a non-commissioned officer and ten men with unbelievable daring. The non-commissioned officer, single-handed, attacked a machine gun emplacement and killed twelve Germans. The advance of the battalion operating to the west of Auberive was retarded for some time by the opposition of an unknown series of German entrenchments, formidably armed, in what is known as the Gulf. It was impossible to attack frontally across the half mile of open ground, but the legionaries succeeded in outflanking the position and made their way, fighting for every foot, along a communication trench until they had carried the whole position. They threw fifty thousand of their own hand grenades in the course of the five days, besides many thousands of German grenades they discovered in the dumps on the enemy territory. When the fighting was over many of the exhausted leg-ionaries slept as they stood.

The brigadier-general told the correspondent that so many of the leg-ionaries were entitled to decorations that he was unable to give all. Several Americans, however, obtained the

And the Worst is Yet to Come—war cross. Sergeant Edgar Boulligny, of New Orleans, who was wounded, has already been awarded the war cross for bravery.

He has served since the beginning of the war.

The divisions captured for the five days eleven hundred German prisoners, twenty-two cannons, fifty-eight trench mortars and forty-seven machine guns.

More Peace Predic- tions.

London Daily News: The "estimate" of the Office of Works that the end of the year will come not later than July of next year will set the tongues wagging. The department suggests the postponement of the demolition of houses in Whitehallplace until July, 1921, which is the nearest estimate the department can make, as being "two years and nine months from the quarter day next following the declaration of peace." I was talking yesterday with one of our greatest military experts, a man whose opinion is really worth knowing, and his view was that the German would crumble in the autumn, but that fighting would go on in more or less half-hearted fashion until next spring.
When the enemy would be finally and decisively beaten.

THE HAIR-CUT.

The hair-cut is the unimpeded effort of a care-free barber to cause a customer to look like a human being.
Sometimes the effort falls short of the intended effect by several thousand laps and causes coldness to arise between the husband and wife. This is not always the fault of the barber, however, who has to overcome peculiar structural difficulties without a set of blue-prints.

The hair-cut is both a simple and pleasing process. The first thing necessary is to stuff several yards of starched apron down the neck of the customer, which allows the hair that is removed to fall down the back of his neck, where it cannot be gotten at with anything but a shower bath.
The apron, properly applied, also prevents the customer from breathing in a natural tone of voice for several minutes. The barber then starts on the south side of the chair and works due north without allowing the customer's ears to interfere with his itinerary. On reaching the other ear he pauses long enough to brush a few more handfuls of hair down the customer's neck after which he steps back and takes a cold, unfeeling squint at the ruins.

The shingle style, which removes all of the hair that can be gotten at without the use of an emery-wheel.

There are various popular styles of hair-cuts, all of which cause a man to be subjected to some very free comment on returning to the office.
The small boy prefers the shingle style, which removes all of the hair that can be gotten at without the use of an emery-wheel, while the clergy cling fondly to the side-whisker effect. The hair-cut which parts the hair in the middle and allows it to loop gracefully over the ear lobe has been supplanted by the low, rakish side part, which starts at the southwest corner of a bald spot and winds up in a defiant cowlick. Then there is the upstanding pompadour, which cannot be slept on with any degree of success and therefore retains its shape.

There would be a better quality of hair-cutting done in this country if the customer would not put off a visit to the barber until driven to it by an approaching wedding or the appeals of a wife who objects to sitting across the table from a human mop.
When a barber is asked to restore a look of intelligence to a man who has not had his hair cut since the last presidential election, he has a task which should excite both our sympathy and awe.

Not Satisfied.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)

The lady had heard a stranger in a railway carriage say that if any man could see himself intoxicated he would never be intoxicated again, and having a husband addicted to alcoholism, and also plenty of money, she thought of experimenting. The cinematograph operator whom she engaged was not kept waiting long for an opportunity of filming the errant husband, and in the presence of relations the subject was privileged to behold himself on the screen. He was very quiet throughout, and gravely left the room, which the others thought a good sign. Finding he had also left the house, his brother set out to find him, running him to earth eventually in the club, busy—as an attendant stated—with his fifteenth cocktail.

"Look here," said the brother, "I didn't think I'd find you back at this game."

"Didn't you?" innocently asked the subject. "Well, the fact of the matter is, I'm not satisfied with that film!"

Milady's Boudoir.

TO MAKE YOUR FIGURE FINE.

Some woman have an idea that fat may be eliminated by wearing tight corsets. This may be true to a certain extent provided the corset is especially designed and fitted to one's figure for that purpose. The average corset only succeeds in changing the position of the fat and does not get rid of it. The looser the corset is laced the easier it is to keep the weight down, for the woman who tightly laces her waist accumulates fat.

To hop is not only a fine thing for the hips but benefits the entire figure.
First lift one foot from the floor and hop about the room, first on one foot and then on the other. When one has learned to balance the body, raise the foot until the hand may grasp the heel, and then in this position hop about on either foot. When this exercise has been perfected place a ball on the floor, then hold the heel of one shoe, hop about the room and kick the ball with the other foot.
Each leg must be exercised in like manner.

In the last exercise the wand is used as an assistant. The wand is held at the back by both hands. Begin exercising by bending the arms and sliding the wand up the back as high as possible, then lowering it.
Repeat this ten times and then change the position of the hands, palms out, and repeat an equal number of times.
The effect of this movement is to reduce the fat on back and shoulders, also invigorate the lungs and increase their capacity. Improper respiration is the cause of inactivity, and inactivity results in the accumulation of fat.
