NEW ANGLICAN GOVERNING BODY TO MEET THIS WEEK

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Nov. 15.—The church assembly, the comparatively new governing body of the Anglican church, will meet this week. The vital question of the prayer-book revision will not be approached at this meeting as the matter is still under consideration by the house of bishops, which body, obviously weighted with the importance of its decision, is not likely to make any pronouncement until next year.

The question of patronage to benefices, which, it is generally admitted, is in a chaotic state, will receive considerable attention from the church assembly. In this connection diocesan boards of patronage are proposed, but the agenda contains amendments to this proposal.

GERMANY IS PLEASED.
Associated Press Despatch.
Berlin, Nov. 15.—German inter-politics are sufficiently clarified to permit the prediction that the government will be assured a majority in the Reichstag for the security pact and arbitration treaties. The announcement of the evacuation of Cologne was received in official quarters as fully indicating the attitude of Chancellor Luther and Dr. Stresemann reposed in the verbal promise given them at Locarno by President Hindenburg. With the Cologne zone restored to Germany, the German Nationalists' opposition to the government's commitments at Locarno is discounted, as the reactionaries are quarrelling among themselves on the issue of supporting the treaties in the Reichstag.

Bronchitis More Than a Cold

Often develops rapidly into pneumonia—relief is found in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

Any cold is serious enough when its dread possibilities are considered, but when there is soreness or tightness in the chest and a dry hard cough you can look for bronchitis, which is often confused with an ordinary cold.

It is usually known by aching limbs and body pains, chills, fever, weariness and weakness, pain in the chest and a tight, tearing pain in the chest skin, throat, coated tongue and constipation are other symptoms.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine seems almost like a specific for bronchitis because it is so successful in loosening up the cough, aiding expectoration and preventing the inflammation from reaching the lungs.

but an endless effort to overcome some small defect of the eye. Proper glasses would relieve that condition at once. Mr. Steele, London's Leading Optometrist, has specialized for years on this branch of the optical business—the supplying of "rest" glasses. ARTISTS' REGISTRY MOOTED FOR CITY

Canadian Club May Institute Central Enrollment of Talent.
SIR GEORGE FOSTER
Secured As Speaker For London.

A central registry for London artistic talent may be established in the near future. A movement is now on foot in the interests of such an institution, and is being promoted by the Men's Canadian club. The purpose behind the movement is to encourage London talent and to make it possible for London clubs and organizations to put their hand on suitable talent when it is needed.

The matter was brought before the executive of the Women's Canadian club at a meeting held last week. Mrs. A. T. Edwards and Mrs. F. W. Hughes were named a committee to look into the matter and co-operate with the men's club in obtaining such a registry for London.

Sir George Foster.
The Women's Canadian club, with the Men's and Girl's Canadian clubs, are endeavoring to bring Sir George Foster to London in the near future, to give a public address. Mrs. John Stevely and Mrs. T. C. Benson have been named by the Women's Canadian club to work on a committee towards such a visit.

On November 24, the club will hold its annual meeting in honor of the members of the writing profession in London. Marshall Saunders, distinguished Canadian author, will be the guest of honor and speaker, while invitations will be extended to local authors and journalists. The subject of the address will be "How to Write for the Canadian Club." By this gathering the Canadian club is recognizing Canadian Book Week.

On December 8, Mrs. Stanfield of Toronto, will come to London to address the club, and a silver dress the club, "Mrs. Stanfield, who is the wife of a teacher of the Toronto Technical school, has spent two summers in the Maritime provinces teaching the fisher folk of the coast villages how to weave and knit.

Honor Mrs. King.
The executive meeting was made the occasion of a presentation to Mrs. C. B. King, who is leaving the city early this week to take up her residence in Windsor. The little gift, an address book and a silver pencil, were presented by Mrs. F. W. Hughes, while Mrs. John Stevely, president of the club, gave a brief address in appreciation of Mrs. King's services to the club. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. M. H. Kingston, and following the business refreshments were served.

Uncle Wiggily

AND THE RED STICK.

Uncle Wiggily had hopped out of his hollow stump bungalow with shovel, to get enough snow so Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy could make a pie. Perhaps you may think it queer to make a pie of snow—and so did Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy herself, as well as Mrs. Longears, also Jingle, Jangle, Susie Littlelail and many of the other little bunnies. But Uncle Wiggily had said:

"Oh, leave it to me! I'll show you how to make a pie out of snow. Then he hopped out into the white drifts, and while the little rabbit children, Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears watched through the window, all of a sudden Uncle Wiggily vanished—disappeared from sight."

"What can have happened to him?" cried Jingle.

"I'll go out and see!" offered Scooter, one of the little rabbit boys. And his brother Tooter said: "So will I!"

"No, you stay here!" exclaimed Nurse Jane. "I'll go out in the snow and see what has happened to your daddycums."

"I think I know what has happened," said Mrs. Longears. "Uncle Wiggily has stepped into a deep drift, and the snow is over his head, so you can't see him. The same thing will happen to you, Nurse Jane, if you go out."

"Then tie the clothes line around me so if I fall in the deep snow you can pull me back here to the bungalow," said the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Oh, that will be fun," shouted Tooter, Scooter, Jingle, Jangle, Susie and the other little rabbits. Quickly the rope was tied about Nurse Jane and out into the snow she stepped. But she had not gone far in the soft, white drifts before she, too, disappeared as Uncle Wiggily had done.

"Pull her out!" cried Mrs. Longears and the children hauled on the rope, bringing Nurse Jane from the drift.

"Did you see Uncle Wiggily?" asked Scooter.

"No! I-ker-choo—didn't," answered the muskrat lady, for she had caught a little cold on account of some snow getting down inside the back of her dress. "But I'll go out again and look for him," she went on.

"No! No! You mustn't!" said Police Dog or one of the dogs who find travellers lost in the snow of the Swiss Alps.

But there was no need of this. For a few moments later out of the drift came floundering Uncle Wiggily with his shovel piled high with snow. He was laughing and puffing and his pink nose was twinkling.

"I got in such a deep drift I had trouble in shovelling my way out," he said. "But I'm all right now and I'll show Nurse Jane how to make the snow pie."

Out of the drift came floundering Uncle Wiggily.

The rabbit gentleman took a brown bowl and into it he stirred some snow, some milk, some sugar and a bit of vanilla flavouring. Easter and he put it into dishes and handed it around with a spoon to each one.

"Why, it's just like ice cream!" cried Jingle as she ate it.

"More like snow cream," said Scooter.

"I thought you baked pies in the oven," laughed Nurse Jane.

"If you baked a snow pie in the oven you'd melt it," answered Uncle Wiggily again twinkling his nose as he took from his dish. "But isn't this snow?"

"Oh, it's just lovely, daddycums!" cried little Weezie.

"And see what I found while I was digging my way out from beneath the snowdrift," said Mr. Longears. He held up what seemed to be a small, round red stick.

"What's it for?" asked Tooter, who like most boys, wanted to know all about things.

"Well, I hardly know," answered the rabbit gentleman. "It's a little red stick, but it is so cold I didn't have time to look at it closely and see what it was used for. Perhaps—"

"But before Uncle Wiggily could say another word the door of the bungalow was pushed open and a roaring voice cried:

"I've just got to have some!"

The rabbit gentleman made a dive under the table. The little bunnies shouted and what happened next you shall hear in the story after this—is if the coffee pot will go to sleep in the onion bed and wake up strong enough to get breakfast all alone.

But before the Governor Fuller was a shock to friends of more than fifty convicts, whose petitions for pardons have been presented. The governor's determination breaks a custom that has prevailed in this state for nearly half a century. Penologists favored the pardons as giving convicts an incentive to be model prisoners.

AN ENDLESS RAINBOW.

Gliding o'er the water
In a green canoe,
Watching dancing shadows,
In the lake so blue.

O'er our heads from storm clouds,
Pearls are gently tossed,
Falling all about us,
In the lake so blue.

Now the sun is shining,
In the eastern sky,
Starts a gorgeous rainbow
O'er the trees so high.

Circling o'er the treetops,
Down to lake descends,
Mirrored in the water,
Rainbow has no end.

POLAND REVISES SCHOOL REGIME

Development of the Physical, Moral and Intellectual Abilities Aimed At.

Associated Press Despatch.

Warsaw, Nov. 15.—A representative of Stanislaw Grabski, the Polish minister for public instruction, has courteously provided The Christian Science Monitor with information regarding schooling in Poland. He said:

"Our ideal is to develop the intellectual, moral and physical capacities of our children, to make of them intelligent and useful citizens, with a sense of responsibility and duty, to make of them intelligent and useful citizens, not of the state only, but of the world. We aim at reducing rather than enlarging the program, eliminating mechanical learning and cramming, and substituting for it the independent work of the pupils, encouraging them to investigate the problems before them for themselves. At the end of school life the examiners for what is known as the 'certificate of maturity' are recommended to look more for signs of mental development than the pupil's actual amount of acquired knowledge, although of course this latter must not be neglected or underrated."

"Our republican form of government as well as our best national traditions have led us to a democratic ideal in our schooling system. We even call our elementary schools 'universal schools,' that is to say, schools for all alike. The aim of the educational authorities is to combine all the different school grades into one whole, the parts of which are to be related in such a manner as to allow each pupil to obtain an educational level and a position corresponding to his or her capacity, quite independent of birth or fortune. This is our aim, as yet unattained."

Legislation Near.

"In the near future a bill is to be brought before the legislative assembly, which in all modern countries, for the creation of a certain number of primary and secondary schools. The three lower classes of the secondary (communal) schools will be suppressed and pupils after the primary school will pass at once at the age of 13 into the gymnasium. After passing the compulsory five classes he will obtain his certificate of maturity, allowing him, if desirous, to enter the university or other high schools."

"Until, however, we attain this ideal we have had to maintain the present type of gymnasium. School attendance is compulsory in Poland, but in certain provinces which have been most devastated by the war this form of obligatory instruction is not yet practically applied. The financial existence of the schools is based on communal payments for needs of the school in materials, while the government remunerates the teachers. The board of education is aiming at replacing the too numerous schools of one class under one teacher by a smaller number of schools of a superior type. They hope to construct new higher grade schools in those parts of a country district where the children are scattered together. Such schools would be within a radius of three kilometers."

Subjects Taught.

"The subjects taught in a public primary school having the complete classes are: Religion, according to the particular faith of the individual child; Polish language, one foreign language, arithmetic and geometry, drawing, manual work for both boys and girls, singing, games and gymnastics."

"The gymnasium are of three types, classical, humanistic and technical. In all three types one modern foreign language is obligatory. In the humanistic Latin is a principal subject, in the technical Latin is not taught, but more attention is given to the mathematical side."

"One of the most encouraging signs in our educational life is the enthusiasm shown by the teachers, more especially those of the primary schools, who flock to the holiday courses which are held every summer in various parts of the country. They eagerly imbibe new ideas and methods in teaching which are presented to them and widen and increase their knowledge."

Teachers' Colleges.

"We have teachers' training colleges, with a two-year course, and a state course of manual work lasting two years for the preparation of teachers of manual work. A feature in Polish schools is the instruction given on modern Poland including the economic side, information concerning the social system, the legal and political side, the constitution of the Republic, and the duties of a citizen."

WOMEN'S LABOR PARTY WILL ELECT OFFICERS

Mrs. Floyd Wells Resigning After Successful Year in President's Chair.

The London branch of the Canadian Women's Labor party is meeting on Wednesday night of this week to elect officers for the ensuing year. Mrs. Floyd Wells, the present president, is resigning from the party altogether, and the presidency will probably be given either to Mrs. Alex Gilmore or to Mrs. Mary Summers. The annual meeting will be held in the Labor Temple at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Wells, who has been president of the party and under whose direction a series of most successful lectures were given last winter, states that she is too busy with relief work to be able to act this year. She will be engaged in putting on dances and dances for the London Sunshine relief circle, and this, she expects, will keep her busy all season. Her resignation from the party is greatly regretted by the members, who found last year that she was an indefatigable worker for all the functions arising from the women's party or the men's party.

BIRR W. I.

Mrs. John Cahoon was hostess to the W. I. which met at her home recently. The president, Mrs. Ernest Hodgins, presided, Miss Alice Scott, read the minutes of the last meeting. The ladies of grateful thanks were read from the War Memorial Children's Hospital, London, acknowledging the fruit donation. The secretary reported that the travelling library had been applied for, but as yet had not arrived. Mrs. Lorne Beattie read some very well-chosen thoughts, as expressed by a plain country woman on this particularly season. This present month being dark and dreary, she said, one is inclined to be melancholy and often where you are alone and that is to stay where you are needed."

Community singing and a reading from Mabel Haskett was much enjoyed. Mrs. Alvyn Haskett, that a notion that an exchange of Christmas presents, valued at 25c, be held at the next meeting. It was moved by Mrs. Alvyn Haskett that a masquerade dance be held in the Southgate hall, on Nov. 25. Prizes are to be given to the best original costume. The Misses Martha O'Neil, Vera O'Neil, Alice Scott and Mrs. Charles Ryan to be responsible for same.

Mrs. Bolton Fitzgerald, district president, gave us a very instructive address on the "Value of Music in the Home and the School." In expressing the value derived from belonging to a thriving W. I., she said "it could not be measured in dollars and cents. Those who give their time and energy on carrying on society work, usually use equal efficiency in doing everything else. The W. I. as an organization has passed its trial stage and has come to stay, and has behind it the confidence of the department of agriculture. Being nonsectarian and non-political has made it possible to welcome every woman."

The child was the nation's greatest asset and the requirements of the child in the school must be considered. Music was too often neglected in rural centers. In all ages it has played an important part. Music teaches patriotism and is an uplift to character. The time was not far cerning the social system, the legal and political side, the constitution of the Republic, and the duties of a citizen."
