PACKED OUT.—One boy who has become fagged out, and who is depressed, miserable feeling it is. All strength is gone, and despondency has taken hold of the sufferer. They feel as though there was nothing to live for. There, however, is a cure—one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will do wonders in restoring health and strength. Mandrake and Pansies are two of the articles entering into the composition of Parmelee's Pills.

BREAKFAST—Green gages (can. ned). Velvet mush, with cream and sugar. German omelet. Ju. lieue potatoes. German coffee. cake. Coffee.

LUNCHEON—Jellied whitefish. Radishes. Rice bread. Ginger ale. Cookies of 1812. Orange jelly.

DINNER—Tomato soup. Boneless birds. Mashed potatoes. Succotash. Watermelon pickles. Lemon pie. Tea.

Cut these recipes out and paste them in a scrapbook.

Velvet Mush—Melt two tablespoons of butter in a porcelain kettle; cook in this two cups of wheat flour until it slips the spoon and the kettle; have five cups of milk ready to be added. Boil for five minutes, stirring all the time. Let both of each cupful. Add one teaspoonful of salt; stir thoroughly and serve.

German Coffee Cake—Set a sponge with one pint lukewarm water, a two-cent cake of yeast, a half-teaspoonful of salt and half a pound of flour. Let rise by the stove for two hours, then stir in half cup melted butter, one cup of raisins, one-quarter of a cup of finely-cut citron, one cup of sugar, three eggs. Knead in enough flour to make a stiff dough—about one pound—then roll the dough in three even pieces, roll them out separately, long and thin, then braided together and form round in the pan. Let rise again and bake a good half-hour. Frost. Sufficient for two meals.

Jellied Whitefish—Two pounds whitefish boiled in one and three-quarters quarts of water seasoned with two teaspoonsful of salt, one gill vinegar, four bay leaves, one tablespoonful of whole pepper and cloves. When tender take the fish out, strain the soup and return to the fire, with the white of an egg to clear it. Remove from fire, add the juice of a lemon and two ounces of gelatine, first dissolved in water. Then strain again, and when cool, but not cold, pour over the fish. Turn on a platter when served and garnish with parsley. Enough for two meals.

Cookies of 1812—One pint of sugar, one teaspoon of butter, four eggs, two tablespoons of sweet milk, one-half teaspoonful of slowly one teaspoon of cream of tartar, one-half nutmeg, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one pint of flour. Roll the sugar (granulated) in a little fine; add the butter and cream them. Stir in the milk gradually, and beat the eggs separately, and add to the mixture butter, sugar and milk and lastly the flour and soda. Mix with a spoon, and knead in a little warm water. After these have been well mixed add the nutmeg and vanilla. Beat all well together, and add enough flour to handle well in rolling and cutting out. Bake in a moderate oven a delicate brown. These keep well.

Ginger Ale—One and three-quarters pounds sugar, one and one-half ounces whole ginger, two and one-half ounces cream tartar, one lemon sliced, seven quarts boiling water, 2-cents yeast. Put sugar and spices in a stone jar, pour over the boiling water and let stand 24 hours in a cool place covered. Then put yeast in, dissolve in lukewarm water, and let stand again 24 hours, then fill in bottles, cork well, and after three days it is ready to serve.

Boneless Birds—For this use round steak sliced thin. Cut in pieces about three to four inches wide and five to six inches long. Sprinkle salt and pepper on one side; put in a narrow piece of bacon, two inches long and one-half an inch wide, a piece of carrot the same size; now roll the meat like a tight sausage, get the shape of a bird without head or feet as much as you can, and wind around with string, then rub with allspice, salt and pepper and roll in flour. Brown well in butter in which you have grated an onion, then add stock or boiling water until covered, and simmer for two hours; then take out the birds, strain gravy and thicken with one teaspoonful of flour, and serve in a little water, add a pinch of salt. Should the stock or water steam away while cooking more must be added—but always boiling hot.

—Dr. Barkwell, of Chicago, is visiting his brother, W. S. Bryers Barkwell, Dundas street.

—Programmes for concerts or entertainments printed in the nearest designs, at Advertiser Job Department. Prices the lowest.

—Staff-Captain Turner, of the Salvation Army here, is in Guelph, where he will conduct a three hours' "meeting at the cross."

—Rev. W. M. Walker, of South London, will exchange pulpits with Rev. W. J. McKay, of the Stratford Baptist Church, on Sunday next.

—A. R. Smith, manager of Ferguson's store, New Hamburg, will leave this week for London, where he has accepted a good situation.—Stratford Herald.

—The London Hunt and Country Club has donated a sweepstake for the best saddle and harness horse at the Detroit Horse Show on April 21, 22, 23 and 24. A number of London horses will be shown.

—Mr. W. A. Bleuthner has been engaged as organist of the First Congregational Church, at a salary of $200 a year. He is also to be given the free use of the church for two concerts each year.

—District Passenger Agent Dickson of the G. T. R. has made arrangements for six excursions from Toronto, the Northwest and Stratford, Prince Edward county, the Midland division, Niagara Falls and Barrie, to Guelph Model Farm in June next.

—Ernest A. Pierce, of 736 Queen's avenue, a carpenter in the employ of Tambling & Jones, while at work today removing the glass in front of Gatecliffe's butcher shop, received a severe cut on one of his hands, about four inches long, caused by the glass breaking and falling on it. Mr. Pierce went at once to a doctor's office, where several stitches were put in his hand. He was then sent home.

—The Philharmonic Club, of Detroit, assisted by Miss Maude Fowler and Miss Edith Hartson, gave a first-class concert at the Auditorium last night before an audience not large but appreciative. The club is composed of Mr. Yunk, first violin; Herman Breuckner, second violin; Frank Resche, viola, and H. Heberlein, violoncello. Concerted pieces by Haydn and Beethoven were given with splendid effect, and in the solo numbers Mr. Heberlein and Mr. Yunk showed the mastery of their instruments.

—Misses Hartson and Fowler sang a duet, "The Starry Heaven," and each a solo in excellent voice. Mr. J. W. Fetherston arranged the concert.

—Digby Bell and his wife, supported by a competent company, were greeted by a large audience last night at the Grand. Mr. and Mrs. Bell were last seen here in a comic opera, "Jupiter," but, like many other operatic stars, have forsaken that line for straight comedy, a less expensive vehicle. "The Midnight Bell," in which they appeared last night, is one of Charles Hoyt's sparkling productions, fashioned somewhat after the "Old Homestead," and affords some enchanting glimpses of idyllic rural life. The play abounds in quaint humor and is wholesome and bright. Mr. Bell is the chief fun maker and is entirely successful. The other roles are in good hands.

—The Public Library board met last night. Mr. Egan presided and Messrs. C. E. Keene, T. Macbeth, E. Weld, R. H. Dignan and R. Reid and Librarian Blackwell were also present. Donations were received of 25 volumes of

Rev. W. F. Crafts Lectures on Social Problems.

How the Work of the Year Can Best be Utilized for the Improvement of Society.

Of the great social reformers of to-day have a wider reputation than Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts, who lectured on his favorite theme, "The Big Four and Forty More," at the Dundas Street Methodist Church last night, under the auspices of the City Plebeian Association.

In opening his address Mr. Crafts said that all true reformers are but branches of the one great reform, the Christianizing of society. To all kinds of reform movements intemperance was a hindrance, because it was logical that the W. C. T. U., while taking cognizance of other matters, should devote their chief attention to remedying that great evil.

At different periods, he continued, the sweep of reform had manifested itself in different ways. The characteristic feature of the present effort was the educational method of the plebeian. An effort was being made, largely through the agency of the W. C. T. U. and Christian Endeavor societies, to systematize the efforts for reform by means of the "topic a month" scheme. Under this method the efforts of the reformers were each month concentrated upon a particular object of reform so as to gain strength by combined effort. The lecturer proceeded to elaborate the scheme thus suggested by a review of the work of the year.

January, he said, was the month for moral education. The necessary thorough moral instruction increased with growth in knowledge. The ignorant thief stole from the freight car; the educated thief stole the whole railway.

February was to be devoted to municipal government. A higher ideal in municipal administration should be held forth. Toronto was probably the best of the large cities, yet even there there was great room for improvement. In March questions of emigration and immigration are to be considered. Under this head, the speaker dealt at some length with the Corliss Bill, which he condemned as an iniquitous measure, the outgrowth of peculiar political conditions. There was a principle involved, however, which was quite sound. An effort should be made to exclude the illiterate dregs of the population from Southern Europe.

April was Sabbath observance month. An attempt should be made to build dykes against the flood of Sabbath-breaking before the conditions became favorable for the outdoor amusements so freely indulged in on that day. Charts were produced to show that the rule laid down in the genesis of a day of rest in every seven was a sound one on purely scientific grounds. On a Sabbath morning the whole fourth commandment could be read calmly in a drop of blood with the aid of a microscope.

The month of May was to be signalized by a study of labor problems. Under-consumption, Mr. Crafts claimed, rather than over-production, was the cause of the prevalent depression. Under-consumption was the result of want of organizing power, and that in turn was largely the result of wasting money in drink. Under-consumption reaped prejudicially on the whole industrial world.
