

Conservatory Building

THE building of conservatories and greenhouses for private purposes is a business by itself.

Its successful handling must be based on long experience—and exact knowledge.

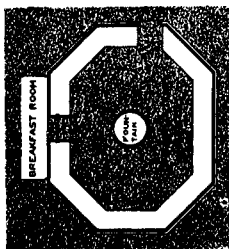

It is not a carpenter's job.

It is not a contractor's job.

It is not a commercial greenhouse-builder's job.

It is work for a firm such as ours, who have been building the finest of glass structures for half a century or more.

Much of our work has been handled in co-operation with the architect.

So satisfactory has this character of work been, both to client and architect, that we are seeking more of it.

We have an office in Toronto.

Arrangements are rapidly under way for a Canadian factory.

All materials at present, being shipped from our other factories, are cut and fitted all ready for speedy erection.

We will gladly contract for part or all of the work of the structure, complete.

Let us co-operate with you.

Send for catalog.
